BETROTHED PAIR KILLED BY TRAIN THAT HITS AUTO

Roderick Milstead and Fiancee Victims of Auto Crash.

MAN'S DEATH CLIMAX OF FAMILY TRAGEDIES

Father and Mother Both Met Violent End; Crossing Accident Scene.

The evil genius that has pursued the Milstead family struck again yesterday when Roderick Milstead, 30, of 212 B street southeast, and his 33-year-old fiancee, Miss Carrie Rogers, 214 A street southeast, were instantly killed in a railroad crossing crash, 3 miles from Marlboro.

The tragedy occurred when an automobile driven by Milstead failed to clear the tracks at Brown's Station before an oncoming Chesapeake Beach train. The car was dragged about 100 feet, and the engine derailed. Milstead and his fiancee were mutilated almost beyond recognition.

The accident was sequel to a series of tragic events in the Milstead family, relatives said. The dead man's father was killed when run over by a horse and wagon many years ago. Later the son was orphaned when his mother was burned to death.

Identified by Relatives.

Milstead, a carpenter employed by the Cafritz Co., had dinner yesterday with his betrothed at her A street home, and afterward they started for a drive. The two were not seen again until relatives of Miss Rogers were called on by a Post reporter to identify the body of the dead woman, where it lay in a Marlboro undertaking establishment. Milstead was identified immediately by means of a card found on his body.

None of the score or so of passengers aboard the Chesapeake Beach Railway train was injured.

R. C. Griffith was the engineer, while the conductor was Charles Long. Both are understood to live at Chesapeake Beach. There were only two passengers in the auto, and both were instantly killed in the opinion of witnesses. The crash was seen by Owen Tippett at the little settlement at the railroad crossing.

He called the police station at Marlboro and notified Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, who answered the call with Officer G. W. Gray. Dr. James I. Boyd, of Forestville, was also notified and responded at once, but found the two victims of the crash past help. He pronounced them dead and an inquest was set for 7:30 tonight at Marlboro. A coroner's jury was sworn in at once and viewed the bodies before they were removed from the wreck.

View at Crossing Clear.

Witnesses were unable to say why the collision occurred, as the view is clear at the crossing. There are few trains on the track during the winter, however, and it is believed that the driver may have failed to take proper precautions.

As the train rolled the light sedan before it down the track, apparently a part of the auto was torn off and rolled under the front wheels, as the engine turned over on its side against a bank. Neither the engineer nor his fireman was reported to be hurt, however.

Traffic on the line was still tied up early last night as wrecking crews jacked up the engine and removed the debris from the splintered track. Communication with the settlement was difficult, as there is only one phone in the neighborhood.

Browns Station will be remembered as the point where the Marlboro bank bandits abandoned their automobile last April after the holdup which resulted in the death of one of the men. The 24-hour search for them centered around the store of Robert E. Brown, the county commissioner for whom the village is named.

Witness Describes Crash.

Mr. Tippett said the automobile rounded a turn about 300 feet from the crossing as the train blew its whistle. Apparently the driver either did not see the locomotive or thought he could beat it to the crossing, as he did not slow down, the witness said. The train was bound for Chesapeake Beach.

The car rolled 500 feet down the track before the engine left the rails and stopped. Gasoline from the shattered tank then caught fire and burned the wreckage. By this time,

Man Killed by Car In Fairfax County

Hit by Auto as He Is Said to Have Stepped Into Its Path.

An elderly man was almost instantly killed in Fairfax County, near Navy, Va., yesterday when he is said to have stepped from an embankment in front of an oncoming automobile.

The man, Everett Croson, 68 years old, was picked up and taken to the office of Dr. E. S. Wearing, of Fairfax. He was pronounced dead upon arrival.

The accident occured on the Navy road about four miles west of Fairfax. Mr. Croson, whose eyesight was failing, police were told, stepped into the road in front of a machine driven by Irvin F. Purnell, 26, of 138 Thirteenth street southeast. Mr. Purnell rushed the man to the doctor's office.

THE DAY'S FOOTBALL

Kentucky's Wildcats once more lived up to their name, spoiled Tennessee's perfect record for the season with a 6-to-6 tie, and furnished the Thanksgiving Day football program with its only real form reversal.

Elsewhere results were much as expected, although scores were not. For instance, in the East the Pittsburgh Panthers were "doped" to beat Nebraska, but not by any such margin as 40 to 0. Colgate had to come through in the last period to turn back Brown, 13 to 7, and so did New York University to conquer Carnegie Tech, 7 to 6. Holy Cross also made a last period comeback to beat Boston College, 7 to 6. Cornell scored in the first period against Penn and then hung on to win, 7 to 0.

Alabama smashed through Vanderbilt for a 14-to-6 victory; Virginia Poly whipped Virginia Military, and North Carolina beat back Virginia, all by 13-to-6 scores.

Two victories, one tie and one defeat marked the participation of District teams in yesterday's football panoramo. Catholic University defeated Loyola, of Baltimore, 13 to 0; Maryland routed Johns Hopkins, 35 to 14; George Washington tied North Dakota, 6 to 6, while Howard bowed to Lincoln, 7 to 6.

PROSPERING FIRMS CREDIT ADVERTISING

Federal Study Shows How Many Have Gained Business During Depression.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Business "turns the corner" best when it gets a little push from management, the Commerce Department has concluded. Managers who are waiting for the tide of recovery to carry them out of the slough still are standing by, but those who have carried on with intensified effort in the depression are using less red ink.

These are the conclusions drawn from a four-months' study of the methods and policies of 358 firms which reported better business in the first half of 1931 than in the corresponding period of last year. The reports are from 63 industries, and cover manufacturing, wholesalers and retailers. The instances of trade expansion come from 74 cities in 30 States.

In every case, the compilation excluded those firms whose increased business was not the result of their own efforts but of a favorable demand caused by outside agencies."

Out of a total of 254 manufacturers who reported well-sustained or increased trade volume during the last eighteen months, one-third attributed their thriving business directly to advertising. Approximately another third found success in modifications or diversifications of their products to give them new consumer appeal, and the remaining organizations said intensified sales efforts, new credit arrangements, market research or modernization of equipment accounted for their increased profits.

Twelve per cent of the concerns reported increased advertising as their most effective method of overcoming the recession.

"Increase sales efforts and advertising policies are the most important reasons given by firms for their success," says the summary of the study, which was made by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

A manufacturer of electrical equipment in Missouri reported a 21 per cent increase in sales in 1930 over 1929, and an 11 per cent increase in the first half of 1931. "This concern, although not the largest in its field, is the largest advertiser in it," the survey says.

"More firms, 80 in number, made statements concerning their advertising policies than on any other single topic. * * * Thirty-three industries are represented by these firms."

A manufacturer of piston rings who reported a 34 per cent increase in profit during the first six months of 1931, attributed his steadily increasing sales to the development of a new design. He then equipped each

CAPITAL MARKS DAY OF THANKS; NEEDY ARE FED

HOOVERS HEAR TALK ON SOCIAL SYSTEMS

50 Per Cent More People Are Fed by Institutions Than Last Year.

A last-minute fall of mercury yesterday brought Washington a touch of real Thanksgiving Day weather as all classes of society cast aside gloomy thoughts and joined in celebration of the fact that, after all, things might be a whole lot worse.

Various missions and other institutions served 50 per cent more destitute persons than last year but there was plenty to go round, thanks to generosity of those who had more than they could use at the moment and shared their portions with those who had nothing.

Potatoes served in most of the institutions, for instance, came direct from the White House, President Hoover having kept only enough of 40 bushels sent him by Gov. Gardiner of Maine to supply the White House table and distributed the rest for the city's poor.

Hoovers Hear Sermon.

It was 310 years since the original Thanksgiving Day, and just as did the New Englanders then so did Washingtonians yesterday turn to the churches for observance of the occasion, although a vast number later turned to the lighter side of life as found elsewhere, particularly in football stadiums.

President and Mrs. Hoover set an example by attending morning service at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, where they heard a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, who called for "organization of our brains and our foresight and our hindsight with a view to getting the whole mechanism of life upon a more sane and substantial basis."

"What," he demanded, "can we say to justify the call of our country to thanksgiving that shall not make a mockery of our pretensions in the eyes of unbelievers or in the soul of some starving head of a family able and willing to work in a world of plenty, a soul that certainly must sting with resentment as he may overhear us singing 'Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow'?

Many "Isms" Called Tools.

"We are speaking of the social order and our public state of mind that has prostrated America upon the steps of the very temple of plenty. The trouble is not so much in our economic legs, in our social systems, our political machinery, as in our souls.

"Capitalism, socialism, communism, fascism, and all the other isms are mere tools and any one of these systems, if it could be Christianized, would be an improvement upon conditions as they are. Contrariwise, any one of these systems without the spirit of Jesus Christ is bound to fail us."

Dr. McCartney declared that "though our Nation be violently tossed upon a sea of trouble, the

Spain's Envoy to U. S. Plans to Return Soon

Paris, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Salvador de Madariaga, Spanish Ambassador to the United States and Spain's representative on the League of Nations' council, said today he plans to return to his post at Washington as soon as the council adjourns. Reports reaching here from Madrid have indicated that he might not return to Washington.

Senor de Madariaga formerly was head of the disarmament section of the league and there has been considerable speculation as to whether Spain would not want to designate him as its delegate to the disarmament conference at Geneva in February.

Two Women in Suicide Pact; Note to Friend Here Found

Bodies of Gas Victims Discovered in New York Apartment; One Formerly of Washington, Had Canceled Plan to Spend Thanksgiving in Capital.

The broken Thanksgiving date a blonde clothing model had made with a friend in Washington was spent yesterday with death in a gas-filled apartment in New York City. Her brunette roommate accompanied her.

The woman, Miss Adelaide Leavy, 27 years old, a former resident of Washington, and the roommate, Miss Jewel Warner, 20 years old, were found by New York police in their well-furnished apartment with the jets of a gas range open. They had drawn a blanket over their heads.

Police attributed both deaths to a suicide pact. Miss Leavy left two notes, one to her aged grandmother in the Home for Incurables in New York and the other to her closest friend, Mrs. Joseph Costa, of 1126 I street northeast, Washington.

The note to the grandmother, Mrs. Adelaide Hess, read, "I am leaving everything to you in spite of the wishes of my family." The other asked simply that "My dear friend, Mrs. Lilly Costa, 1126 I street northeast, Washington, D. C.," be notified.

Mrs. Costa was deeply shocked when she learned of the girl's death from a distant relative of Miss Leavy, who telephoned from New York. Miss Leavy, who had lived at Mrs. Costa's home for a number of years while she was in Washington as an employe of the telephone company, had been invited to come again to Washington to suend Thanksgiving at Mrs. Costa's home.

The invitation had been accepted and all plans had been made, but Thursday of last week Mrs. Costa received a letter from the girl, whom

Lindbergh Back in U. S.; Incensed by Red Tape

Miami, Fla., Nov. 26 (U.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed the Pan-American amphibian American Clipper from its maiden Caribbean tour in darkness in a rainstorm here at 6:29 p. m. today. The return cruise from Barranquilla, Colombia, brought 25 passengers and four crew members.

Lindbergh was incensed over the almost unending red tape he encountered during the flight. Signing clearance papers apparently was the most retarding.

"How many times did you have to sign your name, Colonel?" he was asked.

"Two hundred and twenty times," Lindbergh replied.

"Don't you think the clearance system should be clarified?"

TILSON-SNELL FIGHT IS EXPECTED TODAY

New York Member of House Hopes to Win Support of Pennsylvanians.

The contest for Republican leadership in the House, which has been going on under the surface since the death of Speaker Longworth last April, probably will result in the first pitched battle between the forces of Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, when the Republican members from Pennsylvania, 33 in number, meet here today to discuss the speakership nomination.

For Tilson it marks the opening skirmish in a battle for his political life. With the Democrats in probable control of the House, the nomination of Tilson for Speaker would mean nothing more than the retaining of what he has had for the last six years—floor leadership on the Republican side. Defeat for him would probably mean a political eclipse. Having given up a high place on the ways and means committee when he became floor leader, the best he could expect if he should not be successful in defending his present position is a place at the bottom of some minor committee.

Victory for Snell would give him a position of power and influence unequalled for many years in the House. He would become the recognized leader on the Republican side and at the same time hold the post of ranking Republican on the powerful rules committee. If defeated for the speakership nomination he would retain his place on the rules committee.

No political issue is involved in the Tilson-Snell contest. Both are loyal Republicans. Tilson entered public life as a young man in the Connecticut Legislature after he had worked his way through Yale. Snell had a successful business career before entering Congress, and is reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in the House.

With New England behind him, Tilson is said to have great strength among Western members also, and his friends assert that he is already assured of sufficient support to win him the nomination for Speaker. Snell holds virtually the entire New York and New Jersey delegations, and is hoping to win the Pennsylvania delegation. Several "favorite son" movements, like that of Representative Britten, in Illinois, are said to be strategic moves in favor of Snell.

The seven members of the Pennsylvania delegation from Philadelphia are supporting Snell at the behest of former Representative William S. Vare, who controls the Philadelphia Republican organization. Other Pennsylvania members supporting Tilson assert that the majority of the State delegation will stand behind him.

Tom Mix Reported Slightly Improved

Actor Still Critically Ill; Crisis Is Expected Tonight.

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A cheering report of improvement, slight but noticeable, in the condition of Tom Mix, star of the screen and circus, came today from the hospital where the famous cowboy lies dangerously ill from peritonitis.

An attending physician said tubes had been inserted to relieve gas pressure and that "some improvement resulted." However, the three surgeons at the bedside repeated that Mr. Mix yet had to pass the crisis, which, they believed, would come Friday night or Saturday morning.

A bulletin read: "Taking into consideration the pulse, temperature, respiration and wound drainage, we feel that Mr. Mix is holding his own, although he is still a most dangerously ill patient." Although Mix was denied all visitors, scores came to the hospital to make anxious inquiry and thousands sent letters or telegrams of consolence.

Former Chief of Police Convicted in Rum Case

Opelika, Ala., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—J. M. Blair, former chief of police of Phenix City, Ala.; four of his former patrolmen, and seven other persons were convicted of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws by a jury in United States District Court here today.

Walter E. Sherrer, former mayor of Phenix City, and Robert J. Flanders, sheriff of Calhoun County, Florida, and the remaining fifteen others on trial under joint indictments were acquitted.

LAVAL IS GIVEN DEPUTIES' VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Exhaustive Discussion of Trip to U. S. Precedes 325-150 Ballot.

VISIT HERE CALLED BEST PROPAGANDA

Premier Denies Linking of German Private Debts to Reparations.

Paris, Nov. 27 (Friday) (A.P.).—Premier Pierre Laval's foreign policy, which has been raked by opposition criticism of his trip to Washington and defended by government spokesmen during a debate occupying several sessions of the Chamber of Deputies, was vindicated in three separate votes early this morning.

The premier was accorded confidence by majorities running from 45 to 175. The best the government had expected was 30.

The votes, taken on questions of procedure which were made questions of confidence by the premier, were 325 to 240, 310 to 265, and 325 to 150.

They were the first expression by the chamber since M. Laval's detailed report on his Washington journey.

Entire Policy Assailed.

Every aspect of the Laval foreign policy, including war debts, disarmament and the premier's visit to Berlin as well as to Washington, was criticized by the opposition, but Laval answered all attacks with unchanging courtesy and good humor.

In the course of the debate the premier told the chamber his trip to Washington had been the best possible propaganda, since it was calculated to clear up certain misunderstandings in the minds of the American people.

"They no longer think over there that France wants to dominate other peoples," he said. "They know what sacrifices we have made in behalf of disarmament. They don't suspect us any longer, for they know that France is thinking only of maintaining her own security."

Private Debts Ruled Out.

One of the important points made by the premier was that his government was committed to settlements of German private debts by direct negotiations between creditors and debtors.

Leon Blum, Socialist deputy, had advocated linking those private debts with other questions to be gone into by the world bank committee which is to inquire into Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

The premier declared his government had refused to entertain any official discussion of such a plan. He did not mean, he explained, that the world bank would not have to consider private debts, since they would examine Germany's capacity to make payment. But the committee should not be concerned with the settlement of those debts.

Moratorium Is Cited.

M. Blum asserted that if the Hoover moratorium had been accepted immediately by France and had been followed by a policy of joint credits to Germany, the fall of the British pound would have been avoided.

"If we had adopted the Hoover moratorium purely and simply we would have lost the nonpostponable slice of reparations," Finance Minister Flandin replied.

The finance minister said the French government had proposed joint credits but America and England had refused to adhere.

Socialists Demand Priority Voting.

The voting upholding the government was taken on a demand by the Socialists for priority voting on a motion presented by them. M. Laval refused and made it a question of confidence. The premier adopted the same course on a similar demand for priority for a motion offered by the radicals.

Thereupon a motion by the government's supporters expressing con-

Federal Official's Plea Postpones Electrocution

Chicago, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—For the second time in two months, Frank Bell was snatched from the electric chair a few minutes before the time set for execution, when his attorneys secured a 30-day stay late tonight from Gov. Louis Emmerson.

Bell, who has resorted to one desperate measure after another to save his life, demanded by the State in expiation for the murder of Christ Patras, restauranteur, was granted special dispensation on a request by Murray W. Garsson, Assistant Secretary of the United States Department of Labor.

MacNider's Resignation Expected Next Spring

Mason City, Iowa, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Associates of Col. Hanford MacNider, Minister to Canada, today expressed the opinion that he would resign next spring. Col. MacNider, who is in Mason City with Mrs. MacNider to spend Thanksgiving with their families, declined to comment on his plans.

When he went to Canada, MacNidr was instructed to aid in getting an agreement on the St. Lawrence Waterway project. Since direct negotiations are under way, his friends said his mission as Minister was completed.

9 Indians Die in Cold; Snow Blankets West

Montana in Storm Grip; Five Texans Drown in Swollen Creek.

Kansas City, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—It was a white Thanksgiving Day in the West.

Snow blanketed a wide area from the Pacific Coast east to St. Louis, giving the traditional background for the holiday.

The snow scene was painted with a wide splash during the day across the Texas Panhandle, northern Oklahoma, Kansas, eastern Nebraska and Missouri for the first time this season.

A new storm was raging in Montana, which like other Rocky Mountain States, has been snow-covered since the first of the week. For the Pacific Coast there was a white coating in the high mountain regions and in eastern Washington.

The gayety lent to the Turkey Day festivities was not without its tragic side. More than a dozen deaths were charged to the snow and cold in the 1,000 Tribesmen Remain to Be Accounted For; Supplies Sent.

Gallup, N. Mex., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Mourning wails of the Zuni Indians and the sacred chants of their medicine men pierced the icy air of the Zuni Indian agency throughout Thanksgiving Day as bodies of their tribesmen were brought by relief parties from the snow-blanketed Malpais mesas of the reservation.

Nine Indians, four of them children, have been found in three camps, frozen to death by the storm which has kept the Indians snowbound in small villages and pinon picker camps for six days.

Pushing doggedly ahead against freeing winds and through deep snows, 50 horsemen trying to reach Santa Rita Mesa, where 500 Indians are snowbound, followed the same trail over which Coronado marched his men through a blizzard in the winter of 1540.

PRELIMINARY ARMS MEETING IS OPENED

War Within Ten Years Seen if Geneva Parley Fails; Session in Paris.

Paris, Nov. 26 (U.P.).—Opening with a flood of oratory that held delegates in their seats for ten hours, the preparatory disarmament conference was told today that unless the Geneva parley is successful in achieving its purposes, "war is inevitable within ten years."

"It is insufficient to disarm the military forces of the world," said Senator Boriello, of Italy. "We must disarm the international bankers. We must have tariff disarmament, just as we have reduction of weapons."

More than 500 delegates attended the first session in the Palais de la Mutualite, over which Viscount Cecil, of Chelwood, presided. Lord Cecil, in his opening speech, declared the world "will perish" unless disarmament comes soon.

The United States was represented by Alanson B. Hougton, former Ambassador to Germany.

Three major points of the resolutions passed last July will be discussed by the conference. They include:

1. The principle that disarmament is of vital importance not only for the organization of peace, but in the restoration of international confidence in economics and trade.

2. The necessity of instituting an international juridical organization, with force behind it, as an effective barrier against aggression.

3. The principle that serious disarmament is of equal importance to the clauses of the Versailles and other peace treaties, and that all nations subscribing to the treaties are honor bound to carry through their promises for disarmament.

100 Homeless as Fire Sweeps Mining Town

Hopewell, Pa., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A Thanksgiving morn fire early today swept this little mining town, leveling the business district and 21 dwellings and making more than 100 persons homeless.

Town officials estimated the damage at between $200,000 and $300,000.

Flight of Ruth Nichols Recognized as Record

Paris, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—The International Aeronautical Federation announced today that it recognized as a world's record nonstop, straightline flight for women that by Ruth Nichols, American flier, from Oakland, Calif., to Louisville, Ky., last October.

GRANDI LAUDS U. S. FOR ARMS ATTITUDE

Declares American Support Has Greatly Encouraged Disarmament Hopes.

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Hope for the world to start laying down arms finds "much encouragement" in America's support, Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, told the Foreign Policy Association today.

In an address, broadcast by radio, Signor Grandi declared that the world's pledge to disarm, implied in the peace treaties, must be fulfilled because it is "inconceivable" that the vanquished nations of the World War should remain "tied" while the victors had unrestricted freedom to increase military strength.

The foreign minister, a vigorous young war hero and right-hand man of Mussolini, pleaded the cause of peace and justice among nations as the only approach to solution of world economic and financial troubles.

He promised for Italy "all our strength and all our heart" at the Geneva disarmament conference in February in support of American efforts to reduce the dangers of war.

Nothing "spectacular," he said, should be expected, but "we, for our part, will be satisfied if it (the conference) succeeds in stopping the competition of armaments and in making a first start toward reduction."

He referred to the long-standing naval differences between France and Italy, saying he is still wishing and hoping for a final settlement. This, he indicated, must be based on Italy's demand for theoretical parity, but at the lowest possible level.

Signor Grandi gave three points as the guideposts of Italian policy along the disarmament road "towward progress." They were:

1. Nations signing the peace treaties or the league covenant make a "solemn pledge" to disarm, definitely implied in the preliminary disarmament of the vanquished powers.

2. Security for a nation is possible only through disarmament and arbitration. Security through military

Nicaraguan Vice Consul Held on Liquor Charge

Los Anegles, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Leopoldo Lacyo, 42, vice consul of Nicaragua in Los Angeles, was arrested during the night by Federal prohibition agents, who said he had sold half a dozen bottles of liquor to a friend. He was held under bail of $2,000.

Peter Yelez, a radio salesman, was arrested as the purchaser of the liquor. "The man is my friend," Lacyo said, "and he wanted the liquor for a party. I think it was a frame-up."

Hinkler Thought Over Sea On Brazil-to-Africa Hop

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Bert Hinkler, who once held the speed record for a flight from England to Australia, presumably was out over the South Atlantic tonight on his way from Natal to Africa alone.

First word that the flight had started came in an Aero Postal message from Natal that Hinkler had taken off there yesterday for Dakar, Senegal, French West Africa, and had not been heard from since the start.

Capt. Hinkler made the Australian flight in fifteen days three years ago, and the mark stood until Charles Kingsford-Smith covered the distance in ten days last year.

In October the captain flew from New York to Kingston, Jamaica, in 17 hours 45 minutes, a record for that distance, and came on down across the Caribbean to Natal.

Should he succeed in reaching Dakar from there he would be the first man to fly across the South Atlantic from west to east. The distance is something more than 1,800 miles. Dakar is at the tip of Cape Verde on the African west coast.

Foreign Section Is Hit in Attack on Japanese Territory.

Chang's Forces Reported Moving From Chinchow Ready for Battle.

Tokyo, Friday, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—A Rengo (Japanese) news agency dispatch from Tientsin, China, this morning said the Italian garrison was responding to a Chinese bombardment laid down on the Italian concession soon after the Chinese had attacked the Japanese concession.

Japan's high military command asked the cabinet for permission to rush reinforcements, but the ministry refused.

The government took the position that the Tientsin disorders had no conection with what is going on in Manchuria and it was said authoritatively that the outbreak would be handled as a separate matter.

The military authorities decided reinforcements were necessary after the war office received information that the Chinese had attacked the Japanese concession.

Chinese Are Blamed.

The Tientsin outbreak caused a tremendous stir in Tokyo just at a time when official circles had declared there was greatest hope of a solution of the Manchurian question.

The war office charged the Chinese had started the attack.

Commanding Officer Kashii, in charge of the Tientsin garrison, reported the Chinese violated the truce of November 15 by launching an assault on the Japanese concession without warning.

"Whereupon the Japanese garrison exercised its right of self-defense, affording protection to the Japanese residents in the settlement," Kashii said in a message to the war office.

Consul General Shukei Kuwashima of Tientsin reported to the government that the Chinese attack on the Japanese concession had been deliberately planned and executed by the Chinese police under the pretext of clearing the district adjacent to the concession of bands of irregular Chinese soldiers.

Situation Out of Control.

The police, the consul general said, were taking advantage of the disbandment yesterday of the volunteer corps which was organized after the outbreak November 11 as a reinforcement for the Japanese garrison of 400 soldiers.

The consul general said the Japanese were using rifles and one-pounders in the conflict and that the situation was going from bad to worse.

"It is now beyond my power to control the soldiers," he said, suggesting that reinforcements be sent and that steamers be provided to transport Japanese subjects to Dairen, Manchuria.

The Japanese population of Tientsin is about 6,000.

One Riot Quelled.

Tientsin, Nov. 26 (U.P.) A Japanese artillery bombardment at 10 p. m. brought to an end apother Chinese riot in which the foreign concessions were threatened by hordes of disbanded Chinese soldiers during the evening.

Sporadic firing by the rioters opened at 8:30 p. m. and grew in intensity until the Japanese troops were called into action.

More than 30 small shells were fired in the direction of the mobs, which dispersed under the attack.

Hsinmin, Manchuria, Friday, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Advices received by Japanese officials today said the vanguard of Chinese forces massed at Chinchow were advancing northeastward, presumably toward the Japanese forces in south Manchuria.

The advices said the vanguard included bandits. The troops of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, nominal ruler of Manchuria, have been concentrating in large numbers at Chinchow recently. The Japanese have alleged they constituted a menace and must be dispersed, but recent peace negotiations were supposed to have alleviated the danger of a clash.

The Hsinmin area was disturbed by the reports.

U. S. CALLED IN GRIP OF SPIRITUAL SLUMP

Bishop Freeman Says Cure Is Nation-Wide Revival of Religious Faith.

The United States today is in a state of spiritual depression, and the remedy is a Nation-wide revival of religion, according to the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, in his annual Thanksgiving Day sermon in Washington Cathedral yesterday.

The service, held in Bethlehem Chapel, where Woodrow Wilson and other noted men are buried, was broadcast over the coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Special prayers appropriate to the day and in behalf of those in need or distress were offered. Music was furnished by the Cathedral male choir. Assisting Bishop Freeman were the Very Rev. G. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington; Canon Peter, and the Rev. Raymond L. Wolven, canon of Washington Cathedral.

In his sermon Bishop Freeman emphasized economic conditions, lawlessness, and the spiritual significance of the business depression. He said in part:

Prosperity Dulls Finer Feelings.

"A nation is bidden to its thanksgiving. A custom long observed among us once again becomes our practice. Rich and poor, in homes of every class and kind, are asked to recognize our common fellowship and to acknowledge our common obligations to the Giver of every good and perfect gift. Irrespective of station, prosperity or adversity, we are called on as a great family to remember with gratitude the favor and protecting care of Almighty God.

"The call of the less fortunate is finding a response and in our individual and corporate life there are signs that men are thinking more deeply than heretofore about their obligations. Where a period of prosperity dulled our finer feelings and sensibilities, rendering us selfish and insular, a common misfortune with its accomplishments of widespread distress and suffering has made us sensitive and responsive to the ills of others. May we not discover in this one of the causes for our thanksgiving? If we can note an improvement in our outlook, if we can find that consciences are more sensitive, hearts and hands more ready to respond to the needs of others, we have cause for gratitude and praise.

Need of Revival of Religion.

"Above all else, this Nation needs a deep, penetrating, character-forming revival of religion. It must be a revival that touches with its revivifying and renewing power ever phase and aspect of our life. It must mean better and fairer relations between employer and employe in shop and workroom, more wholesome and cleanly conditions in our domestic and social life, and more equity and justice in judicial procedure. It must bring more of high-minded patriotism and self-giving in the administration of the affairs of the State and Nation; less of greed and oppression, of graft and corruption in all human relations; in fine, a truer approximation of the Christian ideal of living.

"Let us be solemnly admonished on this, our national Thanksgiving Day, that we will with consistency and renewed consecration set ourselves to the greatest task that lies before us, or surrender ultimately to forces that will make havoc of our institutions. America holds a proud and enviable position among the nations of the earth today. If she would preserve to posterity the institutions she holds most dearly, let her be aroused from her dream of a new era of prosperity and gird herself to a task that will test her moral courage and her spiritual worth to the utmost.

Determinant of Stability.

"That the relaxing of all wholesome religious practices can tend to advance our condition and to insure to us a larger freedom and a greater security will be doubted, even by those who make no profession of religion. In our scheme of life religion does occupy a conspicuous and essential place. Said a keen observer to us lately: 'The building of a great cathedral in such a day as this seems strange and anomalous, especially when the drift is so distinctly away from the church and the observance of religious obligations.'

"We do not accept this observation as accurate, but if it is even partially so, it reflects a state of mind and a condition that should give us more concern than the present dislocation of industry with all its attendant ills. That the morale of a people is grounded in a religious conviction, and that it is a vital element in shaping their conduct is clearly evident. The morality of a people determines their habits and their stability. Of late we have seemed to think that we can get on without these elements in our life. Where they are not recognized a situation inevitably ensues that issues in disorder, lawlessness and criminality, and may ultimately lead to conditions wherein life itself is insecure.

"We can not buy our peace or our permanence in the open markets of the world where we freely purchase our luxuries. Restricted as our religious institutions are in their operation, ineffective as they may be by reason of the limitations of those who administer them, they can not be disregarded or ignored when we are reckoning our safeguards. The Nation's first line of defense is the moral character of its citizens. Let this be undervalued or indifferently regarded and we not only lower our standards, we imperil our most cherished institutions. No thoughtful or reflective citizen can lightly esteem signs that the very criticalness of this period makes evident.

"Our national situation can not be regarded as unrelated to like conditions that prevail throughout the world. There are malevolent forces that avowedly design the breaking down of our institutions. They are aided and abetted by a propaganda working ceaselessly, zealously and covertly, night and day. They reckon not with religion, it is a spent force; life has no sanctities, no decencies, no binding marital ties, no code of ethics, no reference—no God. To fulfill the lusts of the flesh, to abolish all initiative, all attainment, all honor, these they would have us recognize as the new order."

2 Are Held on Charges Of Liquor Possession

Members of the special vice squad, led by Sergt. N. O. Holmes, entered an apartment at 1319 Vermont avenue northwest with a warrant and arrested two men on charges of illegal possession of alleged whisky, six quarts of which were seized.

Those charged were Hammond W. Gregory, 32 years old, and Robert G. Beck, 27 years old. Both said they lived at the Vermont avenue address.

ship of state is sound and will outride the storm and sail on to her appointed port." He urged courage and faith in America, but declared that "faith in ourselves alone is not enough; we must have faith in God. But we need more than faith in ourselves and faith in God. We need faith in one another, and that goes for nations as well as for individuals."

Following the service President and Mrs. Hoover returned to the White House where they sat down to a real old-fashioned turkey dinner. In the afternoon Mrs. Hoover attended a tea at Walter Reed Hospital, and in the evening she and Mr. Hoover had another turkey dinner at the White House, with a few friends present. Early in the afternoon, before dining, President Hoover put in an hour's work in his office.

Mrs. Hoover Greets Veterans.

At the hospital Mrs. Hoover extended Thanksgiving greetings to ill and wounded war veterans. The occasion was the annual reception of the Gray Ladies, trained volunteer hospital workers of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Hoover, gowned in a black velvet suit with a light satin blouse, smiled graciously as she stood in the receiving line and dispensed cheer as the long parade of wheel chairs rolled past. The reception, which was given for all of the patients who were physically able to attend, was followed by a dance in the Red Cross Building.

"Isn't it lovely—such a charming room!" Mrs. Hoover exclaimed as she was escorted to the reception by Surgeon General Patterson of the Army and Mrs. Henry Rae, Sewickley, Pa., war-time field director of the Gray Ladies. Mrs. Margaret H. Lower, present field director, stood at Mrs. Hoover's side in the receiving line, while from a balcony an orchestra played war-time melodies. Mrs. Hoover stayed at the hospital almost an hour chatting with veterans.

Stimson Watches Far East.

Secretary Stimson devoted a large part of his day to keeping in touch with the Manchurian situation through his office.

Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur spent the day in Richmond, where Secretary Wilbur was to deliver an address. Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Gann dined at home, as did also Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown, Secretary Adams and his family, Secretary Mellon and his children, Secretary of War Hurley and his family, Chief Justice Holmes and all of his associate justices except Justice Harlan Stone who went to New York, and most of the members of the Senate or House who have arrived in Washington in preparation for the coming session.

The Pan-American diplomatic delegation attended a special Thanksgiving mass at St. Patrick's Church, where the Rev. Dr. Fulton J. Sheen, of Catholic University, preached a sermon in which he described disarmament as "an economic move."

Destitute Are Gorged.

The public at large celebrated Thanksgiving Day in the time-honored fashion. Turkey apparently still holds its own as the feature of the menu, but chicken delighted plenty of palates, and in many homes the big attraction was the duck that the master of the household shot with his own hands somewhere in the Potomac marshes.

Several thousand of the city's destitute and needy were gorged with Thanksgiving delicacies at various missions, practically all of which found the demand for assistance considerably larger that in past years.

Central Union Mission, which last year fed 300 men, yesterday served 437, in addition to 27 women who were taken around to private homes and treated to Thanksgiving dinners by hosts who had asked the mission to send them destitute women as guests for dinner. The mission also provided special turkey dinners for 40 children in its emergency home. The men, however, dined on roast pork.

At the jail, Col Peak fed his boarders on roast beef and apple pie as the pieces de resistance. And as it happened to be visiting day, inmates had something else to be thankful for, as they welcomed their wives, sweethearts, sisters, mothers and other friends and relations in the afternoon.

400 Children Served.

No special preparations were made for observation of Thanksgiving Day at the Municipal Lodging House, and only meals served were the customary breakfast in the morning and supper at night. The lodging house chef, however, did spread himself in preparing an exceptionally attractive meal for 55 applicants who were served in the evening and in increasing the quantity to the point where there was all the food any of the guests could eat.

More than 400 children, picked up in poorer sections of the District, were given a chicken dinner at headquarters of the Volunteers of America at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest and after they had indulged in all the dressing, and pie, and ice cream, and all the other trimmings they possibly could carry, the youngsters pushed back their chairs and enjoyed an entertainment program prepared by Lieut. Col. Frank H. Wise, regional director of the Volunteers.

In addition to those who were fed at various institutions, thousands of other destitute and hungry persons were given cause to appreciate true significance of Thanksgiving Day when they were recipients of baskets of edibles distributed by institutions or private individuals.

3,842 Men Listed In Virginia Guard

Lack of Suitable Armories in Certain Areas Is Cited in Report.

(Associated Press.)

The Virginia National Guard, composed of 3,842 officers and enlisted men, cost the Government $688,397 last year.

A report of expenditures and obligations aggregating that figure was made yesterday to Secretary Hurley, of the War Department, by Maj. Gen. William G. Everson, chief of the militia bureau, recently retired. The report said the Virginia guard lacked 128 men of reaching its authorized strength.

Quoting from the report of the Third Corps Area commander, Everson said there was a lack of suitable armories "in certain localities" in Virginia, but there were good prospects for State aid in constructing armories.

Mrs. Fall and other members of the family, here to be near him during deliberations of the Federal Parole Board in Washington on his application, were denied admittance to the prison.

Sellman Relatives Share $1,200,000

Winchester, Va., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Relatives of Mrs. Annie Kiger Sellman who died here last Saturday, will share in the distribution of her $1,200,000 estate.

The will was probated yesterday. The will bequeathed $25,000 to each of her two sisters, Mrs. Susan F. Van Fossen, Winchester, and Mrs. Martha L. Tapscott, Berryville, and a $5,000 trust fund for a niece, Miss Agnes Tapscott, Berryville. Another niece, Mrs. Annie L. Beardsworth, Raleigh, N. C., was left $12,000.

A trust of $150,000 was set up for Mrs. Mary Lucas Sellman, widow of Mrs. Sellman's son, J. Archer Sellman, who was killed in an automobile accident last August A son, J. Lawrence Sellman, and a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Ridgeley, of Poland Park, were left $100,000 each in addition to other bequests. The remainder was placed in trust with instructions that the income was to be divided equally between the son and the daughter, after bequests to the Salvation Army, the Florence Crittenton Mission, the Home for Incurables, and the Children's Hospital School, were made. Mrs. Sellman was the widow of James L. Sellman, Baltimore banker and art collector.

SIX CHURCHES UNITE IN OFFERING THANKS

Rev. R. J. Clinchy Delivers Sermon, Urging New Spirit of Life.

Six prominent Washington churches joined yesterday in observance of Thanksgiving Day at a union service in the Universalist National Memorial Church, with the principal sermon delivered by the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

In his talk Mr. Clinchy declared that this is an era "in which man must be called forth upon a crusade for the creation of a new spirit of life which will constitute the moral and spiritual atmosphere in which a new race of men and women will live. It is a time when new imperatives of life are fashioned, intangible, but most real, compulsions of life which formulate our thinking and our behavior into realms which lift and inspire men to new dreams and deeds."

Mr. Clinchy pointed out that "we have the desire for peace and good will and the longing to be preserved from the horrors of war, and out of that desire we have formulated institutions and treaties designed to preserve peace. There is nothing wrong with these institutions or treaties, for they are the highest aspirations of mankind and we may thank God for them.

"But they are weak because we have not created an atmosphere in which they can live. We have treaties and pacts of peace endeavoring to exist in a world which still is living in an atmosphere of selfish conflict. The new imperative of a will to peace has not been created into such power that we have ceased to believe in the final use of selfish triumph."

The Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church, was in charge of the service which began with an organ prelude. The Rev. J. J. Rives, of Francis Asbury Methodist Church, read the Thanksgiving proclamation, while the Rev. Harvey Baker Smith, of Columbia Heights Christian Church, delivered the scripture lesson. Prayer was led by the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, of All Souls' Unitarian Church. The National Capital Choir, under direction of Albert W. Harned, organist and director, furnished the musical program. Churches participating in the program included the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, All Souls' Unitarian Church, Columbia Heights Christian Church, Francis Asbury Methodist Church, and Universalist National Memorial Church.

Cecil Assault Case Jury Is Discharged

Man Tried in Easton Will Be Allowed Liberty Pending Retrial.

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., Nov. 26.—The jury in the case of Samuel R. Logan, charged with criminal assault upon Sarah Harris, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Harris, who lives near Northeast, in Cecil County, on trial in the circuit court for Talbot County, was discharged last night.

It was learned that on the first ballot five of the jury stood for conviction on the first count in the indictment, which would carry with it hanging; five were for guilty on the second count, which would carry with it imprisonment for a number of years, and two were for conviction on the fourth count, which would carry with it a short term in jail. A number of ballots were taken which stood ten to two for guilty on the second count, which was the way the jury stood when it was discharged.

Canadian Ford Factory Will Omit Dividend

East Windsor, Ontario, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—The Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., informed stockholders today that the regular December semiannual dividend would not be paid.

"In view of prevailing world conditions and the fact the operations of the company have been adversely affected throughout the year as a result of curtailment of general business activity," a letter to stockholders said, "it is considered inadvisable to disburse the regular dividend at this time."

salesman with a talking picture outfit to display the improved product. In spite of a generally declining price level, the new ring retailed successfully at 10 cents more than the old, the highest prices at which it ever has sold.

A Midwestern cereal firm reducted overhead appreciably by establishing a six-hour day. The plan has increased production by reducing incentives for overtime and eliminated night work at higher wages per hour.

An automobile manufacturer sold almost three times as many cars in the first half of this year, as compared with 1930, by presenting a striking new model, backed by "intensive and steady advertising."

A wholesale grocer in the Pacific Northwest improved profits by lopping off the expensive accounts of more than half his customers. Reducing open accounts from 550 to 175, he concentrated on volume, quick turn-over and no credit losses.

Scientific market analysis increased profits in seventeen different lines, including textiles, industrial machinery, heating equipment and radio. Fourteen concerns fared better by improving the quality of their product and maintaining prices while only four reported increased profits due to price reductions.

Holland Returns Letter, Calling Kaiser Unknown

Titanic world events of this twentieth century have indelibly inscribed the identity of "Kaiser Wilhelm, II, Emperor of Germany," in universal consciousness. However, Dutch postal authorities, adhering rigidly to the mandate of the German peoples and not to the voice of memory, have caused a missive—sent by a Washingtonian to the former bearer of that proud title—to be sent back to the writer.

A letter addressed by a Washington man to "Kaiser Wilhelm, II, Emperor of Germany, Doorn, Holland," has been returned here with the notation by mail clerks of the Netherlands "Addressee unknown." The private-life cognomen of the once kaiser is Wilhelm Hohenzollern, and it is presumed that the prim Dutch postal code demands such a designation in the addressing of mail to the last of that dynasty at his retreat in Holland.

THANKSGIVING DAY ATTITUDE DECRIED

Regarded as Occasion for Recreation, Rabbi Says at Union Service.

Thanksgiving for the average person has become "merely an occasion for a turkey dinner, and a dance or a ball game," Rabbi J. T. Loeb yesterday told a joint Thanksgiving assembly of Washington's Hebrew congregations at the Adas Israel Synagogue.

Deviating from the routine feast of the Hebrew calendar, the congregations met as one, with a number of rabbis participating in the service.

Opening prayer was by Rabbi A. Waltman, and concluding prayer and benediction, by Rabbi Abram Simon. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz read the service. Song service was chanted by Cantor Louis Novick.

Lamenting the fact that Thanksgiving today is generally looked upon as a day of recreation, Rabbi Loeb, in the principal address, declared that "in this manner the pure, plain significance of the term is entirely lost sight of, and is void of meaning or purpose."

"There is an ideal in Thanksgiving by which we can realize the great good that comes to our lot on all occasions," he said.

"And happy is he that can set a proper value to life, and learn through the means of Thanksgiving that life is not a 'lie' as declared recently by a rich American producer, prior to his death; and that life is not a 'ticklish business,' as Schopenhauer puts it in his crude, pessimistic philosophy; but that it is a heavenly gift that should be ever cherished and revered."

He said that Thanksgiving "if properly nourished and maintained would spare the world from many of its gravest ills." There would be no depression or warfare "had the sense of gratitude and due evaluation of life's blessings been sufficiently developed in the hearts of man," he added.

Car Driver Sought As Soldier Is Hurt

Man Reported Crash, but Police Failed to Ask for His Name.

Marlboro police last night were seeking a stranger who strolled into their station, reported an automobile accident in which he was one of the principals, and strolled out again without leaving his name.

Leo Alexander, 22 years old, Lansford, Pa., soldier attached to the Army post at Fort Washington, was seriously injured when his automobile collided with the missing man's car near Oxon Hill on the road to Washington.

Alexander was removed to Casualty Hospital in an auto driven by William C. Abel, of Indianhead. Casualty physicians, after a preliminary examination, said he was suffering from internal injuries. They dispatched him at once to Walter Reed. Marlboro police pleaded guilty to not asking the stranger his name.

Man Is Injured by Auto On Its Way to Hospital

An automobile bearing an emergency case to a hospital last night struck and knocked down Fred Limbol, 35 years old, of 1205 Twentieth street northwest, as he was crossing Connecticut avenue at K street northwest. The man was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts about the hands and face.

Limbol was struck by the automobile of Walter Reed, colored, 27 years old, of 1724 Tenth street northwest, who was taking Flora Maloy, 19 years old, of 1304 Riggs place northwest, to the same hospital. Reed was charged with driving with bad brakes.

however, both occupants of the automobile had been thrown out.

The man's body was catapulted from the automobile 300 feet from the crossing, while the woman's was 90 feet farther down the track. Their faces were badly mangled, making identification difficult, but neither was burned. They seemed to have suffered fractures of nearly all their bones, onlookers said.

Survivors of Victims.

A native of Culpeper, Va., Miss Rogers had been employed here for some time in a women's apparel shop at 1112 G street northwest.

She is survived by her father, James B. Rogers, two sisters, Margaret and Elizabeth Rogers, and two brothers, James H. and Stanley Rogers, all of this city.

Milstead, who had been with the Cafritz Co. for about six years, is survived by two brothers, Bennie, of Cottage City, and Jessup, of Indianhead, Md., and two sisters. One of the latter, Mrs. Barney Grinder, lives at Indianhead, Md.

The bodies of both victims were removed from Marlboro last night to the undertaking establishment of Mrs. James T. Ryan, 317 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

BRITAIN PLANS DUTY FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Tariff to Be Proposed This Week; Government to Urge Growing of Wheat.

London, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Customs duties on agricultural imports are next in line in the new tariff policy launched by the British government this week, with the levy of 50 per cent duties on certain classes of manufactured articles.

On Monday, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald informed the House of Commons today, a financial resolution will be presented to authorize an agricultural customs levy.

Sir John Gilmour, Minister of Agriculture, informed the members that the government also had decided to adopt the quota system on home-grown wheat of milling quality, and to introduce legislation in connection therewith in time to make the plan effective for next year's crop.

There also will be a measure to reduce imports of "certain nonessential articles of agricultural produce" by means of tariff levies, he said.

He declined to go into detail when a member asked whether the new levies would cover canned goods, and whether any decision had been reached regarding extension of the quota principle to Empire wheat. He suggested that the House wait for details until the government's bill is presented.

No government subsidy will be involved in the wheat quota plan, he said, nor does the government intend that the measure should encourage the extension of wheat cultivation to land unsuitable for that purpose.

(Associated Press.)

American wheat farmers probably would not be noticeably affected by the imposition of a British milling quota requiring 15 per cent of domestic cereal be used in milling mixtures.

British farmers, it is estimated here, produce about 15 per cent of the wheat now consumed in the British Isles. A 15 per cent quota would merely mean that it would remove those farmers' dependence upon world prices and insure disposal of their entire production.

As it is, British farmers take the price that is offered for world wheat on the Liverpool market in competition with the grain of all nations. They grow a soft wheat which does not make a satisfying bread unless richly mixed with foreign growths.

DEPUTIES GIVE LAVAL VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

fidence was adopted 325 to 150, many radicals abstaining.

"The best way to cure this economic crisis," the premier said, "is by maintaining confidence in the given word of nations and respect for signatures.

"I can understand Germany's misery, but if France had been Germany's debtor what would they have done? I think I have a right to talk like this without hurting the feelings of the German people."

Berenger Wins Post.

The cordiality with which he was received was gratifying, and the talks with President Hoover were "fruitful in positive results," he reported.

He did not pledge the word of France to anything, he said, declaring that he never would do so without first consulting the chamber.

Henry Berenger, former ambassador to the United States, was elected chairman of the Senate foreign affairs committee today, succeeding the late Victor Berard.

Former Premier Herriot said he would not be a candidate for the chairmanship of the foreign affairs committee in the lower house, leaving the way open for the selection of Count Stanislas de Castellane, new vice president of the chamber.

Fight in Lobby Averted.

M. Herriot proved himself a real peacemaker when a row threatened in the lobbies during the recess.

Senator Henri De Jouvenel, one of the principal participators in the international peace conference which opened here today, and Henry Franklin-Bouillon, Nationalist deputy, were in heated discussion and about to come to blows when M. Herriott bulged his bulk between them.

When the sitting was resumed M. Franklin-Bouillon attacked Albert H. Wiggin, New York banker, who presided over the committee of the Bank for International Settlements that investigated Germany's finances last summer.

Banker Wiggin Scored.

"Mr. Wiggin," the deputy declared, "pushed credits on to Germany with his own hands."

M. Franklin-Bouillon's language against Germany was so violent that Premier Laval intervened, telling him it was inadmissible. The deputy returned that in 1917, M. Laval took part in the Stockholm Socialist conference to bring about a premature peace, and therefore he was accepting no lessons in patriotism from the premier.

The presence of Leopold Von Hoesch, German Ambassador, in the diplomatic gallery prompted M. Laval's admonition.

HARLAN STRIKE FOES BEATEN, MAN HOLDS

Murder Prosecution Witness Says Accused Signed Oath in Blood.

Mount Sterling, Ky., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A story of striking miners' meetings where oaths were signed in blood and men who refused to go on certain missions turned their faces to the walls so as not to recognize those who volunteered, was related by a prosecution witness here today in the trial of W. B. Jones. Charges that men were whipped for working after the strike also were brought into the testimony.

Jones, secretary of the local miners' union at Evarts in Harlan County, was the first of a score of defendants to be tried for the Evarts clash of last May where four men died in a fifteen-minute battle with deputy sheriffs. A previous trial, that of William Burnett, a miner, charged with murder in an Evarts clash last April, resulted in acquittal last Saturday.

J. M. Cawood, 39, who said he was employed by the Black Mountain Coal Corporation in Harlan County, testified that at one meeting after the strike, which was called in protest against wage cuts last spring, a man named Charlie Carpenter was brought in and three switches were worn out upon him because he had been accused of working in violation of the strike order.

"They whipped him just like they were horsewhipping him," the witness continued. "He went down on his knees and W. B. Jones struck him in the face with his hand or fist and then switched him."

At another meeting, Cawood said, he heard Jones say his "happiest day" would be when he could "walk through the blood of Jim Daniels and E. B. Childers." Jones is charged with murder of Daniels, a deputy sheriff, who was killed in the Evarts clash. Childers is superintendent of the Black Mountain Coal Corporation Mine and was a witness today.

Cawood said that at a meeting at Evarts a group was chosen to seize a wholesale house in Harlan as a means of attracting the attention of Gov. Flem D. Sampson to the strike. Men who refused turned their faces to the wall so they could not recognize those who went out. The seizure, however, was never made.

Charges that deputy sheriffs wore metal breastplates and that they should be shot in the head also were ascribed to Jones. When the men decided to take what was termed the "black oath," Cawood said Jones remarked that he had "signed his own name where it was required and had signed it in his own blood."

Cawood said Jones had "an M. M. Luger and a high-powered rifle" and when the defense objected to questions about rifles on the grounds that the witness was not an arms expert, Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt overruled it with the comment: "Well, he lives in Harlan County; I guess he knows."

When Washington Was Younger—No. 118

MEMORIES of the Spanish-American War will be brought to mind by this photograph, taken on December 28, 1899, at Arlington National Cemetery, by L. C. Handy.

It was the occasion of the burial of the dead from the battleship Maine, blown up in the harbor of Havana. Since this ceremony a memorial to the dead of the Maine has been erected, the chief feature of which is a portion of one of the masts of the old battleship.

BROOKHART DODGING ISSUE, COLE WRITES

Intra-Iowa Letter Battle on Thompson Alliance Turns Caustic.

(Associated Press.)

The intra-Iowa Republican battle of Cole versus Brookhart was resumed yesterday with the former once more on the attack.

Representative Cole demanded again that Senator Brookhart make public correspondence he had with William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, in reference to an Illinois-Iowa allegiance to support Senator Hiram Johnson for the Presidency.

Cole wrote that Brookhart was "trying to make me, instead of your unpublished letter, the issue."

His original demand was described by Brookhart as "insulting and discourteous." The senator attributed Cole's interest to influence by "the Wall Street crowd" and asked "Did Andy Mellon or Bob Lucas (executive director of the Republican national committee) tell you to do it?"

Asserting he knew no one in Wall Street to ask advice from, Cole said: "The 'financial crowd" and Wall Street are merely your own obsessions, a sort of lunatic fringe with which you can whip yourself into a passion. A bogey which you have paraded all your political life."

He added that had he felt the necessity of consulting anyone, "I would have chosen Andrew W. Mellon rather than William Hale Thompson."

HOUSE DEMOCRATS PLAN POST DIVISION

Chairmanship Distribution Is Mapped; Republican Leaders Battle.

(Associated Press.)

In accord on their organization program, the Democrats have laid plans to assume control of the incoming house.

Representative Garner, of Texas, has the unanimous support of the party membership of 218 for Speaker. Representative Rainey, of Illinois, appears to have clinched the second most important post—floor leadership. Representative O'Connor, of New York, is Rainey's only opponent.

The powerful appropriations committee is slated to be headed by Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, while the chairmanship of the important ways and means committee is to go to Representative Collier, of Mississippi. Representative Pou, of North Carolina, dean of Democrats, will head the rules committee, which guides the legislative program.

Republicans Are Split.

The chairmanships of the other major committees are expected to go to the ranking Democrats in the last Congress, except where changes are desired by the individuals affected. The Northern States are to have about 20 chairmanships, the Southern and border States about 26.

While the Democrats gained more confidence after capturing the Fourteenth Texas District Tuesday at a special election, the Republicans are split over their speakership nomination contest.

Representatives Tilson, of Connecticut, and Snell, of New York, the outstanding contenders, both are claiming the nomination. Half a dozen other candidates are in the race.

The action of the Pennsylvania delegation at its caucus this afternoon is expected to be a large factor in determining which of the two will be chosen at the party's conference Monday. This powerful State group of 33, the largest in the House, is divided.

Tomorrow the Illinois Republican delegation will caucus to determine upon its choice. At a meeting yesterday, the Minnesota delegation selected Representative Clague, of their State, for the nomination. Others have State support.

Contest for Leadership.

The contest is actually for the administration party leadership in event of Democratic organization, which now appears almost certain. Tilson, floor leader in the last three Congresses, bases a contention he should continue leader should he lose the speakership nomination upon the action of the conference last spring. Then he was renamed leader and the late Nicholas Longworth was again nominated for speaker.

Snell, chairman of the last rules committee, maintains that if he receives the nomination, he would become minority leader under Democrati control.

The Democrats hope to increase their slight majority in the election in the Fifth New Jersey District, Tuesday, to fill the vacancy created by the death of the late Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, Republican. Reports received here indicate the Democratic candidate has a lead over the Republican.

Victory in New Jersey would make the line-up, Democrats, 219; Republicans, 214; Farmer Laborites 1; vacancies, 1.

Pantages Jurors Admit Deadlock

Credibility of Witnesses Is Issue in Theater Man's Case.

Los Angeles, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A member of the jury considering the charges of criminal attack made against Alexander Pantages, vaudeville impressario, indicated to the court today that the jurors were deadlocked on the question of the credibility of witnesses.

Shortly after the jurors went to their chambers they asked permission to return to court and refresh their memories on the testimony of certain witnesses. The court consented.

Shortly after 3 p. m. the jurors were taken to a hotel for a Thanksgiving dinner. They had been out 45 hours at that time. The court gave them five hours to rest before resuming their deliberations.

Archbishop Curley Is Elevated by Pope

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Archbishop Michael J. Curley, who came to Baltimore ten years ago from the diocese of St. Augustine, Fla., today received papal felicitations and word of his elevation as assistant to the pontifical throne. The position ranks him immediately after the cardinals.

The occasion of the message was his tenth anniversary as Archbishop of Baltimore. The message was signed by the papal secretary of the state, Cardinal Pacelli, and commended the archbishop for his "pastoral zeal in the diocese of St. Augustine and the archdiocese of Baltimore."

Lya De Putti's Condition Still Extremely Grave

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Lya de Putti's condition continued critical today, with physicians remaining in constant attendance. The film star is suffering from pneumonia and blood poisoning which set in after a chicken bone had been removed from her throat.

Oxygen is being used to keep Miss de Putti alive. Doctors said her condition is extremely critical.

Apportionment Act Writ to Be Asked

Ruling Minnesota Law Is Valid May Be Taken to Supreme Court.

St. Paul, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Minnesota's reapportionment act, vetoed by Gov. Floyd D. Olson, but found valid by the Minnesota Supreme Court, may be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States tomorrow.

Representative John A. Weeks and associated attorneys opposing the recent legislative act, which would reduce Minnesota's congressional representation from ten to nine, said today they would ask the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, either tomorrow or as soon as Yale Smiley, one of the leaders against the reapportionment, is able to leave a hospital.

The writ would call for review of Minnesota Supreme Court records by the high tribunal. Weeks and his colleagues believed this would prove more effective than a direct appeal and more likely to obtain a hearing

65 Convicts in Alabama Freed on Thanksgiving

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Staked by the State to $10 each and new clothing, 65 convicts with meritorious records stepped from the shadows of Alabama prison walls today into the bright sunlight of Thanksgiving Day with the admonition of a generous governor to "make good citizens."

Touched by the spirit of the holiday, Gov. B. M. Miller signed paroles for these prisoners whose records were shown to be "excellent" and with the break of dawn, the gates swung open and they were away to their new freedom.

Coast Guard Watches Game Poachers Now

(United Press.)

The Coast Guard, which chases rum-runners in addition to saving lives, has been given the added duty of apprehending hunters who shoot ducks and geese out of season in violation of the migratory bird act.

The Agriculture Department announced the Coast Guard is instructing all its Atlantic and Gulf Coast stations to report all violations coming to their attention. The season from New York south on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, except Florida, runs form November 16 to December 16. The Florida season, likewise 30 days, opened November 20.

mountain regions and a party of five motorists drowned in a rain swollen creek near Tyler, Tex.

John Moody, a sheepherder, was found dead from exposure near Glenrock, Wyo.

Among the missing were Robert Gordon and Billie Haines, 15-year-old boys, who were last seen leaving for school Tuesday. Searching parties combed snowdrifts near Columbia Falls, Mont., for the youths.

Blizzard conditions were reported around Bozeman, Mont., and many highways were blocked in that State.

A flock of 900 sheep wandered onto thin ice on a reservoir near Matla, Mont., during a snowstorm and drowned.

Blinding snow and low clouds caused cancellation of numerous air mail and air passenger flights, but some planes got through in the afternoon.

Most of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Northern Utah and a good portion of New Mexico were under from a few inches to two and three feet of snow in the mountains, with much deeper deposits where there was drifting.

Minnesota and North Dakota were virtually all snow-covered, but there was no further fall today.

The unexpected storm in the vicinity of Kansas City found an American Beauty rose blooming under heavy swirls of snow in the garden of Mrs. J. T. Bradshaw. Apple trees near Columbus, Kas., bore both blossoms and trimmings of snow. Temperatures were not severe.

Snow fell most of the day in Kansas City and St. Louis, but much of it melted as it struck the pavements. The Kansas wheat belt received a protective covering of an inch or 2 inches.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Crisp weather greeted most of the South on Thanksgiving Day.

A touch of the cold wave that hit the Western States during the past week was felt in most sections of Dixie today, although nowhere were the temperatures uncomfortably low, the 31 minimum at Richmond, Va., early this morning being the lowest.

Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee and North and South Carolina, generally, enjoyed temperatures in the forties and fifties.

Tyler, Tex., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Five persons were drowned today in Prairie Creek, 10 miles north of Tyler, when the automobile in which they were riding plunged off the highway and overturned, pinning them underneath.

They were identified as Sam Hughes, 38; Mrs. Sam Hughes, 28; Eb Hughes, 30; Claude Hughes, 8, and Robert Hughes, 5, all residents of Wright City, Tex.

A passerby discovered a hand and arm sticking out of the water. The car was completely submerged.

Old 'Grads' Regain Youth At 'Homecoming' Season

By JOHN J. DALY

Home is the hunter, home from the hill,
And the sailor home from the sea.

ALSO, it is the period of homecoming for the old college graduates—the boys coming home to their old alma mater.

Ten, twenty, thirty years, they have been out in the cold, cruel world.

Now they come back and meet again on the campus, like ghosts from the past, greeting and hobnobbing with each other, the boys of long ago who shake off the years and stand as young collegiates in their fresh manhood.

OLD TIME, the relentless, has worked his etchings on their faces—fine lines, traced with the artistic fingers of the years, but all these melt away with the happiness of comradeship on the night of the home-coming, to return again, of course, the next morning.

No wonder there is joy throughout the land, in this the season of homecoming, of college reunion.

Those who can not get back are with the "old grads" in spirit, if not in spirits—and there is a universal feeling of brotherly love, presaging the Christmas cheer, peace on earth and good will toward men.

* * * *

WOMEN, who have never been through the serious football campaigns, when boys do and die for dear old Kiwosh, can never quite understand what it's all about, the great American custom of home-coming, the trek back to the colleges after the struggle for existence.

It seems to be part of the game, when men, casting aside the years, become boys again—if only for a night.

Who would say them nay? Nobody! For, in the long run, it is every soul's prerogative to forget—to drink deep of nepenthe, to wash away the cares of everyday existence. In this annual festivity, like the Dyonysiac feasts of old, America leads the way. Other countries may have their customs and traditions, but only America has its football season, ending each year about Thanksgiving time, with the home-coming of the old grads.

* * * *

THE old grads? The young grads. They may be fathers, and grandfathers; but on this one occasion each year they shed the years and become as little boys, carefree, happy boys, who stand on the sidelines and cheer the stalwart souls who have taken their places on the gridiron—young fellows who, all too soon, will be trudging back over the years to stand in the halls and croak the songs of dear old alma mater—croak because they can not sing.

It is life in the living—the spark that enkindles the fire of memories. Selah!

9 INDIANS FROZEN TO DEATH; PARTIES OFF WITH SUPPLIES

men is a camp where 40 Indian men, women and children are sheltered only by five covered Zuni wagons. They will have to find the other scattered camps on the mesa.

A wagon supply train to Atarque was halted by huge snowdrifts and the food supplies were transferred to pack horses. Another party from Ramah tried to ascend the south slope of Cerro Alto Mesa. Snow on the north approach had turned back horsemen.

More than 1,000 Indians remain to be accounted for.

It is quite a different scene from those days when Coronado long before the first Thanksgiving, broke the original trail up Santa Rita, constantly on guard against a surprise attack from the then marauding and warlike Navajos and Zunis.

Fear that their tribesmen are starving and freezing on the mesas is written on the faces of the Zunis at the agency. They recall a prediction of their medicine men that impending catastrophe was foreshadowed by a storm of the past summer which laid bare an area of 80 square miles of Zuni Reservation, destroying crops and sheep flocks.

Sacred ceremonies were performed today as prayers for the safety of the Zunis and Navajos marooned in the snow.

This has been the worst storm to sweep the Zuni and southeastern Navajo country since 1918, when several hundred Indians trapped on these same mesas by a blizzard died of influenza.

The Santa Rita and Cerro Alto mesas stand at altitudes of 7,200 to 8,000 feet and are barren except for occasional flats bearded with stubble grass and scrub pinon trees.

At Zuni reports were received that between 3,000 and 4,000 Navajo sheep have been frozen to death.

Anchorage, Alaska, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Low visibility between here and McGrath held two planes on the Anchorage Airport today awaiting more favorable weather to take up the search for the missing "flying missionaries," Brothers George J. Feltes and Martial Lapeyre, unreported since they started a 150-mile flight from McGrath to Holy Cross Sunday.

It was feared the missionaries, who used an airplane to visit the 84 Catholic missions in Alaska, were forced down by sudden snowstorms on their short hop. At Holy Cross, ther base mission, however, little worry was expressed providing they were uninjured in making a landing.

Rain and Continued Cold Is Forecast for Capital

Occasional rains are expected to contribute to continued cold weather today and tomorrow, according to the forecast last night by the United States Weather Bureau.

The lowest temperature yesterday was 34, registered at 7 o'clock in the morning. The highest was 43 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The cold spell may disappear by the first of next week, bringing a return of the mild fall weather of the past month, officials of the Weather Bureau said.

Louisiana Legislator Arrested in Slaying

Opelousas, La., Nov. 26 (U.P.).—State Representative Gilbert Dupre, 72, was arrested here today after the shooting and fatal wounding of Charles DeFean, 40-year-old traveling salesman, in front of the parish courthouse.

Dupre told police the shooting followed a political argument, in which DeFean accused him of being a hypocrite in supporting Gov. Huey P. Long's gubernatorial ticket for the January election.

Trade Body Scores Postage Raise Plan

Increases Would Retard Business Recovery, Is Position.

(Associated Press.)

Proposed increases in first-class postal rates are opposed by the postal service committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as liable to decrease mail volume and retard business promotion.

The committee yesterday announced its position in favor of attempting to lessen the postoffice deficit by "economies, efficiency measures and increase in volume of business rather than primarily by general increase in rates."

In opposing increases on first-class matter to 2½ or 3 cents, as suggested by Postmaster General Brown, the committee contended the result would be disappointing by going contrary to the principle of reducing postal costs through greater volume.

Walker Scans Full Record on Mooney

Prepares for Presentation of Case at Hearing on Tuesday.

San Francisco, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—When Mayor James J. Walker of New York presents an application for pardon of Tom Mooney to Gov. James Rolph, jr., next Tuesday, he will be supported by "the only complete record of the case in existence."

Frank P. Walsh, Mooney's senior counsel, said today, "We have the only complete record, every affidavit, the result of every investigation, every document bearing on the case, good, bad or indifferent."

Mayor Walker disclosed that for the purpose of preparing himself for the part he is to play in the effort to free Mooney, convicted of murder for an alleged part in the bombing of a preparedness parade in San Francisco, in July, 1916, he and Mr. Walsh have been enacting parts as they studied the record.

2 WOMEN PEN NOTES AND END OWN LIVES

she knew affectionately as "Blondie," stating that she would be forced to remain in New York to spend the holiday with her invalid grandmother, whose condition had taken a turn for the worse.

Then Mrs. Costa changed her own plans and spent the day in Baltimore. She received news of the girl's death on her return home last night.

Miss Leavy left Washington about five years ago to seek her fortune in New York. She found employment as a clothing model and became known as one of the most competent in that profession. She was employed at an exclusive Fifth avenue women's shop.

During the years Miss Leavy was away from Washington she kept up her friendship with Mrs. Costa and wrote to her every week. Last October the girl came here for a short visit with "Mother Costa," as she called her, and Mrs. Costa returned to New York with Miss Leavy.

There she met Miss Warner for the first time, Mrs. Costa said last night. Their meeting was brief and she knew little about Miss Leavy's companion in death.

The only intimation Mrs. Costa was given that her young friend was contemplating suicide was made as the Washington woman prepared to board a train after her visit to New York.

"You may never see your Blondie again," she quoted Miss Leavy as saying.

Mrs. Costa said the girl was laughing at the time, and she paid little attention to the remark. Mrs. Costa declared that the girl had no reason for suicide, and pointed out that she had never shown such a trend. She had a wealth of friends in New York and Washington, and although she was out of a job for the last two months, $500 was found in her apartment yesterday by New York police.

The only explanation Mrs. Costa could give for the suicide was that Miss Leavy had been unduly influenced by the Warner girl.

Miss Leavy was born in England. Her mother and father died about ten years ago. She was a graduate of Holy Cross Academy here, and after her school career entered the service of the telephone company.

She is survived by a brother, an uncle and an aunt, all living in New York.

RATE OF IDLENESS INCREASE CHECKED

A. F. of L. Head Announces Weighted Figures Show Hopeful Trend.

(United Press.)

The rate of increase of unemployment was checked during November, and was seasonally lower than even in the most prosperous years, although the actual number of unemployed in industry was brought to a new high level, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday.

The October-early November period was the first since last February in which the rate of unemployment increase was not more than normal, Green pointed out. Estimating the total unemployed union members at 20 per cent, he commented:

"One encouraging fact appears from our weighted figures: unemployment in November has increased no more than is usual at this season, even in the most prosperous years.

"In October also, the increase in industrial unemployment was no more than seasonal.

Farm Layoff Under Usual.

"Thus for two months in succession, it appears that the abnormal rise of unemployment has been checked. This is the first time since February that unemployment has not increased more than normally.

"On farms, the number laid off by the first part of November was less than usual.

"Thus the total increase in unemployment by the first part of November was less than expected by about 200,000 persons.

"It is worthy of note, especially since trade and industry were declining during October, that it has been possible to prevent employment from declining correspondingly."

Part of the check on increase, Green said, undoubtedly was due to efforts of trade unions to provide for their members.

"Although this brightens the future outlook a little," Green commented, "it does not alter the fact that the present unemployment crisis will far exceed any we have experienced in this or any other depression in recent years.

Relief Funds 'Inadequate.'

"Already there are 6,000,000 out of work. Unemployment in industry increased by 120,000 last month, and 300,000 were laid off on farms (the usual November layoff is 480,000).

"If unemployment increases as much in the next two months as it did in the years 1928 and 1929, on the average, we may expect from 900,000 to 1,000,000 to be laid off from farms and industries in December and from 500,000 to 700,000 in January.

"Unless these layoffs can be prevented by increased efforts to keep men at work, some 7,500,000 persons will be out of work by January."

Green estimated that now 20 per cent of union members were unemployed, as against 19.5 in October, 19.4 in September and 19.2 in August.

Relief funds, Green said, were "totally inadequate" to meet the need. Community Chest drives have brought in $36,000,000 so far, which is 14 per cent more than last year, he estimated. He added, "We are told that 70 per cent of this will be needed for the normal expense of the community organizations."

Federal Reserve Report.

"Thus only 30 per cent, or $11,000,000, is available for the unemployed," Green said. "Compare this with the $11,000,000,000 that wage earners have lost this year.

"Relief available is only one-hundredth of their loss. It is impossible for families to exist on one one-hundredth of their normal income. The result is already manifest in cases of undernourishment and starvation in our hospitals, in children who are born without the energy to develop into normal human beings."

It should be noted that there is disagreement among various estimators as to the number of unemployed. Administration officials, for instance, deny that the 6,000,000 figure is correct. They say no one can tell, and President Hoover has said he believes the figure to be lower. As to relief also, administration sources do not agree with labor figures. They maintain that they will see no one goes hungry, and the President has promised that "the situation, whatever it may be, will be met."

The Federal Reserve report issued yesterday supplemented Green's statement, noting general trends in industry. Production and unemployment in manufacturing industries declined during October, it was said, and output of minerals increased more than seasonally. Steel output remained unchanged, whereas it usually increases; agricultural production declined; automobile production declined sharply, and production of shoes and woolens showed little change, whereas an increase is usual.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Alice McCormick Is Wed in Chicago

Daughter of Millionaire Packer Is Bride of John N. Stearns, Jr.

Chicago, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Alice Cudahy McCormick, daughter of the millionaire packer and former wife of Leander J. McCormick, was married today to John N. Stears, jr., of New York.

Only a few close friends and members of the Cudahy family attended the ceremony, which was performed at the home of the bride's brother, Edward A. Cudahy, jr., in Lake Forest. Howard Maxwell, of New York, was best man.

The wedding came as a surprise to the bride's Chicago friends. The license was obtained yesterday. Stearns gave his age as 40 and Mrs. McCormick said she was 36. Mrs. Stearns is the youngest of the wealthy packer's three daughters. In 1917 she married Leander J. McCormick, great-grandson of Robert McCormick, and in 1929 they were divorced.

Bell Tower Dedicated By University of N. C.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—The University of North Carolina today formally received and dedicated a bell tower, the gift of two alumni, John Motley Morehead, minister to Sweden, and Rufus Lenoir Patterson, New York manufacturer.

The tower, rising 172 feet and containing a carilion of 12 bells, was built at a cost of $100,000. It was presented by Frank Patterson, Baltimore editor and brother of one of the donors, and was accepted by Gov. O. Max Gardner. George Gordon Battle, New York attorney and alumnus of the university, made an historical address.

Harry Langdon Files Petition in Bankruptcy

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Harry Langdon, comedian of the cinema, says he's broke.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in Federal court, listing liabilities of $62,637 and assets of $700. The liabilities include $30,000 owed to the Government as income taxes. Others are debts to Hollywood merchants.

Butler Chuckles At Tablet Removal

Says He Wishes Slab Might Be Brought Back to Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Back home from a speaking tour and in excellent health, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, formerly of the Marine Corps, chuckled today when informed a tablet commemorating his service as public safety director here had been removed from the Navy Building in Washington to the Marine Barracks at Quantico, Va.

"Could anyone ask for a better break than that?" The general laughed. "It appears to be only further proof of my charges the swivel-chair admirals are doing all they can to subordinate the Marine Corps."

(Associated Press.)

Marine Corps officials explained yesterday that the recent transfer of the Smedley Butler plaque was pursuant to terms of its acceptance. Officials said it was not customary for pictures, busts or other personal representations to be included among the trophies and other displays of the Navy Building corridors. When the Butler plaque was accepted, it was with the understanding it would be removed to Quantico as soon as permanent buildings had been erected there.

Fall Kills British Admiral.

London, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Vice Admiral Richard Hyde, 59, was killed early today when he fell from a high window in the Hotel Kensington, where he was living. He had a distinguished career in the navy and was aide de camp to King George in 1921 and 1922.

Election in Australia Set for December 19

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Prime Minister James Henry Scullin, head of Australia's Labor government, announced the government's resignation to Parliament today. New elections will be held December 19.

The government was defeated by a combination of the opposition parties, by a vote of 37 to 32, on a question of the disposition of treasury unemployment benefits by Treasurer Edward Granville Theodore.

Finland May Vote On Dry Act Repeal

Motion for Referendum Is to Go Before Diet Tomorrow.

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Finland will vote next December 30 in a prohibition referendum if the Diet approves a measure to be presented on Tuesday by the cabinet.

This is the result of agitation over a period of months during which a government commission investigated prohibition enforcement, recommending lifting of restrictions on wines up to 12 per cent alcoholic content and beer of 3.2 per cent.

Prohibition is thirteen years old in Finland and its opponents have waged a persistent fight. Government figures showed the confiscation of 225,000 gallons of smuggled liquor in ten months of this year, and government estimates placed that amount as about one-tenth the total illicit importations.

FRESHNESS —that's the thing!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

HAVE you noticed the new trend in cigarettes?—freshness is the popular thing.

That's because a fresh cigarette, as demonstrated by Camels, is something smokers have discovered as better than anything they ever tried before.

Camels are fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack because they're made fresh to start with—blended of choice, delicately mild, sun-ripened tobaccos in which the natural moisture and fragrant flavors are vigilantly safeguarded. The tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted—the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say with so much assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh—not parched or toasted—and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

Try Camels' freshness for a change. Switch over for just one day, then change back—if you can.

LEAGUE PICKS GROUP TO MAP PROBE PLAN

Japan and China Tentatively Accept Inquiry; Chinchow Held Danger Point.

Paris, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—China's League of Nations representative accepted tonight as a basis for discussion the league council's proposals for restoring peace in Manchuria.

Japan's spokesman likewise accepted the plan, with certain reservations, and the council appointed a committee to work over the proposal, originally submitted by Aristide Briand, in the hope of producing a formula acceptable to all concerned.

In the course of these secret meetings of the council leaders such few official statements as have been made give a little idea of what is actually going on, but it was understood in authoritative quarters that the Chinese realize that ultimately they will have to abandon their demand that the council fix a definite date for evacuation of Manchuria by the Japanese army.

Anxious About Chinchow.

Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese member, was understood to have told M. Briand that his government was particularly anxious about Chinchow, the city in south Manchuria toward which the Japanese were reported advancing from Mukden.

He asked that every possible measure be taken to prevent a clash at Chinchow and he renewed his suggestion that detachments from neutral forces in China establish a deadline between Chinchow and Mukden past which the Japanese must not go.

It appeared that the council also was worried about Chinchow and observers agreed that the Japanese military policy there would be a test of Japan's attitude toward the league's efforts to restore peace.

Send Observers to Scene.

It was said that leaders on the council had agreed to advise their governments that observers in the Far East be directed to join in a concerted international effort to turn aside the threatening battle. Lieut. Col. Nelson Margetts, American military attache, is one of the foreigners at Chinchow.

When today's private meeting of the council adjourned the following official communique was issued:

"The members of the council held an exchange of views. In the hope that an agreement will be reached on the general lines of the preliminary draft communicated to the press yesterday, they appointed a drafting committee which will meet tomorrow morning.

"Further, the president of the council, in view of communications received from China and Japan regarding the situation in the neighborhood of Chinchow, consulted his colleagues as to measures which might be taken to prevent any danger of conflict."

GRANDI LAUDS U. S. FOR ARMS ATTITUDE

strength would mean a nation must be as strong as all others combined.

3. Only by disarmament can there be quieted the widespread disquietude as to world peace, especially in Europe.

Signor Grandi told of the year's disarmament truce, proposed by him at Geneva in September, and finally adopted in modified form. He gave much credit for this to the United States, which supported his stronger original measure.

Called Great Test.

The coming disarmament conference was described by the foreign minister as "a great test, in which the nations of the world, and especially Europe, will show whether or not their conscience and their spirit are ripe for making a great stride toward progress."

"The conference," he said, "will be the touchstone of our degree of civilization."

"There is no doubt," he said, "that the world suffers today chiefly from a lack of confidence. The world—and particularly Europe—is under a vague but widespread feeling of uncertainty as to the maintenance of peace in the future years. So that, in the end, the financial and the economic problems are essentially problems of pacification.

Must Go to Root of Evil.

"To solve this problem we must go to the root of the evil. Now, we are convinced that at the very bottom, the political uneasiness is generated chiefly by the mutual fear and distrust arisen out of armaments and that the first step to restore confidence should be taken in the direction of a general reduction of armaments.

Such reduction would attain a double result: A material one, that is, the possibility of devoting large sums of money to productive purposes, and at the same time a psychological effect, consisting in the improvement of mutual confidence among nations."

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A telegram from Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, visiting the United States, asking Gov. Pinchot to consider the possibility "of an act of clemency" in connection with the sentencing yesterday of Orlando Spartaco in Philadelphia, was received at the governor's office here today.

Spartaco was sentenced to two years in prison for jumping on the running board of Signor Grandi's car, while the foreign minister was in Philadelphia and shouting "down with Mussolini!"

Informed of the contents of the telegram tonight in his Milford, Pa., home, where he spent Thanksgiving, Gov. Pinchot said he did not care to comment until he had seen and answered the message.

Train of Lumber Hailed As Trade Revival Sign

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A special train of 171 cars of lumber was regarded as reflecting better times today by officials of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, over whose lines it moved from Westwood, Calif., to widely scattered destinations.

Pointing to a pick-up of single commodity movements in single trains, R. G. Merrick, assistant freight traffic manager of the Santa Fe, said the line's train-load movements in the past few weeks included lumber, citrus fruit, grapes, wheat, sheep, beef cattle and silk.

port by Gen. Chang Hsueh-liang that Gen. Honjo had obtained approval of the Japanese Emperor for the complete occupation of Manchuria by Japanese troops.

The legation said the information came from the Nanking foreign office in a cablegram which added Chang Hsueh-Liang said that scores of Japanese airplanes, several trainloads of ammunition and several hundred plain clothes men had just arrived at Mukden.

The information came shortly after the legation had been informed that Japanese troops had captured Hainmin and imprisoned the town officials in the chamber of commerce building.

The latter cable related that a part of the local police had been disarmed in a brief skirmish.

It added that six large detachments of Japanese had been seen at Yinkow moving westward.

A holiday for most Americans yesterday was only another day of anxious concentration upon Chinese-Japanese affairs for Secretary Stimson and other State Department officials.

Fearful of a possible spark which might disrupt progress toward peace, they divided their attention between military developments in the Far East and negotiations of the League of Nations Council in Paris.

Reports during the day from Ambassador Dawes on the council's latest peace plan involving neutral conciliation raised hopes here that a cessation of hostilities was in sight. Secretary Stimson scanned closely, however, all available reports of military movements in the vicinity of Chinchow. A conflict there between China and Japan was believed to hold dangerous potentialities.

Reports varied as to the tenseness of the military situation.

State Department officials, on the basis of authoritative information from American officials in the Far East, said there were no outstanding military movements.

Their reports included those of Lieut. Col. Nelson Margetts, military attache at the Embassy in Tokyo, who is now in Mukden as a military observer. Daily military reports are being made by Margetts to both the State and War Departments. Heavy fighting was reported from Mukden between Japanese troops and Chinese "bandits."

No Outbreak Reported.

While all available information to the American Government indicated a concentration of Japanese troops in the Chinchow vicinity, an outbreak of Chinese-Japanese hostilities at that important point was not reported.

Secretary Stimson remained in the Capital throughout the day to receive reports as they arrived. His optimism last night was based mainly on his belief that China and Japan, in accepting the broad principle of conciliation, would be able ultimately to solve their troubles in direct negotiations.

Tsitsihar, Manchuria, Nov. 26 (U.P.)—Muffled to their eyes in heavy furs, the first of the Japanese troops to evacuate the city of Tsitsihar entrained today.

The cold was intense and the troops were forced to wear every ounce of clothing provided by their well-equipped supply trains, in addition to their usual heavy equipment.

It was announced that the soldiers, chiefly infantrymen, were being sent back to the zone of the south Manchurian railroad, and that a force of not more than 3,000, including some engineering corps, would remain until conditions in the city have been stabilized.

Withdrawal of the first Japanese forces was regarded here with extreme satisfaction by both sides, as an indication that Gen Honjo believes order has been restored throughout the Heilungkiang Province.

It was reported that Gen. Ma Chan-Shan has now become reconciled to Japanese dominance, and that he is even willing to resume his post as governor of the Heilungkiang Province, and to cooperate with the Japanese.

Residents Desire Peace.

A majority of the Chinese residents of Tsitsihar are anxious for peace at any price, and most of them are not interested in the political situation. They welcomed an opportunity to open their shops and to send their products out over the railway sure that the transportation service would not be interrupted as it has been so frequently in past months.

Japan's claims in Chinchow now remain as the sole reason for official Chinese defiance, to hinder the early restoration of an orderly and friendly government in northern Manchuria.

The evacuation of troops continued throughout the day, and more companies will leave Tsitsihar tomorrow, bound for Taonan.

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Heavy fighting between Japanese troops and a force of several hundred Chinese "bandits" was going on today near the town of Ping Lopu, 10 miles west of Mukden, Japanese army headquarters announced.

Chinchow Danger Lessened.

This action is the closest to Mukden that has occurred for some time.

The size of the Japanese detachment was not revealed. Reinforcements were dispatched from Chuliuho.

Japanese authorities declared imminent danger of a clash at Chinchow, reported to be the center of the latest concentration of Chinese troops, had been averted.

Yuan Chin-Kai, head of the new Mukden government, announced himself today in favor of a constitutional monarchy as the best form of government for Manchuria. The former boy emperor, now known as Mr. Henry Pu-Yi, should head the monarchy, Yunan declared.

Pinchot Withholds Aid Gift Comment

Governor Awaits Letter From Davis on Giving Whole Income.

Milford, Pa., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Gov. Gifford Pinchot laughed today when his attention was drawn to the proposal of Senator James J. Davis that the Senator and Mrs. Davis would contribute to unemployment relief all their income if Mr. and Mrs. Pinchot would do the same.

The governor would not comment, he said, on the senator's proposal until he had received the letter. He and Mrs. Pinchot are spending Thanksgiving Day at their Milford home.

The question of how much each should give to unemployment relief was raised last week by the senator, who suggested that the governor should lend the fund $1,000,000. Mr. Pinchot replied by proposing the senator give as large a percentage of his income as the governor. Last night the senator went the governor one better by proposing that they give to the fund all their income, including that of their wives.

Drunken Driving Laid To Woman After Crash

A charge of driving while drunk was placed against a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Ethel Saunders, 32 years old, of the Chastleton Hotel, after an accident last night in the 2400 block of Sixteenth street northwest.

Police said she collided with another machine operated by Edward Marks, 29 years old, of 6205 Twelfth street southeast, damaging it to the extent of about $200. The woman was released on bond of $500 put up by her husband.

WORDS SHOULD FIT USERS

Do Not Expect to Make an Impression With Too Large Ones.

Words are often like clothes—either too large or too small. When they do not express the thoughts they are ill fitting, and can not have the approval of those who hear or read them.

This is often noticed in everyday conversation. Everybody should choose words with care—not too big, like dad's coat on little Willie; nor too small, like daughter's blouse on mother.

A person that uses words which do not convey the exact meaning intended, loses the force of an idea that might have accomplished much had the meaning been plain.

Those who learn to use a Dictionary will be surprised at the rapidity with which they advance in learning the most expressive words to use. And the ideal volume for that purpose is the New World Dictionary which is now being distributed to newspaper readers on the coupon plan.

WORLD COURT FOES SEE DRIVE VICTORY

Hope to Defeat Ratification When Issue Arises in Next Session.

(Associated Press.)

Hopes of Senate foes to American adherence to the World Court are rising.

Still without the necessary one-third of the votes required to defeat Senate ratification, leaders of the anti-World Court group nevertheless are confident of success by the time the roll is called.

Unlimited debate will be insisted upon by the court's opponents under the leadership of Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee. They are confident more than enough votes are available to prevent any limitation of debate.

While the foreign relations committee will take up the court issue at the start of the session, it is unlikely that the question will come up on the Senate floor for a long time.

It will have to await disposition of the emergency economic program.

The recent decision of the World Court against the Austro-German trade agreement is to be used by the court foes as their main weapon. Senator Borah and others contend this decision was based on political rather than legal grounds.

Standard Oil Dividends Total $220,739,182

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Cash dividend payments of the Standard Oil group of companies for 1931 while lower than those of 1929 and 1930, still are approximately $2,000,000 higher than those of 1928, according to a survey by the stock exchange house of Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co.

Dividends of the group this year will total $220,739,182, which is comparable to $286,526,728 paid in 1930.

Oklahoma to Give Fund To Mexicans' Families

Mexico City, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Interior Manuel C. Tellez, who was Mexico's Ambassador at Washington when two Mexican students were killed at Ardmore, Okla., last June, praised Gov. William H. Murray today after the governor stated that Oklahoma would give $5,000 to the families of each of the youths.

Gov. Murray's attitude has been praiseworthy all through the matter, the secretary said, and his "splendid gesture" showed him to be extremely human.

The Mexican people, Senor Tellez declared, hold no malice toward the United States or Oklahoma for the unfortunate killings.

Man Seriously Hurt In Automobile Mishap

Charles Hunter, 81 years old, of 1317 Jackson street northeast, was injured seriously yesterday when he stepped from the curb at the intersection of Rhode Island avenue and Thirteenth street northeast into the side of a passing automobile. The driver of the auto, Hugh McCann, 3419 Otis street northeast, stopped and took the elderly man to his home after he refused hospital treatment.

Later in the day a private physician was called who found that Mr. Hunter had suffered a fractured rib and ordered him sent to Sibley Hospital, where his condition was reported undetermined last night.

Harrisonburg Man, 21, Killed in Auto Crash

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Walter Pence, 21, assistant manager of a local theater, died at the Rockingham Memorial Hospital tonight from injuries suffered when his automobile crashed into an electric light pole on Main street and overturned.

G. W. MUSICAL SHOW TO OPEN ON DEC. 10

Choruses Rehearsed Daily and Full Cast Three Times a Week.

The Troubadours of George Washington University will present a number of "surprise" features in their annual musical show, under stage direction of Denis E. Connell and general direction of Dan Beattie December 10, 11 and 12 at McKinley auditorium, Second and T streets northeast.

The show, "Happy Landings," is a tale of a coeducational "flying school," and special scenic effects will be injected into its two acts of unique comedy situations from the pens of Sock Kennedy and John Redmond. Beattie, who is largely responsible for the music, is assisted by Carl Wells, cocomposer.

One of the features will be the G. W. U. orchestra under direction of George Wenzl, which will function at all three performances. Dancing groups are in daily rehearsal under direction of Christine Spignul, with full cast rehearsals three times a week.

The "three-in-one" chorus comprises the 38 best dancers that G. W. U. can produce, carefully graded into "sizes" for stage effect.

Members of the tall chorus are Kathleen Watkins, Virginia Hawkins, Jane Menefee, Ruth McNary, Bernice Wall, Dorothy Wilson, Hilda James, Margaret Maxwell, Jane Hughes, Platonia Papps and Helen Sherry.

In connection with the forthcoming performances a baby picture contest is being conducted through The Hatchet. Prizes are offered for a 150-word article on the Troubadours and what they mean to G. W. U.

JAPAN WINS.

By compelling China to waive its demand that Japan should withdraw its troops to the railway zone, and by conceding to Japan the right to continue fighting if in her judgment it is necessary, the powers composing the council of the League of Nations and the United States hope to avert war in Manchuria. It is proposed that hostilities shall cease, and that a neutral commission shall examine the situation on the ground, but without power to interfere with military operations.

Obviously this arrangement depends upon the good faith of Japan and the willingness of the Chinese to accept the bitter pill that is tendered. Since Japan's operations in Manchuria are vastly more extensive than would have been required to prevent Chinese from interfering with the South Manchuria railroad, it is difficult to resist the conclusion that Japan will not cease its forward movement until it has attained its full objective—the occupation of South Manchuria clear up to the Chinese Wall. The City of Chinchow is a bone of contention, and a struggle over it might rupture the plans arranged in Paris.

If the proposed arrangement should become effective it will work to the advantage of Japan. Evidently the powers regard this as better than open war. They could not induce Japan to agree to withdraw at any fixed time; and without such an agreement the plan now broached works in Japan's favor. The imperial forces will remain in Manchuria. The neutral commission may make such report as it pleases, but with the Japanese people and army determined to take over the better part of Manchuria it is probable that no report or demand from the League of Nations will cause withdrawal. Japan has already ignored an ultimatum demanding withdrawal by November 16. Instead of beginning to withdraw, Japan has sent its forces further in.

China is not in a position to defy the powers that are now favoring Japan. The Chinese armies are scattered and are no match for the Japanese. Hostilities by China would be the signal for dispatching additional forces from Japan, which the proposed armistice could not prevent. China has offered to withdraw its forces behind the Great Wall if the interested powers would send in mixed forces to stand as neutrals between the Japanese dragon and its wrath. The powers will not make such a blunder. They will sacrifice China rather than become involved in war.

It is a rather poor arrangement that has been evolved in Paris, including as it does injustice to China and a surrender to Japan; but if it ends in averting war it will possibly be accepted by the world as the best that can be done in the circumstances. No great nation cares to become a champion of China on the field of battle. China faces the loss of a rich province because of continual disorders and inability to create a solid national defense. The most populous nation in the world is helpless when attacked by a highly organized assailant.

When the time comes to assess the gains and losses in Manchuria it may be that Japan will be face to face with the charge that it has trampled upon treaties to gain its ends. But Japan seems to be facing this prospect with equanimity. "Get Manchuria" is the Japanese watchword. After that aim has been achieved, diplomacy may be relied upon to dissuade aggrieved powers from becoming too realistic in their demands that Japan shall comply with treaties affecting them. Japan has armed strength and knows how to use it.

The cooperation of the United States with the League of Nations in dealing with the Oriental contestants is a matter that will be discussed in Congress. If the Paris plan should succeed, the criticisms in Congress will be toned down; if the plan should fail, much will be heard in denunciation of American cooperation in the proceedings of the League of Nations.

THE TILSON-SNELL FIGHT.

The action of the Pennsylvania Republicans of the House at their conference today will probably determine the Republican leadership of the House. The seven Philadelphia members have been requested by "Boss" Vare to support Representative Bertrand Snell, of New York, for Speaker. The remaining 26 members of the Pennsylvania delegation are divided, with most of them claimed by Representative John Q. Tilson. Some of the Pennsylvania members resent the suggestion that they are under the control of Mr. Vare.

Mr. Tilson was unanimously elected floor leader last March, when Speaker Longworth was renominated for the Speakership. The death of Mr. Longworth requires the House Republicans to nominate a candidate for Speaker, although it is not expected that a Republican can defeat John N. Garner. The elevation of Mr. Tilson to the Speakership would be in line with precedent if the Republicans were in the majority. But the present situation is unique, and Mr. Snell's friends have seized the occasion to press him for the nomination, in the hope that he will become minority floor leader upon the election of Mr. Garner as Speaker. The effect of nominating Mr. Snell in place of Mr. Tilson would probably be to relegate the latter to the bottom of some minor committee, although he relinquished a high place on the ways and means committee to serve as floor leader. Mr. Snell, however, would retain his place on the rules committee, whether or not he defeated Mr. Tilson.

The sense of fair play among members of the House is operating in defense of Mr. Tilson. The idea of displacing him as floor leader after having unanimously elected him last spring is not relished by members who are independent of the forces that are operating to give extra honors to Mr. Snell. The Snell managers seem to be counting upon a plan which would require the delegations of several big States to vote as a unit, in spite of the wishes of individual members from such States. New York, New Jersey and Illinois are regarded as the backbone of Mr. Snell's strength, to which it is hoped to add the solid Pennsylvania delegation.

Republican solidarity in the House is threatened by the Snell movement. It is essentially a movement to promote personal interests at the expense of the party. The Pennsylvania delegation can best promote the interests of the Republican party in a national sense by supporting Mr. Tilson, notwithstanding the desire of "Boss" Vare to set him aside in favor of Mr. Snell.

MAYOR WALKER.

Mayor James J. Walker of New York has indulged in many junkets, but seldom has he gone so far afield from his official duties and responsibilities as during his present excursion in California.

It is difficult to understand just what Mayor Walker hoped to accomplish in the Tom Mooney case. What does he suppose that he can contribute to the administration of justice in California?

Mr. Walker has aroused the resentment of California people by intruding in an affair with which he has no conceivable connection. It is not to be supposed that Gov. Rolph will pardon a convict merely to please the Mayor of New York. The people of California give little heed to the sentiment that has been aroused among radicals throughout the country in favor of Mooney's release.

There is plenty of work for the Mayor of New York if he will confine himself to his duties. He might not relish a visit from the Governor of California, calling attention to the many faults in the government of New York City and volunteering advice as to what the mayor should and should not do.

ALASKAN ENTERPRISES.

The annual report of Gov. George A. Parks of Alaska, discloses that lower prices for fishery products, furs and copper have brought unusual problems to the Territory. Fishing is by far the most important industry of Alaska, the total value of its products last year amounting to $37,679,000, which was a 25 per cent reduction from the previous year. Gold mining was the one enterprise to show a gain, $1,500,000 being added to the 1929 output to make a total of $8,475,000. Copper did not fare so well. The value of copper recovered from all sources fell to $4,344,000, a loss of about 40 per cent.

Two whaling stations in Alaska operated seven steam vessels that captured 355 whales. These monsters of the sea yielded in whale oil, sperm oil, pickled meat, whalebone and fertilizer a total value of $470,000. Under the protecting care of the United States seals and reindeer have prospered in Alaska. When the seal herd was taken over 20 years ago it numbered approximately 132,000 animals, while last year seals of all classes had increased to 1,045,000. Last year 42,500 skins were taken from the rookeries on St. Paul and St. George Islands. Their sale at public auction brought $822,000.

Reindeer that were introduced into Alaska about 40 years ago as a relief measure to provide food and clothing for the people have been a great blessing to the natives. There were only about 1,500 deer in the original herd but from this beginning the reindeer population has grown until there are hundreds of thousands in herds that are now distributed from Point Barrow to the mouth of the Yukon. The Government maintains a herd that numbers nearly 12,000 and is continually sending out new herds to distant places that have not yet been supplied.

The scenic marvels of Alaska and the excellent fishing and hunting attract more and more tourists every year. World travelers find new thrills amid the rugged wonders of this picturesque northern country. Gov. Parks reports an increasing number of pleasure craft in Alaskan waters each summer and every effort is being made to encourage this travel. The Alaskan road commission has prepared a ten-year program of highway improvements that will give impetus to the tourist traffic.

NO TARIFF RETALIATION.

President Hoover has done well to correct the rumor that the Government contemplates retaliatory measures against the British emergency tariff. Some politicians are so much in the habit of regarding tariff measures enacted in any part of the world as reprisals against the United States that they expected this Government to taks a similar attitude toward the new British duties. The British emergency decree was not directed against this country, but is a domestic measure designed to correct Great Britain's unfavorable balance of trade.

Tariffs for retaliation against other nations is the Democratic theory. It has but an insignificant place in the protective policy as it is applied in the tariff law. Congress provided that countervailing duties should be levied on a few articles that are now on the free list if other countries put duties on the same products from America. But this class of articles is extremely limited, and such duties are seldom invoked. The only other type of countervailing duties provided for in the tariff act are those designed to protect American industry against foreign subsidies.

Tariffs are not levied to interfere with the trade of other nations but to protect American enterprise against undue foreign competition. The height of the tariff barrier is determined largely by domestic conditions. It is a grave mistake to consider the protective policy as a thrust at other countries. Only the politicians who wish to discredit the American tariff take that attitude. President Hoover understands the uphill fight that Great Britain is making to stabilize her industry. He realizes also that if Britain regains prosperity the United States will sell far more to that country than at present, in spite of tariff walls.

Only 1.6 per cent of all exports from the United States to Britain are affected by the emergency decree. Most of Britain's imports are raw materials which that country must have to feed its people and to keep its factories running. A large percentage of American exports are products that are vitally necessary to the welfare of the purchasing countries. Experience with the British tariff has brought a realization that American export trade is not nearly so competitive as the antiprotectionists would have the people believe.

Dozens of governments raised import duties both before and after the Smoot-Hawley act became effective. Yet instances of retaliation against the American tariff are extremely rare. Tariffs all over the world are levied to meet domestic conditions and not to arouse the enmity of other countries.

The Democrats caught the Thanksgiving spirit and expressed the hope that President Hoover will have one more dinner in the White House.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

No scene devised by Gilbert and Sullivan or the fertile brain of Lewis Carroll has presented more monumental absurdity than the British House of Lords in recent years. Ancient peers, mummified both in body and mind, totter to their feet and talk themselves to what appears the very verge of the grave. Red-faced gentlemen from the country shires whisper to their neighbors about the prospects of the hunting season, while venerable churchmen snore episcopally in their chairs.

In view of the hopelessly shrivelled powers of that once august body, the wonder is that any member of the House of Lords still insists on breaking this lazy and somnolent charm, but, as Herbert Agar points out in a London letter in the Louisville Times, there still remains a small group of men who possess ambition as well as a title. The blank wall which these statesmen have to face is the utter subjugation of the Lords to the Commons. The so-called upper house has long retained only a suspensory power, by which it is sometimes able to hold up bills not dealing with money matters for as long as two years. But even this rudimentary force is destroyed in matters of any importance by the right of the prime minister to appoint any number of new peers at any time, a sufficient number to create a majority in favor of the measure desired by the prime minister and the Commons. The threat of such an action, cracked like a whip beneath the aristocratic noses of the lords, suffices to bring that body into line.

As a result of this curtailing of power, the House of Lords has lost its attraction for ambitious Britishers. Most of the members forget that the house exists until some particular issue arouses their ire, and they then grudgingly run down from the country for one day in the parliamentary halls. In all truth, it must be admitted by even the most ardent tory that the House of Lords as it now stands is an anachronism in present-day government. That does not mean, however, that the upper house should be completely abandoned as a useless survival. In a country whose roots lie so deep in the rich soil of aristocracy, a place still exists for a functioning upper house as a check on the feverish activity of the Commons.

The election of an unprecedented Conservative majority in the last public contest opens the way for a rejuvenation of the House of Lords. Two measures have been proposed to this purpose; first, that only those peers be allowed to vote who have attended a reasonable number of sessions; and second, that the power of the prime minister to "pack" the upper house be canceled. The issue is up to the British people. If they are not prepared to cause their House of Lords to disband once and for all, the dignity of their government demands that they rescue the upper chamber from its present position of comic opera futility.

Pinchot's Way.

Boston Transcript.

A typical Pinchot stunt was performed when the Governor of Pennsylvania went to Andrew W. Mellon, his bitterest political enemy, asked him for a million dollars for unemployment relief, passed out to the press Mr. Mellon's calm, "I will think it over," and then hustled up to the offices of the Republican insurgents to make the most of the incident. When Gov. Pinchot was asked by a correspondent, "How much did you contribute?" (he is said to be many times a millionaire), the governor flushed and replied, "That's politics;" but later he assured the country, from the office of Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, that "I expect to contribute as large a percentage of my income as other people."

The Lesser of Two Evils.

Minneapolis Journal.

Senator Jim Watson's reversal of his earlier stand against a tax raise crowns with success President Hoover's efforts to persuade the Republican leaders to a unanimous stand for an increase in Federal taxation as the lesser of two evils, the alternative being to go on progressively increasing the public debt.

Inasmuch as there is a presidential election a year hence, and voters customarily blame the man in the White House for tax boosts—just as they give him credit for reductions—this willingness of Herbert Hoover to risk next year the political handicap of a tax increase this winter speaks well for both his courage and his intellectual honesty.

The Promised Land Is Ready When the Pioneers Are.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SEVERAL weeks ago Liberty Magazine printed the story of nine families placed on a farm by the Red Cross of Greenville, S. C. There were 45 people in the nine families, destitute and jobless mill workers taken from the bread line and given independence, health and plenty.

Liberty suggested that charitable organizations adopt the Red Cross plan to give the jobless millions permanent homes instead of spending their money to provide temporary relief.

There may be many people, city-born and city-bred, who had rather starve and hope in the midst of crowds than to endure the loneliness of the country, but more adventurous spirits would welcome the opportunity to go pioneering, and charity could do no greater good than to finance their return to the soil.

The South is the logical place for this kind of colonization because it affords relief from mankind's most dreadful enemy—the bitter cold of winter.

As this is written, at 4:30 in the afternoon of a typical November day, the earth is bathed in golden sunshine, as it has been for weeks and will be until after Christmas; doors and windows are open; the boy raking leaves in the yard is coatless and his shirt sleeves are rolled above his elbows. A few light frosts have made woodlands a riot of glorious color, and there is need of a fire in the morning and at night; but growing things are still green and autumn flowers are still unharmed by frost.

Land is cheap. Much of it can be bought at $10 an acre and less, and countless acres, lying idle, can be rented at almost any price offered.

Why is land so cheap if it will grow anything? Because cotton is the one "cash crop" here and there is no money in raising cotton at present prices.

The farmers who fail are not farmers, but mere cotton growers who live out of paper sacks and tin cans and feed their mules $40 hay that came out of a freight car.

This is a poor land, enslaved by cotton, but it is also a kind and beautiful land where mocking birds sing at night and cattle pasture all winter.

New farmers wouldn't get rich. But people who have health and a home need little more if they produce their corn, hams, sausage, chickens, turkeys, ducks, honey, nuts, potatoes, beans, peas, turnips, peaches, cherries, apples and other such things—as any town man could if he had the desire and the chance.

Debts to Dissipate Depression.

Minneapolis Journal.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, comes to Minnesota to tell us the program for dissipating depression which he will urge when Congress assembles next month.

His program differs from that of others of his Progressive colleagues only in that he proposes to put the country much deeper into debt. The Wisconsin senator would add to the debt at one swoop a mere five billion dollars. This beats the best previous proposal, that of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who suggests a paltry two billions. Progressive leadership in debt creation is for the moment transferred from the Platte River country to the hills and dales of Wisconsin. However, the session is still two weeks away. There is still time for new money spending proposals that will threaten the leadership of Senator La Follette.

The progressive program, as set forth to date, boils down to this: "Get the Nation out of depression by plunging it deeper into debt." It does not take much mental toil to figure out new and startling ways to borrow and spend money. It would, however, take much back breaking toil for the taxpayers of the country to finance these grandiose projects.

Strange Bedfellows

Houston Post-Dispatch.

As strange an example of politics making strange bedfellows is furnished in Louisiana just now, where Governor-Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, are joining hands in an effort to elect O. K. Allen governor of the State. The old regular organization in New Orleans is supporting the Long-Walmsley ticket, and in the very nature of things it is a formidable ticket.

It takes time to become accustomed to the idea of the mayor of New Orleans and the governor-senator being political cronies. Mr. Walmsley and the New Orleans machine fought Mr. Long bitterly both for the governorship and the senatorship. But, after Mr. Long won in the senatorial race, he went down to the Crescent City and won over the mayor and his cohorts.

Detroit News.

When pilloried by the correspondents and required to put himself, and, to an extent, his political party, in quotes in cold print, John Garner, of Texas, the probable next Speaker of the national House, naturally weighs his words. Toward carrying out nonpartisan coperation in a Congress this winter which is narrowly divided nominally between the two major parties, and further confused by factional divisions within these parties, hardly more could be expected from Garner than a promise that "politics will be a secondary consideration."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Virginian Says Majority of Republicans Do Not Favor Repeal or Modification of the Eighteenth Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While it is true that some very able Republicans favor the modification or repeal of the eighteenth amendment, I believe the great majority of the rank and file of the Republicans throughout the country are unalterably opposed to the repeal or modification at this time.

Both Presidents Harding and Coolidge stood firmly for the enforcement of prohibition and likewise, President Hoover has, and will continue to do so. Therefore, I believe the large majority of the law-abiding citizens of this country are praying and hoping for the renomination and election of Mr. Hoover again in 1932.

I submit therefore that Senator Hiram Johnson insults the intelligence of every right-thinking citizen of this country when he says that Mr. Hoover should follow Mr. Coolidge's example and refuse to run in 1932.

Finally, Senator Fess is absolutely right when he says that he will use his influence to prevent the Republican party from committing a fatal blunder in asking for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Rule of the Road Which Motorists Should Learn—Test Your Brakes!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I recently read an editorial in the Christian Science Monitor which offers an example that would prove very beneficial to motorists. The example for motorists to adhere to is as follows:

"A giant locomotive moved majestically out of the railway roundhouse the other morning, preparatory to being coupled to a long train for a fast journey across several States. In the cab sat a veteran engineer watching carefully the performance of his son, a young man just beginning his service as a master of the speeding wheels and rods. Suddenly the grizzled engineer reached out his hand as the engine gathered speed and applied the mechanical power controlling the brakes. The locomotive instantly slackened its speed. The son looked quizzically at his father, failing to understand the reason for his action.

"Before you start out on a run be absolutely sure your brakes are in good working order," admonished the veteran engineer with a smile. That's one of the first rules of the road—and it is sure to prevent things going wrong in time of emergency."

China Must Put Up Defense, Regardless of Japan's Demands, So Long as Japan Is an Invader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As Japan is a member of the League of Nations and a signatory of the Kellogg pact and has openly and repeatedly repudiated both and announced to the world that it will pursue its own course of action, it is evident that no further peaceful persuasion on the part of the neutral countries will avail anything.

Repeatedly, according to authentic reports, Japan has said that there would be no war with China. She has invaded China's territory and demanded that China do certain things, and she seems to think that China is unreasonable because she refuses to comply with certain demands while Japan's armed forces are on her territory. What nation in the world would do otherwise than China is doing with an armed force on its soil, regardless of the merits of the demands made?

THE CARVER.

I sing of the old-fashioned carver who gracefully wielded his blade,
Who sat in his place with a grin on his face and was deaf to the comment we made;
He had learned every joint of a chicken, a turkey, a partridge or goose,
And he sat there or stood as a gentleman should as he cleverly whittled them loose.

Oh, there was an artist worth watching—a master performer was he;
But the age has grown smart, and that glorious art is a joy that no longer we see.

My grandfather taught to my father the knack of dissecting a hen,
He made him recite where was dark meat and light again and again and again.
He trained him to sharpen his knife on the steel,
And to flourish his blade in the air,
He shouted, "Alack! You do nothing but hack, when you ought to be slicing with care."
'Twas a gentleman's boast as he sat at a roast that he skillfully handled his knife;
And until a boy knew where the second joint grew he wasn't thought ready for life.

Now they whittle the meat in the kitchen and bring it piled up on a plate;
Be it roast beef or ham, or a turkey or lamb, it is passed in the ready-carved state.
And nobody jests with the carver and nobody praises his art;
There are grown men today who unblushingly say they can't get a drumstick apart,
But something has gone from the dinner, however expensive its cost,
That we viewed with delight in the age taken flight, ere the fine art of carving was lost.

HUNTERS DEN FOX, BUT CATCH ANOTHER

Annual Chase Is Staged by Club in Fairfax With 40 Riders Participating.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With more than 6,000 seals in the mail, the annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale was launched in Arlington County yesterday, under direction of Mrs. Myrtle Melnick, county chairman.

Mrs. R. N. Davis, public health nurse, says: "It should be looked upon as a great privilege to purchase and use the tuberculosis seals. I heartily indorse the use of the funds in the county being directed toward the undernourished child."

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, declared he knew of no greater work being done in Arlington County than that which is made possible from the funds derived from the sale of the seals.

"Illness is the greatest cause of depression and there is no disease that has any greater bearing on poverty than tuberculosis. I appeal to the citizens of the county to purchase their seals from the organization in the county in order that the money they spend will be used to relieve suffering within the county," he said.

Citizens of Arlington County observed Thanksgiving Day yesterday with union church services in several communities. In the afternoon and evening there were reunions at many homes. At Clarendon services were held at the Clarendon Methodist Church, conducted by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church. Services were also held at St. George's Episcopal Church, Arlington Presbyterian Church and the Ballston Presbyterian Church.

The day in general was one of the quietest in many years.

The largest single item in the tentative budget for 1932, which has been prepared by the city council, and on which a public hearing will be held December 10, is that for public schools, and totals $170,000, an increase over the 1931 budget. The next largest item is for interest and sinking fund for the payment of the public debt, $133,730.

Other principal items are: Sidewalks, sewers, maintenance and repairs, $31,040; street lighting, $25,111; health department, $13,780; street cleaning and trash department, $32,461; division of police, $64,215; division of fire, $43,970; courts, $16,365; city jail, $13,936; contingent fund, $40,023.

Under the heading of estmated receipts are included the items of current taxes for the year, $533,200; city licenses, $70,000; Police Court fines, $28,000. There are several smaller items, all under $4,000.

The public hearing will be in the City Hall at 8 o'clock the evening of December 10, and the ordinance will probably be adopted at the regular meeting on December 17.

The Thanksgiving service at Christ Episcopal Church, the Rev. William Jackson Morton, rector, was unusually largely attended, many visitors from out-of-town being present. The offering will be divided equally between the Alexandria Hospital and the Anne Lee Memorial Home for the Aged.

Union services were held in the Second Presbyterian Church with sermon by the Rev. N. A. Lineweaver, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, and union services were also held in the Del Ray M. E. Church South, the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor, officiating.

Judge Campbell Made Chief Justice of Appeals

Richmond, Va., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Preston W. Campbell, of Abingdon, today automatically became chief justice of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia as a consequence of the death of Chief Justice Robert R. Prentis, of Suffolk.

The constitution as amended in 1928 provides that the office of chief justice descends to the justice longest in continuous service. The death of Chief Justice Prentis, however, leaves a vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court of Appeals. The governor has the power to appoint a justice to serve until 30 days after the convening of the General Assembly in January.

SOCIETY

President and Mrs. Hoover Have Company at Thanksgiving Dinner; First Lady Attends Gray Ladies Tea.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover entertained a few close friends at dinner last evening at the White House.

Following their attendance at the Thanksgiving Day service at the Church of the Covenant yesterday morning, the President and Mrs. Hoover had luncheon informally at the White House.

Late yesterday afternoon Mrs. Hoover went to Walter Reed Hospital, where she attended the tea given by Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Pittsburgh, and the Gray Ladies of Walter Reed Hospital, at the Red Cross House, when many distinguished guests were present from official life as well as high-ranking officers of the Army and Navy and their wives.

Mrs. Rea, who founded this organization of volunteer workers of the Red Cross during the World War, came to Washington especially for this event, and she received yesterday afternoon, assisted by the Gray Ladies, Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the surgeon general, and the ladies of the post, including Mrs. C. R. Darnell, Mrs. Albert E. Truby, Mrs. William L. Keller, Mrs. L. J. Moncrief and Miss Margaret H. Lower, field director of the Red Cross.

Naval Relief Ball Brilliant Event.

The annual ball of the Navy Relief Society, given last evening at the Willard, presented a brilliant spectacle. Vice President Curtis was the special guest of honor. He arrived some time after the ball opened, and was met at the door by the chief of naval operations, Admiral William V. Pratt, and a cordon of Navy and Marine Corps officers, who escorted him and his party to their box. They were enthusiastically greeted by the large company when they entered the box, from which the Vice President and Mrs. Gann acknowledged the applause.

Mrs Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, headed the receiving line, assisted by Mrs. Ben H. Fuller, wife of the major commandant of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Butler, wife of the commandant of the navy yard, Rear Admiral Henry V. Butler. Mrs. William V. Pratt, who was chairman of the ball, made the presentations to Mrs. Adams, who was a charming figure in a gown of blue velvet, with some rare old lace on the bodice. Mrs. Pratt wore a delft blue crepe, fashioned on long, graceful lines. Mrs. Fuller wore a gown of green satin, and Mrs. Butler was in black net and black taffeta.

The Marine Band alternated with the Navy Band at either end of the ballroom, which was much decorated with palms, ferns and blossoms, and flags which gave the nautical touch. A cordon of officers was about the door to escort the distinguished guests to their boxes. Although it was an early party — 9 o'clock — the majority of the guests were late in arriving because of the many dinner parties preceding the ball.

The party accompanying the Vice President included his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gann; Col. and Mrs. Charles P. George, jr., his son-in-law and daughter; Mrs. Alvin T. Hert and her niece, Miss Eley; Maj. John M. Eager and Lieut. Don Lowry, who were dinner guests of the Vice President and Mrs. Gann before the ball. Mrs. Gann wore a gown of cloth of silver and superb lace.

Supper was served from 11 o'clock in the small ballroom adjoining the big ballroom. The tables were decorated with flowers, pink roses predominating. The guests danced until an early morning hour.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams entertained at dinner preceding the ball and had their guests in their box. They were Admiral and Mrs. William V. Pratt, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Morgan, and their son, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, jr.

The Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Fuller had as guests in their box Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams and Admiral and Mrs. Sumner E. W. Kittelle, the latter a daughter of the late Admiral Sigsbee.

Commander and Mrs. Charles Maddox had as guests in their box Capt. and Mrs. William Baggley, Commander and Mrs Stuart Brown and Commander and Mrs. Hamilton Bryan.

Capt. and Mrs. Frank D. Berrien entertained in their box their daughter, Miss Betsy Berrien; Miss Rose Walker Page, Mr. Ingham Mack and Mr. Gordon Dyke.

Vice Admiral William Rodgers gave his box to Col. and Mrs. John Lucas.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke entertained their box party and at dinner preceding the ball, Capt. and Mrs. Roland M Brainard, Miss Elizabeth Brainard, Miss Adele Jahncke, Lieut. Ford N. Taylor, jr., Lieut Raymond R. Waller and Lieut. McClellan.

Capt. and Mrs. Emory Land entertained at dinner, their guests being the box party of Mrs. Chester Dwight, Mrs. Land's mother, including Capt. and Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson, Maj. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Emeline Talbot and Mr. Paul Wilstach. The party of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ridley McLean included the Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Patrick Macnamara, the Naval Attache of the French Embassy, Capt. Camille Husson; Mr. Gale McLean, Miss Margot Wyeth and Mrs. McCook Knox, and the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill were Mr. and Mrs. William Seward Allen, of New York; Capt. and Mrs. Adolphus Staton and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schoelkopf.

The debutante stood with her mother in the Chinese room to receive the guests, wearing an attractive frock of white lame, made along princess lines, with short puff sleeves. She wore a corsage bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. MacArthur wore a gown of blue velvet, made simply on long lines, and a corsage bouquet of orchids.

Assisting Mrs. MacArthur were Mrs. Frederick H. Payne, wife of the assistant Secretary of War; Mrs. William V. Pratt, wife of the chief of naval operations; Mrs. Thomas T. Palms and Australian ferns were used with Southern smilax for decorations, together with tall standards of pink roses and white chrysanthemums in front of the bower of palms and ferns where the guests were received.

Tall silver vases of pink roses and white chrysanthemums were also used on the tea table placed at the west end of the ballroom. The same pink and white color scheme was also carried out in the cakes and confections on the table, one of the very large cakes having a sugar design on the top, of pink roses, tied with silver ribbon, and another one of pink with a large white chrysanthemum of sugar gave a very realistic imitation of the real flower. An unusual sugar confection that attracted particular attention, was a green four-leaf clover, about 18 inches high, that stood on a small easel on the table. On each one of the petals was a scene depicting some of the activities of the debutante, dancing, horseback riding, swimming and bridge. In the center of the clover leaf there was a heart of sugar with a full length photograph of the debutante also worked out in a very clever manner with sugar.

Dartmouth Club Invites Graduates of Stanford

Leland Stanford University graduates living in Washington have been invited by Edward Stafford, president of the local Dartmouth Club, to a luncheon in their honor at the National Press Club at 1 o'clock Saturday. Following the meal will be a telegraphic report of the Dartmouth-Stanford football game, to be played that afternoon in Boston.

Rivalry between the New England college and the Pacific Coast university has been heightened by the fact that both teams have been nicknamed the Indians. Stanford triumphed by one touchdown when Dartmouth traveled West to meet its eleven last year, and the Easterners are seeking revenge.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Into the Ditch.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I need advice and need it badly. About ten years ago when a stranger here I met a very fast crowd. Naturally being brought up by very strict New England parents, and an excellent home life, I was thrilled with this new life for a while. Well—the old story. A woman pays. I learned the bitter lesson. I struggled to find myself amid lost faith and crashed hopes.

I did get back where I once was and then met a man with whom I fell deeply in love. I didn't tell him of my past life for quite a while, as I wanted to make sure that we really cared for each other. When I finally told him he took it all right for a while, then suddenly changed, and I am sorry to say I am back in the old life again—with him. He was a gentleman till I told him, and had talked of marriage. He acts now as if he is getting tired of me. Please tell me what to do—I am crazy. I want to break away and start all over again and still keep this man, as I love him devotedly. How can I make him respect me and make things go as they were before I told him. Will be looking for an answer. PAID.

You are mistaken in believing that your present plight is due to the fact that you revealed your past behavior. It is due to the fact that you were weak enough to repeat that behavior when the man suggested it. Many a woman unfortunately has had to tell of just such a past. And many a man hearing of it has turned cad and decided that it was not necessary to consider the feelings or the rights of such a woman. If the woman was weak, the story was your story. If she was strong and persisted in her intention to live in a manner to justify self-respect, she found the man ready to meet her terms. The trouble with most women who find themselves in such predicaments is that they are that type of woman. They are not fundamentally convinced of the necessity for decency and character. They have moments when they think that it might be well to be able to look the world in the face. But the first man who happens along and suggests some back alley excursion finds such a woman just where she started.

If you are at last awake, your first step is to get rid of the man who found you on the highway and edged you back into the ditch. If you can love such a man, then you were not intended for the highway. Get rid of him, and tell him why. Do this if it kills you—which it won't. Few women have ever died over the loss of such form of insect. Then start to build your life up—instead of down. He will probably want to marry you when he finds that you do have a little character. But by the time he gets around to it you will have progressed so far that you would not have him on any terms. So get going.

Incidentally, if you should weaken, remember that he will leave you anyway. They always do. And who can blame them? Make a life for yourself before it is too late. And blame no one but yourself for the status you accept. The woman, not the man, decides that. Make your start—and let no one plant any detour signs in your way, or crowd you off the road. Just step on the gas and—go!

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 3:15 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 8:15 p. m. to 10:20 p. m. The danger hours are from 10 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8:10 p. m.

According to the astrological indications of November 27, it is a bad day for travel or for entering into contracts and agreements. All who occupy positions of trusts should exercise more than usual care, as serious upheavals are foretold. Antagonism between members of the same family are also indicated, as well as unexpected ruptures between engaged couples.

A child born on this November 27 will be frank, candid and outspoken; too much so at times for its own advancement. It will be fond of change of environment, but will always have a contented mind. It will read a great deal and be a convincing talker. It should marry early.

You, if born on November 27, are hasty in your judgment and lose your temper easily, although you do not give way to violent fits of passion. You are practical and matter-of-fact and have very little poetry or romanticism in your "make-up." You are fearless, self-confident and ambitious, and possess more than ordinary ability. Although quick and abrupt in your speech, it is never your intention to hurt others' feelings. When, quite unintentionally, you have done so as a result of your impulsiveness, you deeply regret it and are quick to make amends.

Your disposition is, as a rule, bright and sunny, although "April-esque," inasmuch as there will be frequent showers, which will rarely degenerate into storms. You always try your utmost to attain a high degree of perfection in any line to which you faithfully apply your energies. Quick, alert, and hardworking, you are a careful planner and keen manipulator. You have little use for shibboleths or precedents, and are more original than imitative in your methods.

You will be reasonably—not ecstatically—happy in your home life. As a matter of fact—be you man or woman—you should defer marriage until such time as you have acquired poise and are not so disposed to look upon incidents and trifles as events and troubles.

Successful people born November 27:

Frances A. Kemble, actress.
Cornelius Vanderbilt, financier.
Katherine Susan Anthony, social worker.
Margaret R. Lang, composer.
Alvey A. Adee, Second Assistant Secretary of State.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Evening gown of oddly incrusted and draped black chiffon velvet, with an exquisite crystal collar. (Courtesy of Jane Regny, Paris.)

On Caribbean Sea, Nov. 26.

THERE was once upon a time a little pretty blonde, with nice, fluffy, golden curls and big china blue eyes, and a predilection for pastry and sweets.

So one day the prince charming, who was her husband, fixed her with a stern and forbidding eye and said in no uncertain voice:

"My dear, you very well know I dislike plump blondes and baby-faced stares!"

And being only a woman and very much in love with her husband up to that moment, she, lovely lady, burst into tears and cried a whole day and night. But being also a very, very clever lovely lady, she realized that tears and wails wouldn't get her anywhere, so she forthwith consulted the Dah-ray Witch. And she and the Dah-ray Witch figured out various things.

First, a severe coiffeur, with a braid around the top of the head in corona effect. Result: Immediate lessening of the baby-like facial expression, and immediate adding of height to the ensemble. Next: Immediate adopting of rather low V necklines in all garments, and discarding of choker beads: Then: Practicing walking around the house for at least half an hour a day with two heavy books on the head—result, less double chin, longer neckline and great difference in carriage and posture, with almost immediate results. And last, semilong skirts always, despite the undeniable prettiness of her calves—and pumps, never strapped sandals.

What result? Well, not only her husband is courting her now, but all the other husbands in their set. And this will slay you—with the metamorphosis from a plump, fuzzy-haired and baby-faced and china doll eyed blonde to this statuesque creature, her personality and charm and interest and interests changed, too—and now she wonders how he or any one else ever lived with her before!

Truly a little of this and a dash of that are responsible for a great deal of chic in the present evening mode! What tucks and draping won't do, incrustations may—or at least one couturier, Jane Regny, has given each idea a chance to show its potency in the evening gown I have illustrated today. This gown is of black chiffon velvet, with the bodice and hip yoke a bias, spiral incrustation, and the waistline well accentuated by groups of tiny tucks. Below this, the skirt falls in two circular tiers, and there is a draped arrangement of the black velvet in a huge pouff arrangement on one side in back, which delicately suggests a misplaced bustle, and shows charmingly in front. And to finish this frock there is a really delightful collar of crystal beads which forms epaulet effects at the shoulders.

* * * *

Again I must warn you—copy this if you can, but unless you're skillful you may find you've made a sad mistake!

* * * *

Waves must be sharp and distinct and the new sausage curls placed where they'll do their sophisticated best, if one would be coiffured as smartly as the ladies I have illustrated above.

* * * *

Did you ever think that you couldn't sew? Well, with materials as inexpensive as they are nowadays that's a sad state of affairs—so how about taking your first sewing lesson with this week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make a simply gorlicious negligee without cutting or fitting anything! Yes, it's all a matter of draping and measuring, that's all—but on, it looks like the alangable milliyun dollahs. That's why you simply have to send for the leaflet telling you how to make it, so you can have one for yourself and make a couple for Christmas presents. Address your letter, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post, you know.

Au revoir!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

CONCERNING INSECTS.

THIS is the time for the advent of the aphids, or green plant lice.

When you sprinkle your plants over the tops and take care of them generally, the aphids can almost always be kept in check and thus prevented from doing much damage. But neglect your plants for even a short time and you will be surprised some day to find the young and tender branches of many of the usual house varieties literallly covered with green lice.

This insect increases with wonderful rapidity if left alone, and in a short time will utterly ruin any plant to which it has attached itself, if persistent and exterminating warfare is not waged against it.

Tobacco is the weapon with which to combat the aphids. To make this effective, a considerable quantity should be prepared and the plants held upside down and dipped in it. You may use a proprietary preparation, or you can make a solution of tobacco in your own kitchen. Merely boil a half pound of any cheap smoking tobacco in a gallon of water. After it has been boiling about twenty minutes, remove from the fire, strain and bottle. It will keep indefinitely. This mixture must be diluted with water until it is the color of table tea. To be effective, the plant must be permitted to remain in the solution for five minutes.

Smooth-leaved plants, like ferns, palms, rubber plants and English ivy, the pandanus aspidestras and dracaena, are usually attacked about this time by a hard-shelled little insect known as scale. The only way to banish this insect is to scrub him away. An old toothbrush is the proper instrument to use. Owing to his hard shell, insecticides have no effect on him. When you have removed every insect, wash the leaves with cold, soapy water and every day carry your plant to the bathroom or laundry tubs and sprinkle their tops. Cleanliness is the ounce of prevention that is worth the pound of cure when it comes to insect enemies on house plants.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

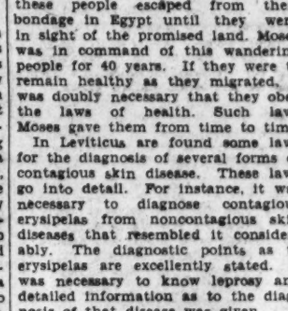
DECEPTIVE HONORS.

WHEN Longfellow wrote that things are not what they seem he may have had in mind the manner in which the value of honor holdings is sometimes dissipated and tricks apparently certain to make fail to materialize at the Bridge table.

Samuel Ostrow, of Erie, Pa., sent me the hand which I publish today, stating that he played it recently in a "family against family" game with Mrs. Ostrow as his partner. He sat South.

South—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
North-South not vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	1NT(1)	3♡	Pass
Pass

1. West's hand is better suited to a bid of notrump than a Takeout Double. The hand contains 3½ honor-tricks and is of even distribution. However, West's course at this time probably would not affect North and South's subsequent bidding.

2. West appears reasonably sure of a trick in clubs, the Ace of diamonds and 2 tricks in trumps. Perhaps a trick in spades may materialize. The Penalty Double, however, is questionable. Even if the contract is defeated 2 tricks, it merely increases East and West's honor count by 100 points.

West opened the Ace of diamonds and when Dummy disclosed a singleton in the suit shifted to the Queen of spades. This was a particularly undesirable lead from West's hand. The correct lead would have been the spade Queen. Dummy won this trick and the Declarer led the other high spade, discarding on the club 6. A low spade was next led, and the Declarer trumped and led the King of diamonds, upon which a club was discarded from Dummy. The Knave of diamonds was then led and trumped in Dummy and a club was led, which South won with the Ace. The Declarer next played the Ten of diamonds. West discarded his last spade and Dummy trumped. West was forced into the lead with a club and had no option but to continue this suit, Dummy trumping. A spade was led, but all three hands were now void of anything but trumps. East played the 4 of hearts, South the Ten of hearts, and West won with the Queen, but was compelled to concede the twelfth and thirteenth tricks to the Declarer. Although favorably situated, the King Queen of trumps guarded had produced but a single trick, due to the accuracy of South's play.

The opening of the club suit and its continuance instead of the diamond would have resulted no more favorably for the defending side. South would have refused to win the first lead of clubs and would have entered the Dummy with a spade and led the diamond, finessing the Ten spot and establishing the King upon which to discard one of Dummy's losing clubs. Of course, if West continued the clubs, then South would have no more losers in that suit.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question—How many tricks will 4 honor-tricks produce?

Answer—Eight honor-tricks will produce 5 low-card tricks. Consequently 4 honor-tricks will produce about 2½ low-card tricks, or a total of either 6 or 7 tricks.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

MOSAIC MEDICINE.

THE five books of Moses—Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy—contain a great deal of law, counsel, and advice that would be regarded as in substantial accord with present-day practice of both curative and preventive medicine.

These five books begin with an account of the creation of the world, and the succession of leaders from Adam and the days of creation, to Joseph and the bondage in Egypt. This serves as an introduction to an account of the life of Moses and his command of the Jews from the time these people escaped from their bondage in Egypt until they were in sight of the promised land. Moses was in command of this wandering people for 40 years. If they were to remain healthy as they migrated, it was doubly necessary that they obey the laws of health. Such laws Moses gave them from time to time.

In Leviticus are found some laws for the diagnosis of several forms of contagious skin disease. These laws go into detail. For instance, it was necessary to diagnose contagious erysipelas from noncontagious skin diseases that resembled it considerably. The diagnostic points as to erysipelas are excellently stated. It was necessary to know leprosy and detailed information as to the diagnosis of that disease was given.

The laws provided in detail for quarantine, isolation, and disinfection, and discriminated between the infectiousness of certain diseases and adjusted quarantine accordingly. The disinfectants recommended were the essential vegetable oils. These are in use today as germicides and they are recognized as potent. The advisability of preventing infective people from attending meetings is stated in the laws.

That some contagious diseases are transmissible during convalescence was recognized by sanitary laws of convalescents found also in Leciticus. The need of cleanliness to keep an occupied camp healthy is expressed in laws relating to burying excreta and night soil, and other laws which required that household and domestic waste be placed on dumps away from the camp. There are laws which relate to insanitary houses and to plumbing, or house drainage.

In embalming, use was made of the aromatic vegetable oils, substances that are sometimes used for that purpose today. The masterpiece in that line is the embalmed body of Lenin, and, in its preparation, oils were used.

Moses set an example which our twentieth century has been slow to follow when he had censuses taken of his people. There are States in the American Union where registration of births has not reached the plane set by Moses. Periodic census taking is only about 100 years old in America, and more than half the people of the world live in lands where censuses are never taken.

Among the other health laws are the Ten Commandments, found in Exodus.

YEAST AND CALORIES.

W. B. writes:

1. Please advise me through your health column if three yeast cakes a day will make a person gain weight.

2. Has yeast caloric value?

REPLY.

1. Yes, if it is long continued. It contains vitamin B complex and that is the appetite vitamin. Thus yeast contributes indirectly to gain in weight.

2. Yes. But the amount of it eaten is too small to contribute many calories. Eaten in small amounts it is valuable as a source of vitamins, minerals, and proteins.

KOONTZ JOINS BOARD OF ANACOSTIA BANK

Cashier Elected to Succeed Late James Toner; Began as Messenger.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Election of W. L. Koontz, cashier of the Anacostia Bank, to the directorate of that institution, was announced yesterday. Mr. Koontz, who succeeds the late James E. Toner on the board, has been associated with the bank since December 5, 1917, when he entered its employ as a messenger. He was elected cashier of the bank in May, 1926.

Mr. Koontz is treasurer of Washington Petroleum Products, Inc., president of the Koontz Service Station in Anacostia and a native of that section.

At the latest meeting of the board of Commercial Credit Co. at Baltimore, regular quarterly dividends on the 6½ and 7 per cent first preferred stocks, 8 per cent class B preferred and the $3 class A convertible stock were declared. The board also declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on the common stock. These dividends are payable December 31, to stockholders of record December 11.

Employe Participation Aids.

Employe participation in management and profits is enabling certain manufacturing groups to prosper in the midst of depression, according to Dr. Harrison E. Howe, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, journal of the American Chemical Society. Industry, he declares, must find a way more nearly to equalize between capital and labor the benefits arising from technological advances.

Fidelity Investment Association, with local offices, reports volume of business for October of $4,442,000, compared with $3,568,000 in October, 1930, a gain of $874,000, or 215 per cent, and one of the largest monthly gains reported thus far this year.

For the ten months of 1931 annuity contracts totaled $46,702,000, against $40,160,000 in the corresponding ten months of last year, an increase of $6,542,000, or 13.3 per cent. The association's resources have advanced from $25,047,124, as of January 1, 1931, to $29,142,192, as of November 15, an addition of $4,095,068. The Fidelity plan is used both in the establishment of individual annuities and as a reserve or sinking fund for business.

Effects of Grain Rise.

The cheering effect of better grain prices has not been confined to the farmer alone, but has already made itself felt by business men in many lines, according to an investigation by Investors Syndicate, with local offices, through its offices in 51 cities of the United States and Canada.

Retailers, for example, are finding their sales prospects materially improved in many sections which formerly appeared to hold little promise for the next few months. Bankers find the liquidity of many of their mortgages improved.

Investors Syndicate reports a sharp upturn in sales of its investment certificates in the first two weeks of November. Life insurance sales show an improvement in trend. Railroads have already experienced a slight gain in carloadings at a time of year when the trend is normally downward.

Benefits to Farmers.

The farmers themselves are said to have profited to the extent of more than $400,000,000 by the recent grain price rise, or at the rate of $20,000,000 for each advance of one cent per bushel.

Directors of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., declared the regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on the $50 par value preference stock, payable December 15 to stockholders of record December 5.

It was decided that in view of general business conditions all earnings beyond the preference stock dividend should be conserved and that the commen dividends should not be declared until business resumes a more normal trend.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Wall street will resume business activities tomorrow after being closed today for the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

Although loadings are still at an unsatisfactory level, the prospects of an improvement in traffic from the automobile industry are good, according to Walter S. Franklin, president of the Wabash Railway. He said the history of the industry has shown a three-year cycle for the business, that it has had two poor years and feels that 1932 should be better.

The New York Stock Exchange has received notice from the Outlet Co. of a proposed reduction in authorized first preferred stock from $2,150,000 to $1,350,000, and in second preferred stock from $425,000 to $350,000.

A new stock exchange firm, the principal partners of which are former Harris, Forbes & Co. men, will open for business next Monday under the name of Holsapple, Safford & Co. The floor member of the new firm is Joseph H. Amy. The other members are Earle Holsapple and George Safford and associated with them will be Derby Farrington, H. H. Klein, Clifford Moss and James Hayes.

Perfect Circle piston ring production has been stepped up 66 per cent in all three of the Perfect Circle Co.'s plants at Hagerstown, Tipton and New Castle, Ind., Macy O. Teetor factory manager, announced. He said one reason for the increase was the large orders received from car manufacturers who have started to build their 1932 line of cars.

A syndicate comprising the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, the Guaranty Co., the National City Co., First Securities Corporation of Minnesota, and the Wells-Dickett Co., are offering a new issue of $1,828,920 City of Minneapolis, Minn., 4½ per cent bonds. The bonds, maturing from December 1, 1932 to 1951, inclusive, are priced to yield 4.20 per cent. They are issued for permanent improvements, public relief and other purposes and are direct obligations of the city.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT WILL come as a happy surprise to music lovers of the Capital that definite arrangements have now been consummated for the Cosmopolitan Grand Opera Company to present six operas in the National Theater, commencing Monday, January 4, under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene. This engagement promises to supply one of the outstanding musical events of the season.

Jacques Samossoud, former director of the Washington Civic Opera, and one of the most popular figures ever identified with local musical circles, will conduct all performances.

Harry C. Baker, managing director of the organization, who is in Washington for a few days in the interest of the proposed season of major operatic works, states that his company will include many of the noted artists from the European opera world never before heard in America, as well as such favorites as Dreda Aves, at present with the Metropolitan in New York; Bianca Saroya, Dimitri Onefrei and Ivan Ivantzoff, formerly with the San Carlo and Philadelphia Opera Companies; Mario Valle, formerly with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Dorothy Dickerson, a young American prima donna who recently won recognition with the Paris Opera.

Other well-known artists to be heard here include Gladys Mathew, Alexander Kurganoff, Wallace Thomas, Nicholai Melnikoff, Amund Sjovic and Vladimir Doubinsky.

Maestro Samossoud will bring an orchestra of 35 soloists and the chorus and ballet will number about 40.

A varied list of the most popular operas have been selected as the repertoire for the Washington engagement, including "Il Trovatore," in Italian; "Rigoletto," in Italian; "Carmen," in French; "Hansel and Gretel," in German, and "Il Pagliacci," in Italian, as a double bill; "Faust," in French and "Romeo et Juliet," in French. A special performance of "Hansel and Gretel" in English also will be given.

Mrs. Wilson-Greene announces that the subscription books will be open and seat reservations will be available for any or all performances within a few days. Popular prices will prevail.

Selected after careful study as America's outstanding director, D. W. Griffith will supervise the mammoth four-day pageant based upon the life of George Washington, which will be the keynote of the Washington bicentennial celebration to be held in the National Capital from next February 22 to November 24.

The famed director has formally accepted the invitation of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission appointed by Congress.

The pageant, which will be staged at the foot of the Washington Monument on the evenings of June 22 to 25, inclusive, is confidently expected to be the greatest event of its kind ever conceived. The greatest artistic and technical brains of the country are being mobilized for collaboration, and already tentative plans assure a spectacle far eclipsing "The Miracle" or "The Passion Play."

These plans call for the participation of scores of the leading artists of the stage and screen, assisted by more than 5,000 amateur actors and a chorus of 2,000 trained voices; for the massed bands of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps of more than 500 instruments; for the collaboration of Arthur Hadley and Deems Taylor on the music and of Paul Kester and Charlton Andrews on the book, and for the leadership of Dr. Walter Damrosch and John Philip Sousa for the chorus and bands, respectively.

Almost every name of importance upon the stage and screen and upon the operatic and concert stages will be included in the pageant roster.

The following have already accepted: Margaret Anglin, John Barrymore, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Walter Hampden, Mary Brian, May Buckley, Constance Collier, Henrietta Crosman, Margaret Dale, Robert Downing, William S. Hart, Gus Edwards, Taylor Holmes, Doris Keane, Myrna Loy, Fredric March, Tully Marshall, Burr McIntosh, Antonio Moreno, Carmel Myers, Mme. Ellen Beach Yaw, Sarah Padden, Corliss Palmer, Ruth Roland, Effie Shannon, Fred Stone, Fay Templeton, Tom Terriss, Bryant Washburn, Jane Winton, Anna May Wong, Fay Wray, Hobart Bosworth, Jean Harlow, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn and William Faversham.

While the pageant play will be the highlight of the Washington celebration, it will by no means overshadow innumerable other events scheduled for the centennial. Each State in the Union will have its own celebration from Washington's Birthday to Thanksgiving, but the Capital exercises will be the hub of the wheel, so to speak.

Even if you don't care for his work—and you probably will, since he is one of the most engaging of the stage's monologists—it would be just as well not to heckle Charles Irwin, master of ceremonies with Fanchon & Marco's "Marches Militaires" Idea, opening at the Fox today.

Mr. Irwin was once middleweight champion of the British army. He was a captain in the Orient.

And if this does not sufficiently identify him, he was also the master of ceremonies in Paul Whiteman's superb, but belated, screen revue, "The King of Jazz," that sumptuous production which, despite the fact that it came too late to click at the box-offices, demonstrated conclusively that John Murray Anderson, its director, knew what the cinema was all about and how it could be made to jump through, roll over, play dead and do all the other doggie tricks.

And it won't be long now until we will know definitely once and for all whether there is really any efficacy in a wish-bone, or not.

Just as soon as it has hung on the gas jet long enough to dry out thoroughly!

By the way, how is YOUR indigestion?

TREASON IS CHARGED ON GERMAN PAPERS

Socialist Documents Seized at Hesse Stir Republic; Reds Involved.

Berlin, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Police at Darmstadt announced today they had seized documents of a highly treasonable character in the homes of National Socialist leaders in Hesse, and tonight the whole country was in a state of political excitement, comparable to that in England after publication of the Zinovieff letters in 1927.

The National Socialists assert that the documents are forgeries, and that the party knew nothing at all about them until police announced their discovery.

One version was that the documents outlined a plan of campaign to be adopted when the party comes into power. It calls for confiscation of foodstuffs, establishment of public kitchens, confiscation of private property and compulsory labor for all gentile Germans above the age of 16.

In some quarters it was said that these orders were to be applicable only if Communists should seize power and the National Socialists could drive them out.

What interested the people more than anything else was whether the party actually advocates so extreme a program as confiscation of bank accounts and abolition of private property. Should the seized documents be proved genuine, it probably would result in the loss of many members of the party.

Leipsig, Germany, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Attorney General Karl Werner said today it was impossible to determine at present whether documents seized in police raids at Darmstadt contained a proof of treasonable activity by members of the National Socialist Party.

Montreal Bank Closes 2 Branches in Mexico

Montreal, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Branches of the Bank of Montreal in Tampico and Vera Cruz, Mexico, have been closed.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 33.82 per cent, compared with 35.57 last week.

Bostwick Colt Holds Lead To End

White Clover II Runs Second After Much Interference.

Halcyon Easy Victor Over Blenheim in Fourth Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS,
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 26.—A. C. Bostwick's Mate capped his 3-year-old racing with a clean-cut victory in the Thanksgiving Handicap, $10,000 added, which featured a Thanksgiving Day program of unusual merit and brought to the Prince Georges course the largest crowd in the history of Bowie racing. Fox Catcher Farm's White Clover II, meeting with much interference and carried wide by Mate at the stretch turn, was second, beaten by a neck. Mrs. John D. Hertz's Valenciennes was third, 2¼ lengths away. Dr. Freeland was fourth.

The value of the stake to the winner was $9,275. The time for the 1 3-16 miles was 1:58 4-5. The winner paid $6.70. The victory carried Mate's winnings to $273,425, seventh among American horses, but failed to equal the 1931 winnings of either Twenty Grand or Top Flight.

More Than 30,000 See Racing.

This Thanksgiving Day was the brightest in memory for this race course. The air was crisp, but pleasant. More than 30,000 came to the course for the racing. Near the end of Eastern racing for the year, no better conditions could exist to bring to the course so large and representative a card.

Nine horses started in the feature. Mate, a 3-year-old, gave away much weight to all the others, with 127 pounds. Blind Lane was away first, with Allez Vite close behind. Then Mate gradually gained the lead and increased it in the stretch, as he forced White Clover II to the middle of the track. Ellis made a strong finish on Mate. He has ridden the Bostwick horse in most of his races.

Dr. Freeland ran an even race, but found the distance slightly too far. Valenciennes closed fast getting third by a length over Dr. Freeland. The crowd was larger than the capacity of the mutuel plant, and the races were running late long before the feature had been reached.

C. V. Whitney's Halcyon showed the way for a mile and 70 yards in the fourth race, the Old Virginia, and won by two and a half lengths in 1:43 4-5. The record is 1:43. Blenheim, Wheatley Stable entry, was second, a nose in front of F. F. Brandt's Ell Weir. Whipper Cracker was fourth, a head away from the third horse. Robertson sent Halcyon to the front, and he withstood the challenge of Blenheim to the back stretch. Ell Weir was close to Blenheim, finally getting second, but Blenheim came again in the stretch to get place. The winner paid $9.40.

Mrs. M. L. Schwartz started her first horse, Black Board, in the first

Desperate Second-Half Rally Fails Commodores in Season's Final Game.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Vanderbilt University, among the great elevens of the Southern Conference in years gone by, was defeated today in the final game of the season, as Alabama drove to a 14-to-6 victory.

It was the first time in eighteen years the Commodores have lost as many as four conference contests in one season. Vanderbilt previously had lost to Tulane, Georgia and Tennessee.

Literally tearing the Vandy line to shreds in the first two quarters, the crimson-clad warriors marched to two touchdowns via the running and plunging of its three sterling backs—John (Hurry) Cain, Leon Long and Hillman Holley. And that was the margin of victory, despite the Commodores' desperate drive in the last half.

HE THROWED HIM, GOSH DARN IT

Kirilenko, Riled, Ends Daviscourt With One Big Thud.

By SI CORNTASSLE.
(As Told to Bob Considine.)

WAL, the boys were at it again last night deyown thar at the Washington Auditorium, and a right smart mess of wrestling they put on for nigh onto about 3,000 rassle folks, what with that big Rooshun, Matros Kirilenko, and that rough old Dick Daviscourt a'going after each other with some dad-gummed veenom.

Wal, they just stood there and whaled tar out'n each other for most 30 minutes, when sudden-like what should happen but Mister Daviscourt got a shank all tangled up in one of them ropes which encircles the mat, and when the Rooshun goes to help him out of the dad-gummed tangle what should Mister Daviscourt do but kick him plump right in the victuals, being a right smart unfair thing to do when you come right deyown to it.

Wal, it was just too much for the Rooshun. He a'gets up sort of uncertain like, for his stomach musta been given him coniptions, and seizes aholt of Daviscourt no end rough. He just slings Mister Daviscourt's boy around the play like as how he weight 26 pounds instead of 220 pounds, and for long Mister Daviscourt was sort of crazy and his eyes don't have no light in them.

Whata Holt, Oh Whata Holt.

Wal, then the Rooshun gets a holt underneath Mister Daviscourt and a h'ists him up, wal, about 6 feet 1 or 2, and calumps him down on the flat of his back. Quick as all that, what should the Rooshun do but flop down a'there on top of him and it twarent no time before the referee, a Mister Burns, a'counted one, two, three and out, and raised the Rooshun's hand to what you might call signifty the victor.

Yall might be interested to know that Mister Londos, the champeen of them all and the smartest looking gent you'd wanta lay eyes upon, is a-coming to town next Thursday night, right deeyown at our old auditorium and Mister Turner, the gent who brings the matches to town, is going to sic him on the same Rooshun who won last night. Looks to me like thata there match will be the best us folks deeyown thisa way have saw in many moons, like the fella says, for the Rooshun is one of the dad-gummest strong men you ever laid a spec on, and Mister Londos ain't had his shoulders deeyown thar on the mat since Mirandy's sciaticky set in, back in ought-eight.

Don't get the notion that the Rooshun's match with Mister Daviscourt was the hull dingbusted shebang last night, because they had some right smart preliminaries or I'll be a hornswaggled son of a silo. Right off the bat Mister Gei—something (lemme take a look at that thar programmy, son) humm-humm, Mister Geicewicz licked tarnation out'n Mister Abe Kashey in nine minutes with one of them body salaams.

Movie Star Right Smart Versatyle.

Then Mister George Kotsonaros, the movie actor, dumped Mister Don De Laun ullover the place and pinned his shoulder blades square on the mat in 20 minutes with as pretty a backdrop as you might wanta see. Wal, they hadn't hardly got out'n the ring when Mister Paul Jones and Mister Chief White Feather a'hustled in and justa raised cain for 30 minutes before they hauled off and rung

Cornell Drive Beats Penn By 7-0

Desperate Passes of Penn Meet With Interception.

By ALAN GOULD.
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Cornell's youthful back field powerhouse, Bart Viviano, proved too much for Pennsylvania to handle today for the second straight year. As a result Cornell whipped its ancient rival, 7 to 0, in a closely-fought Thanksgiving Day battle before a crowd of 70,000 spectators.

Viviano scored the only touchdown, early in the first period, as the climax of a brilliant 80-yard drive down the field. He then played a spectacular role in the Cornell defense that repulsed all of Pennsylvania's countercharges.

Quakers Lost But Save Goal Posts.

Although the Quakers, lacking a real punch, lost the holiday classic for the second successive year, they again saved their goal posts from being ripped up by the victorious Cornell rooters. Rival adherents surged from one end of the field to the other in the demonstration after the game but Pennsylvania's superior numbers preserved the uprights. Many a head was punched, however, before the melee broke up.

The game was largely devoid of thrills after Cornell swept down the field at the outset to post its decisive margin on the score board. Jack Ferraro, fleet sophomore back, aided Viviano in the touchdown drive launched from Cornell's 20-yard line, tossing a pass to Dick Beyer, that was good for a gain of 27 yards and planted the ball on Penn's 18.

From there, Viviano took charge of the ball-lugging aided by a 5-yard off-side penalty against Penn. The broad-shouldered Cornell back plunged across the goal line on the last of four line bucks from the 5-yard line. Les Handleman place kicked the extra point.

Pennsylvania came back with a series of brisk counter charges, featuring some fine line plunging by Ford and Perina. The first and best opportunity for the Quakers to score in the early part of the second period, went glimmering when Perina fumbled and Beyer recovered on Cornell's 17-yard line.

Pennsylvania Aerials Fail.

Thereafter Pennsylvania tried desperately to score through the air but so many aerials were intercepted that it looked as though the Quaker tossers were using Cornell's defense men for targets. Three Penn forwards were caught by Phil Kline, two by Beyer and one by Viviano in breaking up a half-dozen threats.

Cornell had a slight margin in the statistics, registering nine first downs and 139 yards by rushing as compared with Penn's eight first downs and 136 yards. Penn completed only three out of 21 forwards for aggregate gains of 23 yards. Cornell completed one out of nine for 27.

Florida Team Bows To California, 13-0

Los Angeles, Nov. 26 (U.P.).—The University of California at Los Angeles defeated Florida today, 13 to 0.

The Bruins' first score came in the opening of the third quarter when Keeble passed to Mulhaupt, who went over for a touchdown. The try for goal failed. Keeble dived over from the 1-foot line to score the second touchdown. Decker converted.

Nebraska Grid Star Elusive as to Wedding

Pittsburgh, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Whether Hugh Rhea, tackle of the University of Nebraska football team, and Miss Margaret Danielson, formerly of Spencer, Nebr., were married here late today as Rhea had said they would be, was a matter of considerable doubt tonight.

Rhea remained in Pittsburgh after his teammates had left for home this afternoon following upon the game with Pitt. He was registered at a downtown hotel, but declined to answer the telephone or the door.

Earlier in the day, Rhea denied reports from Lincoln, Nebr., that he and Miss Danielson had been married since last July, and said that the marriage would take place after the Pitt game this afternoon. Miss Danielson is a teacher of dramatics in the school at Saxton, Pa.

Indiana Eleven Is Winner In Big Ten Tournament

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

STAGG FIELD, Chicago, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—The tournament of the losers wound up in a 6-to-0 triumph for Indiana over Chicago.

The Hoosiers and the Maroons played Illinois and Iowa, all trailers in the Western Conference championship race, today in the strangest football spectacle ever offered in the Big Ten funds for charity. Only about 8,000 spectators turned out for the Thanksgiving Day football festival, with receipts around $16,000. As a result, about $15,000 will go to the governors' relief funds in the seven States comprising the Western Conference territory.

Under the conditions of this unique round robin tournament, Indiana was thrown into the field with Illinois, while Chicago was matched with Iowa. These teams played two periods, with the winner meeting in another two-period game for the tournament championship, the only championship any of the contestants had a chance to win this season.

Indiana Wins on First Downs.

Indiana was the first to emerge triumphant, winning the decision over Illinois, although neither team scored. The Hoosiers, however, were awarded the verdict on a basis of having registered eight first downs to four for the Illini.

Chicago battled Iowa in the real thriller of the afternoon, with Chicago snatching a 7-to-0 victory. The crippled, but game crew of Maroons seized the advantage of a break five minutes after their second period started. The Hawkeyes had been shoved back to their own 35-yard line, forcing Kriz to punt. The ball dropped into the arms of Pete Zimmer, who was standing on Chicago's 20-yard line. The Maroons' right half back shook off three tacklers, darted first one way and then the other, and finally finding a clear path ahead of him dashed on for 80 yards and a touchdown. Hamberg kicked the extra point from placement, giving the Maroons a 7-to-0 triumph.

The Maroons, although beaten by Indiana, outplayed the Hoosiers, registering six first downs to four for the invaders. After Indiana had scored Chicago rushed the ball to Indiana's 2-yard line on spectacular runs by Sahlin, Stagg and Zimmer, but a fumble ruined the golden chance of the Maroons to win or at least tie the score. With less than 2 yards to go, Vin Sahlin, Chicago half back, who was about to become a Chicago hero, fumbled the ball in the fierce charging of Indiana's line in the attempt to go over for a touchdown.

Saluski Runs to Score.

Indiana scored early in the first period, after one drive had been turned back, Sahlin punted to his own 38-yard line, and on the first play Stanley Saluski, Indiana's right half back, smashed through center then reversed going to the right side of his own line for a 38-yard gallop and a touchdown. Cassels, of the Maroons, leaped into the air to block Edmond's kick for goal.

Today's victory was the second the Hoosiers have scored over Chicago, winning in the regular season by the score of 32 to 6.

PITT ROUTS NEBRASKA, 40 TO 0

23,000 See "Big Six" Champs Mauled at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Thanksgiving Day's most important interesctional football game was turned into a rout here today when the powerful University of Pittsburgh machine swamped the University of Nebraska, 40 to 0, before 23,000 spectators to enhance its claim to the Eastern title.

The Big Six champions folded up like a tent before the Panthers' aerial offensive and line plunging. Only once did the Cornhuskers, who outweighed the Pitt eleven, threaten to score, and that was in the second period, when they advanced the oval 81 yards to Pitt's 5-yard stripe through a series of forward passes.

Sauer, Nebraska's plunging full back, made the mistake of trying another forward, which Tormey, playing in the place of Daugherty at center for Pitt, intercepted and ran 23 yards before he was tackled.

The strong Nebraska line did not click as the pony express Panther backfield went through gaping holes made for them by their own forward wall, impregnable except for one occasion during the contest.

Warren Heller, Steelton, Pa., left half back and one of the East's leading scorers, tallied four touchdowns. Michael Sebastian, Sharon, Pa., playing at right half back for Paul Reider, who suffered a broken bone in his left shoulder when tackled hard in the initial frame, set the stage for some of Heller's markers with several sensational sprints. Nebraska was unable to match the speed of the fast-flying Sebastian, who also flipped forward passes that netted long gains.

Hugh Rhea, Nebraska's all-America tackle, saw little action, being removed in the first period when Heller crashed his left tackle for 6 points. He returned to the fray later, however, only to be replaced again.

VIRGINIA 13-6 VICTIM OF CAROLINA

Branch Ties Score in 2d Quarter, Running Back Punt.

Special to The Washington Post.

KENAN STADIUM, Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 26.—North Carolina closed its regular season today with a 13-6 win over Virginia. The Tarheels led in first downs, 15 to 4, but didn't break the 6-6 tie until the last quarter.

Virginia scored in the second quarter, Reiss recovering Slusser's fumole on Carolina's 30, and Captain Thomas driving it down and passing 5 yards over the goal to Myers for the score. Brewer's place kick for point was bad.

Carolina threatened several times and scored in the third quarter on a brilliant 44-yard punt return down the sidelines by Johnny Branch, and again in the fourth quarter on a 1-yard line buck by Lassiter, following a short 18-yard march which was started when Virginia was penalized for holding. Lassiter missed the place kick for the first point, and Branch drop-kicked the last.

A crowd estimated at 23,000 witnessed the game, which was one of the best played in Carolina's stadium this year.

Branch, Slusser, Lassiter and Thompson, in order, led the Carolina ground-gainers, while the whole line played fine ball. Branch, suspended for six weeks for breaking training, was reinstated to play in his final game and performed brilliantly, on running the ball from scrimmage and on punt returns.

Capt. Bill Thomas in the back field and Center Lewis Reiss in the line played the greatest ball for Virginia, the former being high ground gainer with 64 yards in seventeen tries and passing for Virginia's one touchdown after punting a great game, and the latter giving Carolina all manner of trouble breaking

Holy Cross Rally Beats Boston College by 7 to 6

HARVARD STADIUM, Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—One of the greatest teams in Holy Cross football history had to put on a late rally to nose out the weakest Boston College eleven in many years by a scant 7-6 score here today in the twenty-ninth meeting of these ardent Jesuit school rivals.

Several times before, Holy Cross made deep advances into Boston College territory, but the Eagle secondaries broke up the Crusaders' numerous overhead attacks and blocked the field goal try that Tony Colucci, crack Crusader end, attempted from Boston College's 19-yard line in the opening period.

In the second period, the Eagles broke through the Crusaders' line to block a punt after Capt. O'Connell turned over the kicking assignment to Jarvis, his understudy. A sophomore substitute tackle, Ezmund, burst through to block Jarvis' kick on Holy Cross' 20-yard line and John Devenuti recovered and ran for a touchdown, repeating the feat that gave B. C. a last-minute win over Centre several weeks ago. Freitas, substitute quarter back, was unable to drop kick the extra point, but the Eagles managed to nurse this slim lead until late in the game.

Lateral Pass Scores for Cardinals

Whelan Gallops Over Line in 3d Period to Break Tie.

Sheary Also Scores; Loyola's Air Game Is Checked.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

STEALING first the very weapon of the enemy, a sleight-handed lateral off a double pass, which sent Tom Whelan, untouched by human hands, to a touchdown, and then showing its own hand and tactics in a bruising off tackle run by Buster Sheary, Catholic University's Cardinals rolled safely into anchor for the eighth straight time this season yesterday afternoon, with a 13-0 decision over Loyola of Baltimore tucked under their arms and the cheers of 7,000 spectators sending a wave of garrulous sound up out of Catholic University's deep-dished bowl.

It was cheer which must have been meant even more for the linemen than for C. U.'s great backs, for those oftunsung front defense men did yeoman service all afternoon in first checking well the battering assault of the bigger Baltimoreans and most importantly reaching eager and sure hands high into the air to confound the highly touted Loyola aerial offense.

Monaco Paves the Way.

Behind Nick Monaco, left guard, both touchdowns were scored, and Whitey Ambrose, burly center, had he been some reincarnated Nungesser, could not have been more deadly with the enemy's aerial sallies, six of which he brought to ignominous ends.

Catholic's initial touchdown came in the third quarter only after three mighty drives had collapsed on the brink of the goal line. Whelan opened the gates for it when he slipped 30 yards through most of the Loyola team in a frenzy of hip-shifting and straight-arming, which advanced the ball to Loyola's 35-yard line. Whelan passed to Fraatz for 15 more yards. Sheary, head down and legs driving like the rods of a freight locomotive, carried the middle of the Loyola line with him for 9 yards, to Loyola's 11. DeMello and Whelan were smeared, and Whelan's pass was boosted up in the air by Dunne and fell into Ambrose's arms on the 8-yard line. Sheary got two, and DeMello went 15 yards behind the line of scrimmage before he could shake off the Loyola ends and make up the distance again. Then, after the ball had been shifted about like a hot rivet, Sheary chested the oval to Whelan on the perfectly conceived lateral and Whelan ran only as this back can, for his 15th touchdown of the year. DeMello's placement was hard and true.

McVean, Injured, Is Withdrawn.

Johnny Oliver, inserted in the game in relief of Charley McVean, after a great exhibition of play on the part of the former Gonzagan—whose right leg was injured when he was roughed while kicking in the last quarter—smoothed the path for the second touchdown when he knifed his 150 pounds viciously through an open field and deposited the pigskin on Loyola's 23-yard line, after a 26-yard runback of Dellaire's punt.

DeMello personally moved the ball up to Loyola's 8-yard line on two great bucks and Sheary burst through tackle for the touchdown, beating off two tacklers as he swept wide around the secondaries. DeMello's kick was cockeyed.

Concentrating on Dallaire and Curtis, the cause and effect of Loyola's famed passing threat, Catholic University's ball hawks took the sting

Utah Indians Scalp State for Mountain Title

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Utah University's Indians went on the warpath again today, scalped the Farmers from Utah State Agricultural College and returned from the field of battle with their fourth consecutive Rocky Mountain Conference football title. The score was 34 to 0.

Although the field was slippery, Utah's passing attack functioned perfectly and its running attack worked nicely in spots, despite the stiff opposition offered by the hard-charging Utah State line. Utah also took advantage of most of the breaks, converting one Aggie fumble into a touchdown in the first quarter.

The Aggies' brilliant running game generally halted after the ball was carried into Utah territory, where the Indian forward wall braced and the Redskins took the ball on downs.

Kentucky Holds Tennessee to Tie

18,000 See Wildcats Blast Tennessee's Dixie Conference Hopes, 6-6.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 26 (U.P.).—Kentucky University ended Tennessee's Southern Conference football hopes this afternoon by holding the latter to a 6-6 draw before 18,000 fans. McEver, of Tennessee, and Kelley, of Kentucky, tried hard to break the tie, but both teams battled on an even basis.

At the beginning of the last quarter Feathers, Tennessee's brilliant half back, attempted a punt which was blocked by Davidson, Kentucky guard. Kreuter, Kentucky end, picked up the ball and ran across the goal line to tie the score. Tennessee then began a vicious drive down the field to the 1-yard line, when Kentucky punted out of danger.

Tennessee had been expected to win.

MARYLAND U. WINS OVER HOPKINS

Annual Game Results in 35-14 Victory for Old Liners.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 26.—University of Maryland overpowered Johns Hopkins, 35 to 14, for the fourth successive one-sided triumph as 12,000 spectators were kept in the stands through spectacular football alone at the stadium today.

The Thanksgiving Day contest, an annual event in this city since 1915, was almost entirely lacking in gridiron frills. The rest period between halves was marked only by the most formal salutations on the part of the rival bands. The University of Maryland crowd was cold in success and Hopkins had cause for little more than sporadic cheering, though its team did as well as most expected

Hopkins Team Always Hopeful.

Despite the certainty of the ultimate result when a mixed team of first and second string players scored two touchdowns for Maryland against Hopkins' best in the first period there was always the lingering expectation that the Homewood team might perform some unusual feats. The hope was not denied.

In the last quarter, when the courage of almost any team would have been broken by the adverse score of 35 to 7, Don Kelly, Hopkins quarter back, gathered the ball to his chest, from a Maryland kick-off that followed the last touchdown for the Terrapins.

He began running on his own 13-yard line, and was hidden by the mass of converging players, friends and foe Instead of falling in the grasp of a tackler, he catapulted into the clear space beyond the pile, and found an unobstructed field ahead.

Line after line he covered, but Ray Poppelman of the leading Maryland stars of the day, was in full pursuit. Kelly, tired by the battering of the entire game, could not gather speed to outstrip the Marylander, who had entered the fray in the second half, and Poppelman hauled him down on the 7-yard line.

Undaunted, Kelly called a forward pass play on the first down, and Boot Ives, left end, crossing to the other side of the line, gathered in Henry Beeler's toss for the second Hopkins' touchdown. Those two plays sent the Hopkins fans home as satisfied as possible, in view of the manner in which Maryland's stronger, faster team rolled back the Blue Jays all afternoon.

As for Maryland supporters, they were as satiated upon touchdowns as they had been upon turkey a few hours before. They had seen a team of six reserves and five regulars pound out two touchdowns against Hopkins in the initial quarter. They had watched the regulars romp for three more in the second half. They

Marquette Humbles Drake Eleven, 32-6

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—After a slow start during which Drake University had a 6-to-0 advantage at the half, Marquette University gridders battered their way to 32-to-6 victory over the Bulldogs here today.

Johnny Sisk, Marquette half back, ended his college football in a blaze of glory, being responsible, with E. Ronzani, quarter back, and Halfman, full back, for the Hilltoppers' repeated promenades down the field in the second half.

Pass Enables Colonials to Gain Tie

Chambers Gets Toss Over Goal Line in Last Quarter.

7,000 Watch Nodaks Score at Start on Lateral Pass.

By JACK ESPEY.

AS 7,000 hearts throbbed and skipped, a fighting George Washington eleven came from behind in the ebbing minutes of a football drama yesterday in Griffith Stadium to tie and almost defeat a rugged North Dakota team, one of the most powerful gridiron machines to invade the Capital this season. The score was 6 to 6.

Victory beckoned the spirited charges of Coach Jim Pixlee in those tense moments when the hardy visitors from the north country began to tire under a devastating attack, but victory proved only a flirtatious and irritating specter as quickly rising hopes in the ranks of the Colonials and their supporters grouped solidly in the sideline stands, were dashed suddenly to the ground with the ill-fated placement kick attempted by Substitute Jack Jones for the extra point after touchdown.

A matter of 18 inches, the margin by which Jones' kick missed the right goal post, was the difference between a gratifying tie score and a triumph that would have gone into George Washington football history as probably the greatest.

Frenzied G. W. Rooters Cheer Prematurely.

Rushed in the fray in place of Full Back Finis Parrish after Wayne Chambers had scored the tying touchdown on a short pass from Lee Carlin. Jones took a position about 10 yards behind the scrimmage line and drove his right foot into the ball, held by Carlin.

The kick had the proper height, but curved off its course just as it appeared it would pass over the crossbar and between the uprights. A mighty cheer went up from tht G. W. stands from where the kick looked good. But the echo had not died away when Referee Paul Magoffin waved his arms as a signal of failure. Less than a minute later the game was over with North Dakota in possession of the ball near midfield.

If ever a George Washington football team earned a victory it was in this fast, slashing game, which incidentally was witnessed by a pitifully small crowd considering the caliber of play shown. Four times did the undaunted Colonials pound and pass their way beyond the enemy 20-yard line after North Dakota, on the impetus of a powerful series of spinners, reverses and fake reverses had registered its touchdown in the first part of the second quarter.

Following its score, North Dakota never was able to penetrate deeper than George Washington's 27-yard line as the Buff and Blue defense, given some expert advice between the halves, surged into the holes opened by the Nodak tackles and knocked down the hard-running enemy guards.

Nodaks Bewildered As G. W. Scores.

Finally courage overcame power and the Colonials drove 38 yards to the goal line with Lee Carlin, the hero from a G. W. viewpoint, leading a bewildering passing and running attack. "Ripper" Dablow had just punted from behind the goal line and Johnny Fenlon had been knocked cold in a collision with Carlin, while returning the kick, when the successful march got under way.

Carlin chucked a pass to Parrish for 11 yards, the big full back being downed on the 27-yard line. Then little Johnny Matia, substituting for the injured Fenlon, snagged another Carlin-tossed pass for a gain of 5 yards.

Again Carlin ran back to pass, but this time the Nodaks broke through and charged at him en masse. But in a flash the Colonial half back eluded the entire onrushing horde and swept around his left end for 18 yards before being pushed out of bounds on the 4-yard line.

Here the experts in the crowd, as well as the Nodaks, anticipated at least one or two line thrusts, but on the first play after the teams lined up Carlin unloosed another heave and Chambers, running in the clear, caught it over the goal line.

North Dakota's touchdown followed a parade of 71 yards beginning late in the first period, during which time a kicking duel between Carlin and Dablow dominated the play. Capt. John Burma, a pile-driving full back, was the spearhead of the visitors' attack, ably supported by Half Back Larry Knauf, a shifty runner, and a pair of lightning-fast guards, Art Malo and Gordon Dablow. Burma accounted for 51 yards of the advance and threw a clever lateral pass to Quarter Back Wexler, who romped 8 yards on the scoring play. Knauf failed on a placement for extra point, a failure that would have been crushing had not Jones duplicated.

Shortly after, George Washington's offense started functioning and car-

Grid Attendance Shows Gain at California U.

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Attendance picked up considerably this year at football games in which the University of California played, exceeding last year's total attendance by 23,700.

Harris Davis, ticket manager for the associated students of the university, announced that 404,993 persons saw the Golden Bears in action this year as against 381,293 in 1930. The largest single game attendance was that at the Stanford-California contest, with 87,500.

10,000 See Howard Beaten By Lincoln Eleven, 7 to 6

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 26.—Smashing through the Bison center from the 1-yard line, Capt. Smith, of the Lincoln Lions, crossed the Howard goal line in the second quarter of the annual Turkey Day classic for a touchdown, the first count made by the Lions against the Bisons in seven years, which carried with it the glory of victory for the Oxfordians, 7-6, when Lamar placekicked the extra point.

The Lions, who have a superior record for the season, with but one defeat chalked against them, were expected to double up the Howard aggregation against the goal posts for a walkaway. But the Blue and White Bisons braced, as customary, against their ancient foes, and gave the 10,000 spectators thrill after thrill as their thrusts all but won for them.

Howard scored early in the first quarter. Jackson fumbled and Howard recovered the ball on the Lincoln 17-yard line. Johnson went off tackle 3 yards, and the pass which followed, Marshall to Lee, after 7 minutes of play, took the oval over for the count. Hall failed to make the extra point.

The way was paved for the Lincoln victory by a 5-yard penalty which left the ball on Howard's 9-yard line in the second quarter. Smith, Lamar and Baskerville advanced the ball off tackle to first down on the Howard 4-yard line. Baskerville followed through to the 1-yard line, from which the Lincoln captain scored.

Twice thereafter the Bisons threat-race for 2-year-olds today, and he won by a length from Mrs. T. W. Durant's Cheela. B. B. Stable's Floor Walker was third, two and a half lengths farther back. The time was 1:12 3-5. The first and second horses were off badly, from a ragged start of the field, but Black Board had better luck than Cheela, picking his way to the front. He was well ridden by Jockey P. Walls. The winner paid $8.00. Fourth money went to Yancey, ridden by Robertson.

C. Harvey Pierce's War Plane, racing Chatmoss into defeat, took the lead and ran away with the purse in the second race, the Kingsville, winning by four lengths, with F. Dainty in the saddle. Mrs. Nat Ray's Blaze White was second and John R. Buchanan's Chatmoss third. Daisaburo was fourth.

C. V. Whitney's Clotho was the favorite for some reason and was beaten off. War Plane merely ran back to his previous race. He paid $6.40. Blaze White returned $18.40 for place. War Plane, son of Man o' War, ran a mile and 70 yards in 1:45.

Tennessee Stable's Vanderpool, which had equaled the record of Colin—fifteen victories and no defeats—met his waterloo here today in the Aero Handicap, his sixteenth start, when he finished third. Mrs. G. W. Loft's Mabla and the Greentree Stable's Robins Egg, both fillies, abruptly stopped the march of the 3-year-old colt of Campfire-Bramble Rose, which was coming to the races for the first time since last July.

Mabla, with Stevens up, won by a length and a half in 1:11 for six furlongs, fastest time of the meeting. The record here is 1:10 3-5. The filly moved up second to Vanderpool at the far turn, and coming into the stretch she took the lead. At the sixteenth Robins Egg moved past Vanderpool, displacing the favorite for place by a nose. Follow On, backed heavily, was fourth. He hung in the stretch. The winner paid $44, while Robins Egg was $13.80 for place.

Gully Jumper won the sixth race and Our Pal was second, the same order in which they finished in another mile and a half race the last time they met. Bright Red was third. The time was 2:35 4-5. D. Meade had the mount on Gully Jumper, which had a margin of three lengths. The winner laid off the early pace, but closed fast and drew away. The winner paid $5.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK BOARD, $8.00, $4.50, $3.70; CHEELA, $5.20, $3.70; FLOOR WALKER, $4.50.

BLACK BOARD, away slowly, settled in his stride quickly, secured clear racing room on the inside until reaching the home stretch, wore the leaders down and had something in reserve at the end. CHEELA, badly buffeted about for the first three furlongs, came through on the inside entering the home stretch and finished with a rush. FLOOR WALKER, a keen factor all the way, held on well after racing MUELLER into submission. YANCEY, stoutly ridden, held on willingly after racing forwardly. BLUE ARAB broke in motion from the outside of the barrier, raced well placed early and continued gamely. HOW could not reach the leaders. MUELLER quit badly.

SECOND RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Kingsville. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 1:38. Off at 1:38. Winner, C. H. Pierce's ch. g. (2), by American Flag—Milky Way. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:45.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR PLANE, $6.40, $4.20, $3.10; BLAZE WHITE, $18.40, $9.30; CHATMOSS, $6.30.

WAR PLANE, following under restraint while in pursuit of CHATMOSS, disposed of the latter without effort when entering the home stretch and drew out at will thereafter. BLAZE WHITE, taken up going to the first turn and steered wide until nearing the home stretch, was placed to punishment and, saving ground through the late stages, closed with good courage. CHATMOSS assumed an easy lead, was rated along until midway of the far turn, but was unable to withstand the winner's effort. DAISABURO made a stout effort rounding the final turn, but hung thereafter. BONNIE PRINCE weakened in the final three furlongs. CLOTHO showed a dull effort under stout pressure. KLIP DRIFT lacked speed.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. The Aero Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:11. Off at 2:11½. Winner, G. W. MABLA, following in near attendance of the pace, moved up rapidly on the outside midway of the far turn, wore VANDERPOOL down steadily and, continuing with excellent speed, held away through the final stages. ROBIN'S EGG, stoutly ridden, in entire trip, came determinedly under punishment in the final drive. VANDERPOOL displayed his early speed, shook off FOLLOW ON, but weakened fast under punishment in the final stages. FOLLOW ON was done after three furlongs. HELIANTHUS was crowded back directly after the start and was outrun thereafter. ST. PRISCA quit.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Old Virginia. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:47. Winner, C. V. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HALCYON, $9.40, $4.80, $3.80; BLENHEIM, $3.80, $2.90; EIL WEIR, $4.10.

HALCYON, quickest to get going and having good speed, was rated in front, saved ground while resisting BLENHEIM and came away smartly when shaken up during the stretch run. BLENHEIM, steadied close to the winner, lost considerable ground during the stretch run, but held on willingly nearing the finish. EIL WEIR was unable to keep pace with the leaders after the first six furlongs, but held on gamely to stall off WHIPPER CRACKER. Latter made up ground steadily in the closing stages. FRUMPER was held safe. GIGANTIC and SUNEROS had no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $10,000 added. The Thanksgiving Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATE, $6.70, $5.10, $3.40; WHITE CLOVER II (Foxcatcher Farms entry), $3.90, $2.90; VALENCIENNES, $3.20.

MATE, well handled, was taken under steadying restraint while working his way up on the outside of the leaders, raced BLIND LANE into defeat and, holding on resolutely under a stiff drive, outstayed WHITE CLOVER II. Latter, securing racing room on the inside from the beginning, was blocked midway of the far turn, swung to the outside after being eased back and was steadily wearing the winner down in the closing drive. VALENCIENNES, as usual slow to begin, reached full stride after six furlongs and closed full of run on the outside. DOCTOR FREELAND, well placed in the early stages, finished gamely under severe punishment. BLIND LANE and ALLEZ VITE were used up setting the pace.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:08. Off at 4:10. Winner, A. GULLY JUMPER, a trailer for the first seven furlongs, entered into contention with a rush, took an easy lead when straightened into the home stretch, was placed to punishment when clear and held OUR PAL safe. Latter worked his way up stoutly and closed gamely on the inside. BRIGHT RED closed fast, but crowded over and forced PUTTER to be taken up right at the finish. Latter, was racing samely when impeded at the finish. WOLF'S RUN faltered badly in the final drive. BROWN THISTLE and MADAM QUEEN quit.

Latter worked his way up gradually, came through on the inside of the winner entering the home stretch, and was gaining steadily approaching the finish. FAIR DAWN, well placed early, held on well when reaching contention. MINA F. showed a good effort. UNUM lacked early speed and was unable to menace the leaders. GLENNO had no excuses. SKIRT stopped when put to a drive.

FRATERS DEFEAT ST. STEPHENS IN LEAGUE GAME, 27 TO 2

Alexandrians In Tie for 2d Place

Zumbo Bares Brunt of Defensive Work for Saints.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 26.—The Fraters encountered little opposition from St. Stephen's Eleven and won an easy victory by a 27 to 2 score in a Post Capital City League game here today. The win enabled the locals to tie with Brookland and the Dixie Pigs for second place in the league.

Whatever hopes the visitors entertained of winning the game went glimmering in the opening period when the Fraters shoved over a brace of touchdowns and in each instance added the extra point to assume a commanding 14 to 0 lead. The first score resulted from a pass, Bell to Cabell, that netted 37 yards and placed the ball on the Saints' 18-yard line from where a series of line plunges, with Beach carrying the ball, put it over.

Williams Intercepts Pass.

Williams started the eventual winners on their way to the second score of the fray when he intercepted a pass and got back to his opponents' 18-yard mark before being hauled down from behind. Williams planted the oval over the goal line in three attempts.

St. Stephen's entered the second half determined to overtake the Fraters. A drive from midfield, with Zumbo paving the way advanced the ball to the 10-yard stripe. At this juncture, the Fraters held and an attempted pass by the Saints was intercepted by Crupper, who was in turn tossed by Reddington behind his own goal line.

"Shorty" Scrivener's charges retaliated with another marker in the third period and again in the final period they crossed the line. The playing of Jack Sampson and Bayliss in the line was an important factor in the Fraters' triumph.

Haywood, Full Back, Injured.

Haywood, full back, was injured late in the game and had to be removed from the fray. The kicking, passing and ball carrying of Zumbo for St. Stephen's was the big feature of the game. Zumbo also played a great defensive game.

Sunday, the Fraters tackle Del Ray in another league game. The team is all steamed up over the announcement that the winner of the Capital City League will meet the Celtics should the latter win the South Atlantic League crown, and is out to win The Post's Trophy.

VIRGINIA DEFEATED BY N. CAROLINA, 13-6

through the Tarheel line and into the Carolina back field.

North Carolina fumbled four times and had two passes intercepted, these killing the Tarheels' chances for a bigger margin of victory.

Statistically the Tarheels led in first downs, 15 to 4; in gains at line, 245 yards to 103; in gains on passes, 83 yards to 10; and in gains on punt returns, 116 yards to 37. Virginia led in end runs, 33 to 15 yards, and Capt. Thomas outpunted the Tarheels, averaging 43.3 yards to the Carolina kickers' 37.5.

This was the thirty-sixth game of the oldest continuous Thanksgiving rivalry in the South, for Carolina and Virginia have been fighting it out on the gridiron since 1892.

The game gave Carolina its thirteenth win. Virginia has won 20 and tied 3.

Stanford Squad Stages Light Drill at Boston

Boston, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Stanford's varsity football team worked out for an hour and a half today at the Belmont Springs Country Club, where the players are staying prior to the clash with Dartmouth Saturday at the Harvard Stadium.

Coach Glenn Warner took the day off to visit his protege, Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, and to watch the Colgate-Brown game at Providence. Before leaving Boston he instructed his assistants to put the Stanford squad through all of its attack plays, spinners, laterals, forwards and off-tackle smashes receiving a major share of attention.

Warner said on arriving here that he had had a fine defensive team this season, but that his attack lacked the fire of former years, due principally to the fact that Stanford has developed no outstanding ball carrier this season.

The Stanford squad cheered the news that Bill Bates, who has had first call as center, was so far improved he may be able to start Saturday.

MARYLAND U. FROSH TIE PLEBES

Fumbling Mars Game as Rivals Battle to Scoreless Draw.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 26.—Frequent fumbling by both teams marred an otherwise nip and tuck battle which the elevens of University of Maryland Freshmen and the Naval Academy B squad fought to a scoreless deadlock here this morning.

Neither team was able to develop a sustained attack and while passing was resorted to frequently only one aerial was completed and that was by the freshmen when Widmeyer tossed to Nelson for a gain of 20 yards late in the fourth quarter.

Each team was presented with a fine chance to score as the result of fumbles. That of the freshmen came in the third period when they took the ball on Navy's 20-yard line. On the first play, however, the young Terrapins lost the ball when Widmeyer fumbled after slicing off tackle for a 10-yard gain.

Navy Misses Chance.

Navy's opportunity came in the fourth period when Binns punted deep into Maryland territory, the ball finally being downed inside of the freshmen's 5-yard stripe. A poor punt gave Navy the ball on the 23-yard line. The Navy lads, however, could not muster a scoring punch and lost the ball on an intercepted pass.

The Marylanders, at times, flashed some good form and smart individual play that gave evidence of good material for the Old Line varsity squad next year. Among the outstanding players are Widmeyer, a speedy back, formerly of Hagerstown High School, holder of the State scholastic track championship for three years; and Rowzer and Farrell in the line.

Strong Stapleton Star, In 9-6 Defeat of Giants

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Stapleton turned back the New York Giants, 9 to 6, in a National Professional Football League game here today.

Ken Strong, as usual, led the Stapleton attack. He broke loose in the first period for 17 yards and a touchdown and added the extra point. That score was enough to win, as it turned out, but Stapleton made sure in the fourth period when Rapp blocked a pass from Benny Friedman for a safety behind the line. The Giants scored in the second period when Friedman tossed two long passes to Flaherty and then got loose for 15 yards and the score. Moran failed to kick the point.

SANTA CLARA VICTOR.

New Orleans, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Santa Clara's charging machine waded through Loyola University here today to defeat the Southern team, 13 to 7. Beckwith swept wide and steady to score both of the West Coast team's touchdowns. Lopez went over for Loyola early in the fourth period from the 1-yard line.

Hank Gibbins, Injured Central Star, Improves

Still under close observation for possible cerebral infection, Hank Gibbins, Central's all-high gridman who was hurt Wednesday in the Central-Washington-Lee High game, was considerably improved yesterday, but will remain at Walter Reed Hospital for three more days.

The big gridder's only complaint, as he propped up a badly blackened countenance, was that he was not allowed to hear about any of yesterday's football scores and that his Thanksgiving turkey dinner consisted of several glasses of lukewarm water

CENTRAL 26-6 VICTIM OF FIVES

District Grid Team Is Badly Beaten at Charlottesville.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 26. The Fives, senior team of the Charlottesville School for Boys, defeated Central High, of Washington, on Lambeth Field today, 26 to 6. The lone touchdown made by the Capital City team came in the last two minutes of play, and was registered by Cook, following a series of line plunges.

The Fives pushed over two touchdowns in the first and fourth quarters, one made by Crowell. Little followed with a passAOINNNNNLULD lowed with a 60-yard dash after receiving a pass. The Fives ran the heavy Capital City eleven off its feet in the final period, scoring two touchdowns in rapid succession. Davis made the first after snagging a pass. Later Roberts intercepted a Central heave and raced 30 yards to score.

Central's air attack held the locals in check during the second and third quarters. Long passes, Dunlop to Buscher, produced most of the gains for the visitors. The latter, giant end, made three spectaucular catches of long heaves.

Legion Field, Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Counted on to lose, the Howard College Bulldogs pulled a surprise today by defeating Duquesne, 13-6, in an intersectional game that closed the season here. The Dukes took an early lead but Howard evened the count in the second period, scoring the winning touchdown in the third.

Goock, Red Catcher, Asks Reinstatement

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Johnny Gooch, former first-string catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, who refused to report to the Baltimore International League Club, where he was traded at the close of the 1929 season, has asked Sidney Weil, Reds president, for reinstatement, Weil later said today. Gooch lives in New Smyrna, Tenn.

The Sacred Heart Midgets soundly trounced the Notre Dame Midgets by a score of 24 to 0 yesterday. Lin Hayes and Buddy Hughes were the outstanding players for the winners.

Congress Heights 6-0 Winner Over Eagles

Approximately 1,500 fans jammed the Congress Heights Field yesterday to witness the 6-0 triumph of the Congress Heights 135-pound team over the Anacostia Eagles in a game that bristled with action from start to finish. The winning team is claiming the 135-pound championship for that section of the city located on the other side of the river.

"Mille" Reigleman's successful 32-yard heave to Vinnie Wahler late in the final period produced the winning marker. The Eagles, led by Webb, made a desperate effort to knot the count in the last three minutes of play. They drove to the 5-yard line before being halted.

ZEHER STARS AS MARINES WIN, 13-0

John Carroll Beaten as Full Back Plays Brilliant Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Those Marines from out of Quantico, off the Virginia shore, landed on John Carroll at Cleveland Stadium yesterday forenoon—and it was shortly after midday that they had the situation well in hand, 13 to 0.

Well in the hand and hoof of Private A. P. Zeher, the situation was, mainly private, first class, and full back, first class, to boot.

To boot; aye, to boot, that leather a mile out of danger—and to crack that bravely battling Carroll line for the first touchdown, in the second period—and to fling that leather to Corporal H. F. Ferrell for the other touchdown in the fourth and to be a first class fightin' football Marine, sir, any way you look at him.

From Carroll's 40-yard stripe, where Half Back Tipton had intercepted Steigerwald's forward fling, the Marines rushed to the opening score. It was Zeher, Zeher, Zeher, with just one plunge by Lieut. H. W. Bauer mixed in, and then, with a yard and a half left to go, Zeher zinging across like nobody's affair.

Intercepted Pass Starts Drive.

Another intercepted pass it was—these Marines were catching Carroll heaves all through the jam—that gave the Quanticos the start toward that second touchdown. And this one, slung by Tommy Powers, was nabbed on the homers' 39-yard line by Gunnery Sergeant H. P. Crowe, who had just broken into the game at left guard.

Private Zeher now shot a forward pass to Lieut. Bauer for a 6-yard gain, but the Looey was felled for a 3-yard loss on the play that followed. Dropping back again, Private Zeher took his own good time, waited until Corporal Ferrell, the left end, was in the clear and all by himself, and then let go with a 21-yard pitch.

Fifteen yards—and nary a Carroll man—were in front of the corporal and he covered 'em in a breeze.

Carroll's brightest scoring chance arrived in the very first minute of play. That was when Louis Duchez, who played a swell game at left guard, recovered a Marine fumble on the second play of the game—and on the Quantico 18-yard mark, but the Irish got to the 8-yard line and no further.

William-Mary Upset By Richmond U., 6 to 2

Richmond, Va., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—An embattled University of Richmond eleven did today what no other Virginia football team could do—whip William and Mary College. The score was 6 to 2.

The Spiders, who had not tasted victory over their Williamsburg rivals since 1922, got off to an early lead when "Vic" Chaltain broke through the Indian line, passed the secondary defense and ran 80 yards for a touchdown.

Repeated Indian thrusts were thwarted in each quarter thereafter, and a Spider line that yielded in midfield was unassailable under the shadow of its goal, and the best the visitors could do was score a safety in the fourth quarter on a blocked punt.

Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Gov. Pollard and a host of other notables were in the crowd of 14,000 persons who witnessed the startling upset.

Trotter Brings $19,500 At Old Glory Auction

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Calumet Chuck, a 2-year-old trotter favored to sweep the rich 3-year-old specials next year, today sold for $19,500, as the thirty-seventh Old Glory auction sale closed.

The disposal of the racing stable of the late William Wright's Calumet Farm, of Lexington, Ky., was the feature of the sale.

The price, top price of the current sale, was paid by the Hanover Farms, of Hanover, Pa. Tom Berry, trainer of the Hanover trotters and pacers, outbid T. J. McKinney, of Buffalo, in a duel which rivaled the sale of the yearling, Calumet Dick, yesterday. Horsemen recalled that the top price of the sale was $41,000, paid by E. H. Harriman for Stamboul in the old Madison Square Garden more than a score of years ago.

Green Bay Packers Swamp Providence

Providence, R. I., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—The champion Green Bay Packers passed and ran to a 38-to-7 victory over Providence here this afternoon in a National Professional Football League game. Four of Green Bay's touchdowns were scored on passes. Johnny Blood was the high scorer, crossing the Providence goal line three times. Bo Molenda tallied twice and Dilweg once. Woodruff crashed through the line for the Providence touchdown.

MERCURY WINS.

The Mercury Preps won their seventh straight victory yesterday, defeating the Riverdale A. C. by the close score of 7 to 6 at College Park. Grass accounted for the Mercury touchdown and Joe Amen added the extra point. Sunday the winners will play the Riverdale Tigers on the same field.

SOUTH CAROLINA BOWS.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 26 (A.P.).—Auburn defeated South Carolina 13 to 6 here this afternoon in a game marred by roughness on both sides. Meer, Gamecock tackle, and Molphus, Auburn guard, were ejected from the game for slugging.

Georgetown Eleven Ready For Detroit U. Tomorrow

Hoyas Hopeful Despite Loss of Stanley and Donoghue, Which Leaves But Two Back Field Substitutes Available for Game.

GEORGETOWN'S eleven yesterday completed the hardest part of its preparation for the Detroit game, scheduled tomorrow in Griffith Stadium, with a practice of an hour and one-half on offensive plays designed especially for use against the invaders. Despite the loss through injuries of two valuable backs, Mack Stanley and Bernie Donoghue, the Hilltoppers continued to work in high spirits, and Coach Tommy Mills announced later that he is hopeful the current mental attitude will carry his squad through to victory.

The loss of Stanley and Donoghue seriously reduces Georgetown's force of back field reserves, leaving only one substitute for each of the half back positions. Mills has available for right half—the post occupied by Stanley until a sprained ankle forced him out of the Villanova game last Saturday—only Joe Alanty and Louis Dee, the latter being handicapped by inexperience. At left half, Donoghue's old berth, there are Nick Viskovitch and Dick King, a converted quarter back.

Donoghue Advised to Quit Football.

Donoghue, it was reported yesterday, has been advised by a physician to give up football forever. The speedy left half has been suffering with a nerve ailment.

The backfield quartet Georgetown probably will start is formed by "Mickey" Lione, quarter back; Vishovitch and Alenty, half backs, ands Leroy Bordeau, full back. The last mentioned has been dividing the full back duties of late with Johnny Shimmins.

In the line Mills intimated the same players that have started the past two games will repeat, namely Tommy Carolan and Ray Hudson, ends; the Katalinas brothers, Ed and Joe, tackles; Maurice Dubofsky and Dick Danner, guards, and Charley McManus, center.

The Detroit squad is expected to arrive today at 2 p. m. and will hold a short practice session in the stadium following Georgetown's tapering-off drill.

Teams Clash for Seventh Time.

Tomorrow's clash will mark the seventh meeting of Georgetown and Detroit on the gridiron and the first time they have met in Washington. Detroit has won four of the previous six contests, the Hilltop's last victory having been scored in 1926. Detroit won last year by a score of 12 to 0.

NEW YORK U. WINS IN 7-6 THRILLER

25,000 See Tanguay Star in Defeat of Carnegie Tech.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Nov. 26.—A touchdown in the last quarter by Jim Tanguay gave New York University a 7-6 victory over Carnegie Tech here today before 25,000 spectators. The final surge to victory started at the end of the third quarter and was carried over into the fourth.

In the first half, the scarlet-shirted Tech players dazzled the New Yorkers with a flurry of forward passes that netted them one touchdown and almost gave them another.

New York University came back strong near the close of the third quarter and moved to within striking distance after Bob McNamara had ripped off a 23-yard run to the Tech 15-yard stripe. The quarter ended with the Violet 10 yards from the goal. Several plays after the start of the fourth, Jim Tanguay smashed through the line for the touchdown and kicked the winning point from placement.

Class B W. Va. Title Is Won by Lane High

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 26.—Defeating Clifton Forge High here this afternoon, 18 to 14, Lane High's eleven annexed the class B championship of Western Virginia, and will contest for the State championship on December 12.

The Mountaineers, with a team of nine veterans, came here with a perfect record, having scored a total of 334 points against league opponents. Steady marches down the field gave Lane two touchdowns in the half, which ended 12 to 0. Clifton Forge scored in the third period. Capt. Wrenn taking the ball across. An 80-yard drive yielded a third touchdown for Lane, Quarles racing 20 yards after receiving a pass from Blanton. The Mountaineers scored in the final period when Smith hurled a pass to Burker.

Apaches Drill Tonight; Play Irvington Sunday

The Apaches will drill tonight by the light of the arc lamps at Griffith Stadium in preparation for Sunday's South Atlantic League game with Irvington at Baltimore. While these clubs are trying conclusions in the Monumental City the Celtics and Mohawks will be battling at Griffith Stadium with the championship going to the victor. The Apaches won a 13-6 victory over the Mohawks last Sunday, but are expected to encounter sterner opposition in Baltimore. The betting gentry have established the Celtics as slight favorites over their rivals.

LATE RALLY WINS FOR COLGATE

Game Near End When Brown Is Nosed Out, 13 to 7.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 26 (A.P.). A cold wind sweeping the length of Aldrich Field combined with an equally bitter Brown defense to hold the might of a big Colgate eleven through two periods today and then turned traitor with only two minutes of the annual Thanksgiving Day classic left to play. The final score was 13 to 7 in Colgate's favor.

Not until the wind was at its back, with time almost gone, was Colgate, beaten only by New York University this fall, able to drive to the touchdown that brought the victory and closed the regular season for the Maroon.

Colgate Eleven First To Score.

Scarcely warmed up in the first quarter when the wind was favoring, Colgate waited until the last minutes of the period to loose a drive that started four yards back of midfield, reached the Brown 12-yard line as the period ended, and carried across the stubborn Bruin goal in the first few plays of the second quarter.

Then with the wind for the remainder of the second and all of the third period lifting Colgate punts straight up in the air, causing fumbles and erratic play in general, Brown rallied to take advantage of the breaks, drive 43 yards to a touchdown with the aid of a long pass completed through interference, kick the extra point, and hold a 7 to 6 lead and the upper hand all through the third quarter.

Patiently Colgate waited to shift fields. Then the Maroons, after gambling with forward passes deep in its own territory, suddenly took advantage of one of Dick Marsan's Brown kicks that fought the icy blasts for only 15 yards, and ripped 42 yards to the winning touchdown.

LOCAL CLUBS DIVIDE AT SOCCER

Columbia Heights in 2-1 Victory; British Beaten, 3-1.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

THE Columbia Heights soccer team yesterday defeated the Wingfoot club, of Baltimore, in a bitterly contested game on the Monument Grounds, 2 to 1. The game was unusually rough, two of the Columbia Heights players being so badly injured that they were taken to Emergency Hospital. Emil Koenell and Bernie Copper were the wounded players, but after treatment left for their respective homes. In a second intercity match, British United was defeated by Imperial A. C., of Baltimore, 3 to 1.

Koenell had his mishap late in the game, which was fortunate for the Columbia Heights aggregation, as the little German kicker not only scored both of his team's goals, but bolstered its defense with clever blocking and heading.

Early in the first period the local eleven pressed the visitors mercilessly and during a scramble near the Wingfoot goal, one of the latter's players fouled. Emil Koennell took the resulting penalty kick and scored. The home team continued to press, and near the close of the period came close to a second marker when Louie Koennell smashed a hard boot near the lower corner of the Baltimore uprights, but the alert Wingfoot goalie, Gunther, made a beautiful save to keep his team in the running.

With about fifteen minutes of the first half to go, Smith, inside right of the visitors, took a neat pass from the toe of Kelly, outside right, and kicked the only Wingfoot goal that Watson, Columbia Heights goalie, let pass during the day.

The second half was fast and furious. The ball traveled from goal to goal in rapid succession and both teams abandoned orthodox play for desperate wild boots and hard blocking. Midway the period Koennell broke away and scored the winning goal with a neat shot.

The Columbia Heights lads were justifiably elated in their victory over the Wingfoot eleven. In the first place Washington teams have won but few victories over Baltimore elevens and to make the triumph twice as gratifying the Wingfoot eleven is considered one of the best in Baltimore.

The Imperial club had little trouble in downing the British United kickers. The local team was outclassed in every department of the game, although it is true that it did not have its entire regular team on the field. Its mainstay, Jack Turner, did not enter the game until the second half, and he scored the only goal chalked up by the Britishers. George Faulds was by far the outstanding United player.

D. C. Hikers Far Back In Quaker City Race

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—Washington was represented by four runners in the annual marathon feature event of Thanksgiving Day here, but the stars from the District of Columbia could not keep pace with the leaders and finished near the end. Lou Gregory, of Rochester, was the winner of the nine-mile event in 48 minutes 1 second, while Frank Titterton, New York, was second, and Joe Mundy, of Philadelphia, who starred in previous Baltimore-Washington distance events, was third.

Mike Lynch was the first Washington harrier to finish, crossing the line in 63 minutes 44 seconds as the twenty-sixth runner home. Just behind him came Erven Nicholson, another District of Columbia star, who was clocked in 64:36. Haskett Clark, of Washington, was the thirty-first harrier to finish, crossing the line in 65:47, while a Capital runner, James Montague, was timed in 68:03 as the last to finish. Vincent Parr, Mifflintown, and Richard Detweiler, Philadelphia, were the only harriers out of the field of 34 starters who failed to finish.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

TIME PAYMENTS FOR THE DOCTOR.

PLANS for a financing corporation to provide for time payments on doctors' bills are announced by the New York Academy of Medicine. The idea is to bring even the most expensive sicknesses within the reach of the masses.

* * * *

Under present conditions there are scores of maladies that only the rich can afford to have.

* * * *

Under the academy plan the workingman can arrange to have the same illnesses that the capitalists have without feeling the burden.

* * * *

The financial corporation will float exclusive maladies just as automobiles and other luxuries are floated. The first thing the patient does is to decide whether to pay for his operation outright or on the deferred payment plan.

* * * *

Then he consults his doctor and goes over the price list. Possibly he is intrigued by something very new and fashionable in the way of a tonsil removal.

"What will it cost me?" he asked the doctor.

"I'm turning out a very wonderful tonsil job this season for $285," says the doctor.

"Can I arrange to get it on time?" asks the patient.

"Well," explains the doctor, "on the deferred payment plan we have to add a little extra to cover interest and carrying charges. Let me see."

Here the doctor consults his 1932 catalogue.

"Oh, yes, here it is!" he finally exclaims. "This tonsil removal job on the twelve-month payment plan will cost you $310.50."

"How will the payments be spread?" asks the patient.

"You pay $50 down and the rest in twelve or fifteen monthly payments, whichever you prefer. It's all handled by the Sickabed Financing Corporation, Ltd. Their agent calls monthly for the installments."

* * * *

ALL of which will make it easy for the average man to carry an illness without, in a manner of speaking, feeling it.

And it will make it possible for him to have a wide range of selection in choosing a physician. Heretofore he has had to take what he could get.

* * * *

Under the new plan a man will be able to get a tall, thin practitioner with a black beard and a great reputation, or a short fat doctor with side whiskers and his name on four hospital boards. The financing corporation will arrange the details.

* * * *

And after twelve payments the patient will own his sickness outright.

* * * *

BUT IT'S STILL THE SAME.

Because of Mayor Walker's California mission they are calling it Tommooney Hall.

* * * *

Johnny Farrell's marriage, we observe, was solemnized by the Rev Father James A. Boyle, of Bronxville, N. Y. The selection of a priest was, we take it, not a random one. Father Boyle is one of the best golfers in the United States, can go around in better than 75 any time any where, and if he were not a priest he would be among the headliners of the golfing world.

* * * *

There is a rumor that it was not Albie Booth who won that game from Harvard after all, but Ted Husing in disguise.

* * * *

The promoters made a big mistake when they did not arrange to have Mayor Walker make his plea for Tom Mooney between the halves of a football game at the Rose Bowl, the proceeds to go to charity.

* * * *

The railroad chiefs have delivered an ultimatum to railroad workers that they will have to take a wage cut. Modern Casey Jones:

The caller called Casey at half past four,
Kissed his wife at the station door,
Mounted to the cabin with his orders in his hand
And took his 10 per cent cut in the manner grand.

Pass to Chambers in Last Period Deadlocks Score.

ried the Colonials 55 yards to the Nodak 18-yard line, where the aerial route was tried and found blocked. Fenlon dropped one toss with a fine chance to get loose.

Carlin's masterful punting gained more than 30 yards in one exchange early in the third period to pave the way for another Colonial drive that reached the 10-yard line. Again the pass was used ineffectually and the Nodaks took the ball on downs.

North Dakota, due largely to a 38-yard sprint by Knauf, got to G. W.'s 27-yard line early in the fourth quarter. This was its last threatening gesture.

The Nodak defense then was torn asunder by fierce line plunges and bullet-like passes in which Carlin was the feature performer. In short order the Colonials were storming North Dakota's goal line, only to be frustrated a third time when passes were broken up.

Returning to the attack following a punt to midfield by Dablow, George Washington ran and passed its way 48 yards before a lateral pass, a replica of the one on which the Nodaks scored, failed by 3 yards of gaining a first down on the 3-yard line. Fenlon's 31-yard dash with a pass was the highlight of this advance.

Carlin contributed to the Buff and Blue cause one of the finest individual performances seen this year in the stadium. He shared heavily in the ground attack that netted a total of 168 yards, did most of the passing that gained 95 yards, and thumped his foot into the ball nine times for a total of 425 yards. On one punt from close formation, which took North Dakota by surprise, Carlin got 72 yards.

Colonials' First Band Makes Big Hit at Game

George Washington supporters, for the first time in their lives, thrilled to the music of a band representing alma mater yesterday when 45 undergraduate musicians, smartly dressed in blue, performed during the G. W.-North Dakota game. The band, organized only a month ago, was generously applauded by the crowd in general upon its initial public appearance. There was a notable lack of "sour notes" for a rookie presentation.

MARYLAND TRIUMPHS OVER HOPKINS, 35-14

had cheered as Poppelman, Louis Berger and Shorty Chalmers ripped and slashed at the Hopkins line. There was no thrill left.

The triumph provides Maryland a margin of success for the entire series for the first time since the rivals began playing in 1892. Hopkins won ten straight to establish a leadership which now has been relinquished after the most stubborn kind of a fight. The victory today was the thirteenth for Maryland against twelve for Hopkins and four ties.

Hopkins had not scored two touchdowns against Maryland since 1927, the last occasion on which the local team won by a 14-to-13 score. Hopkins, moreover, has not made more than fourteen points in any game since 1902. Maryland won by higher scores in 1916, 54 to 0, and 1929, 39 to 6.

out of the rattler from the start. Curtis camped under but one of the well-nigh perfect passes Dallaire rifled all over the lot. Loyola's greatest quest for a touchdown came at the start of the third period when Dallaire passed well to Dunne, who was brought down from behind on C. U.'s 20-yard line by some inspired running on De-Mello's part. Dunne fumbled on the way down and Fraatz recovered for C. U.

C. U. was in hot water three times when Dallaire's accurate toe spiraled the ball outside on Catholic's 3, 5 and 9 yard lines. McVean, on the first of these, ran the ball out from the end zone while three Loyolans dived through the air for him, only to miss their mark. The winners first neared the scoring line in the second quarter when Whelan hoofed 40 yards to the 10-yard line, where successive bucks advanced it to the 2, at which point Sheary fumbled.

It was close, exciting football, inciting two kibitzer fights on the sidelines and, at times, a bristling, sulphuric atmosphere on the field.

Special to The Washington Post.

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 26.—The greater power of Virginia Polytechnic Institute's running attack today gave the Gobblers a 13-6 victory over their rivals from Virginia Military Institute in the twenty-ninth annual Thanksgiving Day gridiron battle between the two schools here.

Tech came back strong in the second half to march 60 yards for one touchdown and 76 for another after the Cadets had taken the lead in the second quarter with a touchdown scored on a pass from the 34-yard line.

Outweighed by a wide margin, the embattled V. M. I. clan made a bold bid for victory, but in the end was forced to bow to the superior man power of the Techmen.

25 Years Ago Today

NOVEMBER 27, 1906.

United States Senator Ben Tillman, of South Carolina, addressed 3,000 persons last night in Orchestra Hall for the benefit of the Chicago Union Hospital. The talk turned into a frenzied appeal for race supremacy and as the senator painted a terrifying picture of black supremacy a near riot resulted, with the police unable to handle or to quiet the mixed crowd.

The most remarkable case of wholesale poisoning in the history of the United States was uncovered last night when it was found that Bridget Carey, of Philadelphia, had poisoned an entire family of five in order to collect insurance money.

Thirty persons are believed to have drowned when the steamer J. H. Jones sank in Georgian Bay off Cleveland last Thursday with all on board. The boat carried a crew of eighteen and twelve passengers. All are believed to have been lost in the disaster and three bodies have already been washed ashore. The boat was en route to Collingswood, Ontario, from Wiarton, Ontario.

The officers of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce are so indignant regarding the treatment they received at the hands of Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw in the matter of the location of the postoffice building there that it is understood that they will file protest with the President.

CAB DRIVER SOUGHT AS LINK TO MURDER GANG AT TEA HOUSE

Police Believe Hacker Drove Man to Bladensburg Killing Scene.

AUTHORITIES RECEIVE ANONYMOUS PHONE TIP

20 Department of Justice Agents to Investigate White Slave Clews.

A cab driver who is believed to have driven one man to the Colonial Tea House in Bladensburg just before the fatal shooting there early Monday was being sought by Washington police at the request of Prince Georges County authorities last night.

The county police sent in a lookout for the driver of a cab whose owner is listed as John March, of 109 G street northwest. One of the men being held as a witness, William Hancock, first gave his name as John March, and a'so gave March's address. Hancock's alias was pierced by Pennsylvania police, who identified him as being wanted for murder in Shamokin, Pa. The name of the cab driver is not known.

Identification Offered.

Constable Andrew Gasch said yesterday that the new witness he was credited with finding was an anonymous person who had phoned authorities offerings to identify at least one of the holdup men. This anonymous telephoner has not been located, although he is expected to be found today. His name will not be made public until after he has been questioned, as police fear that he may be threatened by the same persons who intimidated the women witnesses questioned early in the week.

Unless this new witness can give evidence leading to the arrest of the bandit gang, it is thought by some authorities that the case may remain forever unsolved. It will have had the effect, however, of interesting the Department of Justice in interstate commerce in women. Twenty agents will be assigned to running down this white slave gang within the next few days, it has been learned.

Abandoned Auto "Clew."

Except for the new witness, the investigators will find the status of the case unchanged. No more of the prisoners held as witnesses were released on bond yesterday, although two men were freed Wednesday night. The prisoners were reported to be tiring of their cells yesterday, although they were given the regulation turkey dinner.

The Baltimore detectives will also try today to trace a possible connection between the shooting and the finding of an auto on the Bowie road. The car bears tags listed to R. G. Megandt, of 2125 Huntingdon street, Baltimore. Mr. Megandt has explained that the auto was left on the road near the Bowie race track when it was disabled last Saturday.

The two detectives, however, have expressed a belief that the car may have been involved in the hold-up. They plan to examine it for fingerprints today. The car bore three dents which might have been caused by shot, and one pane of glass was broken.

Five Wounded Recovering.

None of the five wounded persons still being treated at Casualty Hospital are in danger of dying, it was said yesterday, although their condition was at first reported to be critical. They are John J. Barlet, identified as Felix Bocchicchio, wanted for murder in Columbus, Pa., and jailbreak and highway robbery at Sunbury, Pa.; Charles Leavitt, manager of the Colonial Tea House, which was robbed; Mrs. Verne Edwards, Norman Garrey and Thomas Simone, who has a warrant against him charging assault with intent to kill.

Three men are being held in Philadelphia in connection with the case, but may be released soon unless they are identified by some of the Maryland investigators, according to telegraphic dispatches from that city. They are Cicero Renzuli, Nicholas Tronco and John L. Grecu. Renzuli and Tronco are being held on Maryland warrants charging them with being accessories to the murder of Grover Amick, who was killed during the gun battle. It is believed likely that the agents of the Department of Justice will want to question them on their possible connection with the white slave traffic before they are released, however.

Earlier Christmas Shopping Expected

Due to Get Into Full Swing Today and Merchants Are Prepared.

With Thanksgiving over, Christmas shopping is expected to get into full swing today, and Washington merchants are prepared to meet every Yuletide wish of customers, it was announced last night by Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the Shop Early-Mail Early committee of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Reports from stores indicate that the early Christmas shopping movement has already taken hold here, and predictions are made that the last minute rush will be considerably lessened this season. Believing that the public wants to shop earlier for Christmas, the merchants have put on their displays earlier than ever before and Christmas stocks have been complete for many months.

Those employed in the stores are particularly pleased with the early shopping movement. Many of the older employes remember Christmas shopping seasons of former years as periods of tension for every one connected with the stores. Merchants point out that the old system was unsatisfactory because it meant that many of their customers were dissatisfied with service received.

Skyviews of Washington, No. 27

Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc.

A GROUP of buildings in the United States Soldiers' Home grounds, snapped by the Skyviews photographer as he swung low over the northwest corner of the 500-acre tract, where regular Army men of all wars find a refuge in their old age.

The structure with the clock-tower in the foreground is the Scott Building, named after Gen. Winfield Scott, and the building adjoining it to the rear is the Sherman Building, also named after the general of that name.

To the right of these lies the King Building, originally a hospital before a more modern one was built on the grounds, but now used as a dormitory for the veterans.

In the background is the Grant Building, used for mess hall and dormitories. In front of it, on the left, is the Sheridan Building, used for dormitories, and on the right, Stanley Hall, where the soldiers are entertained with moving pictures and occasional plays.

The low brick building on the right of the picture is the detention barracks, where wayward members of the flock now and then are kept under guard. The structure with the smokestack, just below it, is the old power house, now used as a machine shop. Greenhouses are shown in the lower right-hand corner.

To the left of the clock-tower may be seen the Anderson Building, which served as a summer home for President Abraham Lincoln during the Civil War. It is now used as a dormitory for 30 or 40 men.

To the rear rises the old watertower, now out of service, but which formerly supplied the grounds with artesian well water.

ASSAULT ATTEMPT CHARGED TO HACKER

Girl Worker for Volunteers of America Tells of Struggle With Man.

A taxicab driver was arrested yesterday and held for arraignment in Police Court today on a charge of attempted criminal assault as the result of a story told by an 18-year-old girl worker for the Volunteers of America, who described a successful struggle against the man in an isolated section near the Steel Plant Wednesday.

Clarence R. Hanna, 24, hacker, of 1011 Cameron street, Alexandria, Va., was taken into custody by Assistant Hack Inspector W. J. Liverman yesterday after an official of the relief organization brought the matter to police attention. The girl, overwrought by her experience, had reported the occurrence to her superiors.

The girl involved, Miss Grace Ewing, 467 I street northwest, has been connected with the Volunteers ever since she came to Washington from an orphan asylum where she had been reared. She was canvassing for funds for the organization Wednesday in a residential section unfamiliar to her when Hanna is said to have noticed the bewilderment of the girl and offered to aid in reaching another section she had been instructed to canvass. At the time the girl was clad in the uniform of the Volunteers.

Instead of taking her to the section she desired to reach, however, Hanna is said to have driven to a district which police believe, on the strength of the girl's description, to be Buzzards Point, in outlying Southeast Washington. The girl stated that for nearly an hour the man made his advances to her, and that she sustained bruises and scratches and had her clothing damaged.

Finally, after she had broken away from him, the girl told police, Hanna persuaded her he would cease his actions and take her home. When he dropped her near the Volunteer headquarters she immediately reported the affair.

Columbia Heights Opens Christmas Lane Tonight

Illumination of a half mile of brilliantly colored lights and a parade betwen an avenue of Yuletide decorations will mark the opening of the Capital's third Santa Claus lane at 8 o'clock tonight by the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association and District and community officials.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissoners, will switch on the lights which will be the cue for the start of the parade. Dr. Reichelderfer, together with Maj. D. A. Davison, acting Engineer Commissioner; Gen Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police; George S. Watson, chief engineer of the Fire Department; William H. Harland, of the Traffic Department, and other District officials will head the parade and then review it.

Grammarians Argue Hotly In Case of 'Have' vs. 'Has'

Magazine Editor Says Sentence Was Wrong, But Capital Educators Still Swing Cudgels for and Against Wording; Ruling Word in Question.

English grammarians, word critics, professors of rhetoric and plain citizens of Washington were still engaged late Thanksgiving night in a verbal battle over a sentence which appeared recently in the editorial column of a magazine of national reputation and which became a subject of controversy a week ago. The innocent-looking sentence which has stirred up wide-spread argument among English authorities follows:

"It is evident that the Mussolini ambition, or rather its latest ramifications, have a depressing effect."

Miss Ethel Blair, instructor in English in a local academy, jokingly brought the subject up at a meeting of the school and education committee of the Central Citizens Association and asked whether the principal verb in the sentence should not be "has" instead of "have."

Francis de Sales Ryan, chairman of the committee, argued in favor of "have," on the ground that the second clause in the sentence was offered by the writer as a correction or a substitute for the first clause, and that the verb should be governed by "ramifications," and not by "ambition."

No agreement could be reached by members of the committee, but on Tuesday morning they sent out inquiries to various schools and to authorities in language, asking for a ruling on the disputed point. At the same time, Miss Blair wrote to the editor of the magazine asking whether the sentence as printed was not an error in English.

From Georgetown University, Central High School, Catholic University, and from eleven public and private school teachers of English came the reply that the verb "have" was correct. From National University and from ten public and private school teachers came the emphatic reply that "have" was wrong and that "has" should have been used in the sentence.

While the opposing forces were preparing hurried appeals to Dr. Frank H. Vizetally, editor of the Standard Dictionary and lexicographer of the Literary Digest; to Mrs. Josephine Turck Baker, editor of Correct English Magazine, and to English instructors at Princeton and Harvard Universities, there came a reply from the editor of the magazine in whose columns the disputed sentence appeared.

This answer further complicated the argument. The editor expressed the opinion that the stylists in his proofroom had erred in permitting the sentence to pass as it appeared in print, and that he believed they should have substituted "has" for "have."

This was accepted as final by those who had criticized the printed sentence, and Dr. George Gray, of George Washington University, yesterday declined to express an opinion on the subject, as he believed that the editor's admission of error placed the question beyond further dispute.

However, replies last night from rhetoric and English teachers at Gonzaga College, Fairmont Seminary and the Renshaw School favored the use of "have," despite the magazine editor's admission of error, and word is still being awaited from Dr. Vizetelly, Mrs. Baker and Princeton and Harvard.

The "word referee" at the Government Printing Office styleroom, who settles all questions of grammar and usage for the United States Government, and to whom an appeal was made by Mr. Ryan for a decision, yesterday said that the question had split the styleroom into two forces and that no agreement had been reached.

Bridge Approach Grading Planned

Bids on Memorial Project Expected to Be Opened in December.

Grading of the Washington street approach to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge, which has been going on for the past three weeks, was ordered stopped yesterday by County Engineer C. L Kinnier. The order was issued, according to Mr. Kinnier, because it was decided to let the contract for the entire project.

Work on plans and specifications, in order that bids may be called for, will be started immediately and it is expected that the county board of supervisors can open bids at its December meeting.

The contract will call for the grading and a gravel surface extending from a point where Washington street intersects Wilson boulevard to the Georgetown-Alexandria pike, better known as the "oil road."

Grocer Who Shot Self Monday Dies

Succumbed Yesterday at Hospital; Despondency Is Blamed.

Israel Hillerson, 47 years old, of 301 H street northeast, who fired two bullets into his side Monday after he had sent his wife from their home on an errand, died yesterday at Casualty Hospital.

Hillerson, a grocer, who with his wife and two children occupied the combined residence and store at the H street address, was apparently despondent over business reverses, police said.

Mrs. Hillerson, and his daughter Ada, 20, and son, Milford, 12, found him unconscious on the second story bathroom floor, his right hand clutching a .38-caliber automatic. He had shot himself twice below the heart.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at noon at his late residence.

CAPITAL HUNTER, 20, KILLED IN MARYLAND

Slain by Own Gun on Using It as Staff; Another Is Wounded in Virginia.

Maryland registered its first hunting fatality of the season yesterday when Charles Connor, 20 years old, of 1245 W street southeast, was accidentally killed by his own gun near Silver Hill.

Another Washingtonian was seriously injured in nearby Virginia.

Connor was crossing a stream on an old dam when he slipped and fell. He was carrying the gun by the end of the barrel and strove to use it as a staff to regain his balance. The hammer caught on the branch of a shrub, firing the weapon. The charge of shot from the double-barreled, 12-gauge gun tore off the top of the young man's head, killing him instantly. He was pronounced dead by Dr. James I. Boyd, of Forestville, acting as coroner's physician. Judge Thomas D. Griffith will hold an inquest tonight at 7:30 at his home in Forestville.

Robert L. Connor, the young man's father, said yesterday that his son had left the house early in the morning for a hunting trip. The youth, at the time of the accident, had had no luck, for his game-bag was empty.

Lewis E. Robey, 28 years old, of 1728 Potomac avenue southeast, was seriously injured yesterday when he was accidentally shot in the back by another party along on a Thanksgiving hunting trip near Navy, Va.

Witnesses said Mr. Robey stepped in front of Vernon Moran, of Herndon, Va., as Mr. Moran fired at a rabbit. The load took effect in Mr. Robey's back, arms and legs. Mr. Moran brought the injured man to Emergency Hospital where it was said his condition was serious. The hunting party of about ten had started from the home of Mrs. A. H. Kirk, where all had been guests for Thanksgiving dinner.

Civic Groups to Meet Tonight for Election

The Federation of Civic Associations will meet tonight in the board room at the District Building to elect officers and three members of the executive committee. Dr. George H. Richardson, long president of the federation, is expected to succeed himself in that position.

His present associate on the advisory council, William H. Lewis, vice president of the federation and president of the Garfield Civic Association, is a candidate for membership on the executive committee, as are William A. Joiner, Maj. Howard D. Queen, Woolsey W. Hall and J. A. G. Luvalle. Only two will be elected from this group.

Automobile Crash Causes Fire Pyrotechnics Display

An automobile accident early last night provided a burst of startling pyrotechnics which entertained about 500 residents of the Southwest section for about 45 minutes. The display, which could be seen for about five blocks, was put on when a taxicab crashed into an electric light pole and short-circuited two cables.

Police said the accident happened when Edward Ramsey, 26 years old, colored, of 406 E street southeast, attempted to turn from Canal street into E street southwest. Another driver had the same idea at the same time, and in attempting to avoid a collision, Ramsey's cab crashed the light pole, snapping it off at the base.

The electric display followed in short order. Police called two trucks from the power company and the electricians finally halted the short circuit with sand. They then started work undoing the damage.

DIRECTOR OF CHEST SAYS FORCED GIFTS WILL BE RETURNED

Street Declares Organization Will Not Take Unwilling Donations.

DISTRICT HEADS GET NEW WARNING TODAY

Commissioners Will Tell Subordinates to Avoid All Coercion.

With the campaign for salary contributions for local relief work suspended by the District Commissioners so far as the municipal employes are concerned until the Commissioners hold a conference with department heads at 10 o'clock this morning, Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, announced yesterday that the Community Chest does not want and will not willingly accept one cent of money unwillingly given through the Government unit or any other unit of the campaign organization.

Mr. Street said that any subscriber who notified the Chest that his pledge has been made unwillingly may have his pledge immediately canceled, and that any payment made on such a pledge will be refunded instantly and without question.

Will Warn of Coercion.

At their conference this morning with the department heads, the District Commissioners are expected to impress the heads with the need of avoiding coercion and to make it clear to the municipal employes that they will not be expected to make donations if such a sacrifice would deprive their own dependents of the necessities of life or place harmful burdens on themselves.

The conference is expected to result in a more harmonious understanding between the employes and their superiors and also a deeper spirit of sincerity in the making of contributions.

Couzens Watches Drive.

Senator James E. Couzens, of Michigan, will continue to keep his eye on the Government side of the campaign.

Indignant over complaints from Government employes that they have been "dragooned" and "otherwise intimidated" to donate the full three days of pay, as suggested in President Hoover's proclamation, Senator Couzens said that if these complaints persist and sufficient protests are presented that he will ask the civil service committee of the Senate to make an investigation and, if necessary, to enact legislation to prevent the use of Government employes for such purposes.

$45,000,000 Given in Nation.

New York, Nov. 26 (A.P.).—A total of $45,694,387 has been subscribed to 131 community chests which have completed their campaigns, a Thanksgiving message of the Association of Community Chests and Councils said today.

The message, addressed to Walter S. Gifford, director of the President's Organization on Unemployment Relief, and to Owen D. Young, chairman of the Committee on the Mobilization of Relief Resources, disclosed the results of 30 chest campaigns not previously reported.

An increase of 14 per cent in 121 chests which are comparable with last year's figures was shown by the report. These chests have raised $45,293,656 as against $38,484,736 last year.

Conspicuous among successful chests is that of Cleveland, largest in the country where it took just nine days to raise $5,680,026.

Allison Street Burglars Escape With $300 Loot

Burglars who entered the home of Robert Earnshaw, of 1317 Allison street northwest, made off with $75 in gold coins, including a rare $3 gold piece, which Mr. Earnshaw had secreted in a box on a shelf in the closet. They also took an automatic pistol, a diamond ring and a wrist watch.

Mr. Earnshaw valued his property at $300.

Test of Churches Is Seen in Present

Rev. Dr. Smith Points to Cathedral as "Aspirational Force."

Declaring that the church is being challenged more than ever before in the history of Christianity for "assurance of the fruits of religion" in this time of depression, the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, pastor of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, singled out Washington Cathedral as an "aspirational" influence for the people of the National Capital, in a Thanksgiving sermon yesterday.

Dr. Smith pointed to the continuing progress in the construction of the cathedral, in spite of the depression, as an outstanding example of the response to the church's call for "courage and cheer." He told his congregation that the cathedral now building on St. Alban's Hill at Massachusetts and Wisconsin avenues stands above all edifices in the city.

Dr. Smith stated that in Washington there are 399 houses of worship, with one out of every two citizens a church communicant.

McPherson Rewed After Mate's Death

Robert McPherson, jr., 23 years old, whose romance with Virginia Hurley, former Gallinger Hospital nurse, came to a tragic end with the suicide of the latter in September, 1929, was wed to Miss Marian Liles, in a southern Georgia town Wednesday night.

The marriage of McPherson and Miss Liles was the culmination of an acquaintanceship of the pair begun during a vacation of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. employes in Georgia in the summer of 1930. Correspondence was steadily kept up and last summer McPherson again spent his vacation in Georgia.

A telegram was received by the parents of young McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. McPherson, of 405 Upshur street northwest, yesterday, announcing the wedding and asking parental blessing. The parents had known of the attachment of the young couple but had not known that the wedding was to take place so soon. Young McPherson left several days ago for Georgia, ostensibly on holiday trip. The couple is expected to come to this city to live, McPherson continuing his connection with the trust company.

SEAL DRIVE BACKED BY REICHELDERFER

Chairman of Commissioners Asks Citizens to Help Campaign.

District citizens yesterday were called on to purchase Christmas seals in support of the fight against tuberculosis, in a statement issued by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of District Commissioners.

The statement, in the form of a letter to Mrs. Ernest H. Grant, president of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, read:

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, knowing that the twenty-fifth anniversary sale of Christmas seals to aid in the Nation-wide fight against tuberculosis is to be conducted in the District of Columbia by the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, beginning with November 27 and lasting until Christmas Day, desire to express their approval of the community health work which the Christmas seals support. Every citizen of the District of Columbia should assist, as far as possible, in making this twenty-fifth anniversary sale of the seals the greatest on record."

Dr. William C. Fowler, head of the District health department, will deliver a radio address on "Christmas Seals and Community Health" at 6 o'clock this evening from station WMAL. George A. Hastings, administrative assistant to President Hoover, launched the tuberculosis seal drive yesterday with a talk from station WRC. Taking into consideration the large reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis in the last 30 years, Mr. Hastings reminded his audience that this disease is still the chief cause of death among persons between the ages of 15 and 45.

At noon today Vice President Curtis will receive a party of children in the costumes of health crusaders. The children will ride in an old stage coach, drawn by a team of four horses, to the East steps of the Capitol, where the Vice President will greet them. They will present him with his quota of Christmas seals. Troops of volunteer Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will begin distribution of colored posters and window cards to stores today.

Autopsy to Determine Cause of Woman's Death

Mrs. Emily Engle, 46 years old, of 3459 Fourteenth street northwest, died yesterday after a long illness. Death came only a day after her husband, Clarence, had been taken to the Harriet Lane Sanatorium for the same ailment, police were told.

Mrs. Engle was pronounced dead by Dr. B. S. Johns, of 1654 Columbia road northwest. The body was taken to the District Morgue where an autopsy will be held. Mrs. Engle is survived by her mother, Mrs. Augusta Simpson, 70 years old, who has been visiting her daughter about a month. The couple were married about a year.

MOSTYN, CONVICTED, FACES THREE OTHER BRUTALITY CHARGES

Two Police Guilty in Harker Case Will Go Before Trial Board.

DETECTIVE IS SCHEDULED TO CONFRONT JURY NEXT

R. J. Barrett to Be Tried in Judge Proctor's Court, Starting Wednesday.

Prosecution on charges of beating three other prisoners and arraignment before the Police Trial Board yesterday faced Detective James A. Mostyn, of the First Precinct, convicted Wednesday of a third degree assault on James Henry Harker.

Policeman William R. Lafflin, convicted with Mostyn in the Harker case, likewise faces action by the trial board on charges of having been convicted by a court of competent jurisdiction. Although no further charges are pending against him he may be called as a witness in one of the Mostyn trials.

Meanwhile United States Attorney Leo A. Rover is preparing to prosecute sixteen other policemen, already indicted for alleged third degree brutality.

Barrett Case First.

The first to be tried will be Headquarters Detective Robert J. Barrett, who will face a jury in Judge Porter's Criminal Court Wednesday on a charge of beating George B. Baber last April.

Both Mostyn and Lafflin were at liberty under $1,000 bonds yesterday while Justice Proctor deferred sentence until Attorneys James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett have completed plans for an appeal. The penalty for fistic assault, of which they stand convicted, is $500 fine or one year in jail, or both.

Cases pending against Mostyn charge that he beat two colored prisoners at the First Precinct station the same day he assaulted Harker, and a third colored prisoner on August 9. He is charged with beating one of the colored prisoners, Harry Johnson, with the same piece of hose referred to in the Harker case. The October grand jury also charged "simple assault" against Preston Brooks and Walter W. Johnson.

Sentencing Is Awaited.

According to Superintendent of Police Glassford, Mostyn and Lafflin will not be brought before the trial board until they have been sentenced or their appeal disposed of.

While the chief debated whether Policemen William T. Burroughs and William C. Grooms, whom the jury exonerated in the Harker case, will be brought before the board, both men yesterday were the centers of real Thanksgiving gatherings. Burroughs is the father of ten children.

Assistant United States Attorney Julian I. Richards will prosecute Barrett Wednesday for his alleged fistic assault on George Baber, exonerated murder suspect. Attorneys Harry Whelan and Russel Kelly will defend Barrett.

One Hurt, One Held In Hit-and-Run Case

Man Deserted Car on Foot; His Victim Is in Hospital.

One man, alleged to have fled from his automobile on foot, is under arrest, and another is in Walter Reed Hospital with injuries to his spine and back as a result of a hit-and-run crash early yesterday morning.

The injured man is Robert Marmion, 39 years old, of 1650 Howard street northwest, a World War veteran. Witnesses told police Mr. Marmion had just stopped his car in front of 1762 Lanier place northwest when another car rammed Mr. Marmion's automobile from behind and the driver fled on foot.

Two Men Rescued From Leaking Boat

Washington Attorney One of Victims Saved in Chesapeake Bay.

Louis H. Mann, Washington attorney, returned to the Capital yesterday with a heart filled with gratitude for the stroke of luck that led a Maryland State patrol boat to save him and Capt. James Dugan, of Salem, Mass., from drowning in a sinking cabin cruiser Wednesday afternoon in Chesapeake Bay.

The boat, which Mr. Mann and Capt. Dugan were taking to Keyport, N. J., sprung a leak about 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The two men waved a sheet as another boat sailed nearby. This craft failed to see the signal for aid, but men on the Maryland State Patrol boat Folly did see it and came to the rescue.

The patrol boat the Sea Wolf in command of Capt. E. N. Dixon, was on the way to Galeville, Md., to put in for the night when Howard Hartge and John Grinder, of the crew, saw the sheet blowing in the breeze. The damaged cruiser was towed to shore. Mr. Mann, who owns the cruiser, lives in Ballston, Va.
